Holly Park Residents Have Strong Showing at National Night Out

By Cristian Vasquez

Residents throughout Hawthorne made an appearance in their neighborhoods during National Night Out. The nationwide event took place Tuesday, August 7 and had a strong response from Neighborhood Watch groups throughout different neighborhoods in Hawthorne. Sergeant Chris Cognac with the Hawthorne Police Department indicated that there were a total of 10 Neighborhood Watch groups throughout the city, with some more active than others.

"It is incredibly important for the police department to have a presence tonight," Cognac said. "National Night Out is exactly what it says and it is important for the police department to be involved and to go around to every community that has a National Night Out event. We will definitely support it."

Holly Park Homeowners Association President and Neighborhood Watch Block Captain Katrina Manning indicated that more than 150 people attended the event, which is in its third year in this section of the city. The theme of the event was education and it included a book reading by Amiekoleh Usafi, who read her book Gladstone as part of her presentation highlighting the importance of education and reading. After the presentation, there was a hula hoop competition and a 59-backpack giveaway.

"The people that I really want thank from the deepest corner of my heart are L.A. Urban Homes and Republic Waste--they came in and donated the backpacks and school supplies for the kids," Manning said. "We gave out school supplies such as binders, pencils and folders. I am very happy to say thank God that they came out, because they value the importance of education. The parents also value the importance of education, so it was great to see them come out. With school starting soon, this was the perfect opportunity to give them the things that they needed--so I am very thankful for them giving us backpacks and school supplies."

National Night Out is "America's Night Out Against Crime" and was introduced by the National Association of Town Watch in 1984. Through the efforts of this nonprofit, crime prevention organization, thousands of crime watch groups and law enforcement agencies across the country have grown and developed relationships in an attempt to keep their neighborhoods safe. The large crowd that attended the event gave organizers and City leaders confidence in the community's sense of unity.

"It shows the commitment of our people. It also provides a sense of security, especially when you are speaking about the vital services that we receive on a daily basis," Mayor Pro Tem Angie Reyes English said. "Police and fire are vital and it is important for our community to get familiar with who they are and how they are here to help. By showing a sense of unity among the community, including parents and children, the City of Hawthorne is present here today in providing assistance."

Manning expressed her appreciation to Council members Nilo Michelin and Alex Vargas in addition to all the local businesses that donated money that helped pay for some of the fees. Yet, for Manning and the Holly Park community, educating the residents about public safety was her ultimate goal for the day's event.

"We have the police department providing information on the many public services that we have in the community because a lot of people are not aware of what public services are available to them," Manning said. "This is a perfect opportunity for people to converse with the police department, with the fire department and with our elected officials.

Even Supervisor Mark Ridley Thomas was here. You have all these people out here and the community can go up to them and ask them what they do. It is a blessing that I can bring that information to them because sometimes this is the only way that they get an opportunity to learn about these services."

For English, the response from the community also highlights the commitment that local residents have to raising responsible families and maintaining safe streets. "More importantly, it's about bringing the family and involving them with something that is good," English said. "As long as parents raise their kids and teach them the things that are good at home, the kids will have a sense of pride when they go out. They [kids] will know that their families have their backs and they know that they have been raised in a safe environment and in a home that loves them, but most importantly in a home that is engaged."

Manning believes that this event will also help bridge the gap that sometimes exists between the community and police officers. "In this environment, the kids feel like the cops are their friends. They feel like they can go up to them and have a good time," Manning said. "They can even look up to them and think, 'When I grow up, I want to be a cop.' This is an environment where the police can relax a bit too and let the community see that they are people too."

Manning continued, "We must remember that they do have a job to do, but they are also here to provide a service. They are policing, but they can be friends and mentors to the kids. When you feel like the police are here for you, you feel comfortable reporting suspicious activity. That is what National Night Out is about. It is about feeling comfortable and partnering with the police department to say, 'I know that they are here for me." •

How to Save on Back-to-School Shopping

By Jason Alderman

On the fun-o-meter, I'd probably rank back-to-school shopping right above getting a flu shot and preparing income taxes. Never mind the hassle of figuring out what our kids need for the coming school year and dragging them to the mall, it's just so expensive.

For example, our son insists that we replace his baseball glove and bat as he enters 7th grade. (He's right – his four-year-old mitt has seen better days.) Also, our daughter is starting soccer and needs cleats – good ones aren't cheap and footwear is one area where we refuse to scrimp.

Many years ago my wife and I learned our lesson and started setting aside money each month for the inevitable – and unexpected – expenses that crop up each fall. By trial and error – and sound advice from fellow parents – we've developed a back-to-school budgeting checklist:

First, calculate how much you can afford to spend on school-related expenses without blowing your overall budget or racking up debt. Scoring bargains won't help your bottom line if you end up paying interest on unpaid balances.

Next, make a comprehensive list of anticipated expenses for each child and build in a cushion for unexpected costs. Try these strategies:

- Examine previous years' bills and compare notes with other, more experienced parents.
- Ask the school which supplies they expect you to buy. Pool resources with other families to take advantage of volume discounts and sales.
- Spread clothing purchases throughout the year so your kids won't outgrow everything at once; plus you can take advantage of off-season sales.
- Review school dress codes so you don't waste money on inappropriate clothing.
- Before buying new clothing or accessories, look for "gently used" items in the closets of your older kids, friends and neighbors, at garage sales, thrift and consignment stores, and sites like Craig's List.

- Find out how much extracurricular activities (athletics, music, art, etc.) cost. Account for uniforms, membership dues, private lessons, field trips, snacks, etc.
- Compare the cost, convenience and nutritional value of school lunches and snacks versus food you prepare yourself.
- Learn your school's policy on immunizations and see what's covered by your insurance or which ones you can access free at health fairs or community clinics.
- Factor in public transportation, school bus or carpool expenses.
- Although shopping online can save money, time and gas, don't forget shipping and return costs, which could undo any net savings. If your kids are old enough, put them in charge of online comparison shopping.
- Clip newspaper and online coupons. Many stores will match competitors' prices even if their own items aren't on sale. Plus, many consolidation websites post downloadable coupons and sale codes for online retailers.
- Mobile shopping apps let in-store smartphone and mobile browser users scan product barcodes and make on-the-spot price comparisons, read reviews, download coupons, buy products and more.

Some parents wrestle over whether or not to take their kids on shopping trips. I think it's worth the effort so they can hear and absorb your decision-making process and understand what's available to spend. My kids are probably sick of hearing me say, "I'm going to buy this brand of underwear because it's cheaper, which will give us more money to buy a better-quality jacket."

Bottom line: Back-to-school shopping can be tedious, but if you plan carefully, you can save time, money and aggravation.

Don't Steal My Bike!

By Glen Abalyan, Torrance High School Student

According to Wired.com, cycling is approaching another golden age. With the increase in the number of high quality bikes for affordable prices, more people are choosing to use cycling as their favored form of transportation. But as the number of bikes on the road increases, so does the audacity of potential bike thieves. Compared to the petty bike thieves of yesteryear, today's thieves form criminal networks to plan heists, rob homes and steal thousands of dollars worth of bicycles. The theft of bicycles from individuals and dealerships needs to be stopped in order to prevent it from hindering the growth of cycling's popularity and discouraging potential cyclists from reaping its many benefits.

A popular subcategory on a site named Reddit briefly summarizes this view. In its bicycling subcategory (otherwise known as a "subreddit"), the front page is filled with users submitting photos of renovated bikes, state-of-the art cycles and videos of their daily commute. The user-submitted content of the front page shows the brighter side of cycling and cements the fact that cycling is approaching another golden age. But the subreddit also shows the darker side of cycling, as it is littered with photos of recently stolen bikes, the lamentations of theft victims and news reports of entire dealerships being robbed of thousands of dollars worth of cycles. An example of such an event happened in August when thieves robbed over a hundred thousand dollars worth of bicycles.

The August 11 edition of the Canberra Times shows how lucrative today's bike thieves are. The article reported a story of how 26 high-end Trek bicycles were stolen from a locked trailer near the Trek offices in Fyshwick, Australia. The bicycles stolen were top-of-the-line Trek racing bicycles each costing over $10,000. In less than two hours, the thieves managed to steal one hundred $183,000 worth of bikes, devastating Simon Thompson, the company's marketing manager. The daring raid of the famous bicycle distributor cannot have been achieved by just one man and showed bike thefts' evolution from a simple job to something straight out of Ocean's Eleven.

Bike thieves are even resorting to home robbery to get what they want. In a May 8 article of the Los Angeles Times, bike thieves robbed Jet Tanner's home and went away with his daughter's custom-made bicycle worth over $5,000. According to police, bike thieves are now using sites such as Craigslist and Facebook to acquire more thousand-dollar bicycles. The thieves who were arrested knowingly used fake aliases to contact the owner and obtain the owner's home address.

The rise in bike sales and popularity is in direct correlation to the increase in bike thefts. Compared to robbing items of equal value, such as jewelry or small cars, bicycles are the easiest object to steal. The average bike thief would only need a minute to break a bike lock and only needs a few days to sell it on the Internet or flea markets. Compare this to jewelry, which requires an intricate plan, or cars, which are relatively simple to track. The lack of a proper location to place a bicycle is also to blame because of the fact that a simple chain is the only object preventing a thief from stealing a bike. Unfortunately, most of the chains used by cyclists can be easily broken by a determined individual with a pair of $15 wire cutters.

But cyclists are now retaliating against bike thieves. A video posted on August 14 on YouTube showed how far a man can go retrieve his stolen bicycle. The owner of the bicycle, a user by the name of "Simon Jackson," posted a video of how he travelled 160 miles to catch the person responsible for stealing his bicycle. Jackson even organized his own sting when he asked the thief where he got the bike and showed him evidence that he did in fact steal the bicycle. Law enforcement has also decided to catch bike thieves at their own game by strapping GPS devices on trap bikes and arrest anyone attempting to run away with the trap bike. Ordinary citizens are also doing their part in preventing bike theft by educating cyclists through classes and videos and keeping an eye out for thieves. But even with all the added support cyclists are receiving through outside sources, they should not be dependent on these sources and still focus on keeping their bike protected at all costs.

With the introduction of quicker and more effective ways to steal a bike, cyclists must rely on more than just a bike lock to protect his bicycle. Unfortunately, a pair of $15 wire cutters can easily break simple chains and locks. To add another level of protection, cyclists should invest in a "U-Lock," or a chain from the same company. A good rule of thumb is to spend 20 percent of your bike's worth in keeping it protected. It is also advisable for cyclists to lock their bike along its frame instead of its spokes whenever possible because thieves can easily detach the wheel and steal the more expensive frame. It is much easier to replace a stolen wheel than the entire rear end of the bicycle.

In the case of a theft, cyclists should have pictures of their bike beforehand along with registering its serial number. The serial number is usually located under the bike's crank. It is important to document a bike's serial number so that the owner has feasible proof that the bike is his. It is also advisable to attach a GPS to the bike to easily retrieve it if the bicycle gets stolen. Newer versions of GPS technology can fit under the bike's seat or reflector and can send a text if it senses movement. Taking these precautions prevents bike theft and makes a thief dedicate more time to steal it, and thus blows his cover.

With the increased demand for bicycles, so grows the amount of thieves trying to make a quick buck. The accessibility of bicycles and their owners' lack of protection make bicycles one of the fastest growing objects in underground markets. It is the cyclist's responsibility to be properly educated in keeping their bike safe from the greedy hands of thieves.

With the ever-evolving methods of stealing bicycles, cyclists should always stay one step ahead of their malevolent counterparts and educate others from becoming victims of this selfish crime. •

Politically Speaking

One Man's Opinion

By Gerry Chong

For several days, the neighborhood talking cat went AWOL and everyone went into a panic mode. We declared an Amber Alert and initiated a door-to-door search. Finally, lo and behold, we found him modeling uniforms in a military supply store. He had on shiny riding boots, tan jodhpurs, a chest full of medals, and a blue sash diagonally across his chest. He snapped a riding crop on his boot and commanded a white bull terrier to sit at heel.

"Who the heck are you," the neighbors chorused, "George Patton?"

"Naw," said the cat. "I'm Mitt Romney's battle planner. I've got the whole campaign laid out and it's working perfectly." With that, he unrolled a series of papers on a table while the neighbors gawked over his shoulders

"Now you noticed that coming out of the Primaries, we were pretty beat up and didn't have much money. So rather than jumping out with a whole lot of aggressive and Obama-provoking positions, we cooled it and left him with little to specifically attack. As my old friend Muhammad Ali said, 'Let's do a rope-a-dope thing and let him swing at things that don't hurt, but sap his assets.' Like Ali, we encouraged him to waste his money while we raised and conserved ours. In the last three months, Obama has outspent us three-to-one and is having trouble raising more, but we have outraised him by substantial margins, conserving our cash for the final three months. We have now raised as much as Obama, but have way more cash on hand because we plan on peaking in November--not August.

"What has this spending bought Obama? Among registered voters he is even with my man, but among likely voters, Mitt's leading. Now black ministers are calling him a traitor and are organizing against him for destroying black families. Romney has cut into Obama's standing with Jewish voters with unequivocal support of Israel. Catholics are offended by Obama's threat against their right to practice their religion. Hispanics are disappointed at the lack of a comprehensive immigration law. Young voters are struck by massive unemployment. All in all, the Democratic coalition is teetering and will likely grow weaker with each subsequent economic report."

A key element in Mitt's campaign is that he will not pander to separate segments of society by race, gender, age or religion, emphasizing distinctly separate Americas. Instead he views us as a single nation facing common problems that require uncommon solutions.

Fascinated, a neighbor asked, "How do you see the campaign moving forward"?

"Well," said the cat, "our selection of Paul Ryan is a game-changer. Contrast Ryan's specific tough love requirement to cure our economic ills with Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner's confession that 'we're not here to tell you we have any answers. We just don't like yours.' We recognize that Ryan is a lightning rod for Democratic attacks, but he'll give as good as he gets and addresses serious problems with serious proposals. As Mitt says, Ryan will force Obama to 'get his campaign out of the gutter' of distracting political ads that most people understand are intended to move discussions away from the economic disaster we face.

"We're building momentum, ramping up, taking the offensive, separating ourselves from Obama on issues such as Israel's defense. People will see the difference between our principled stance against Muslim aggression and the muddled Obama approach to appeasement.

"Gradually we will increase the pressure on Obama, forcing him to defend his record, making this race a referendum on his administration's follies and identifying his philosophies as a destruction of American ideals.

"Our party's platform will show a reverence for religion, individual responsibility and private enterprise as the cores of our societysharply contrasting with the Obama positions on secularism, government domination and a denigration of private enterprise.

"At our Party Convention, we will attack Obama on every front, and as Sarah Palin urged us to do, 'set our hair on fire.' As the keynote speaker, Chris Christie will ignite enthusiasm from the moderates as Ryan has ignited the conservatives. This event will unite the GOP with a level of enthusiasm the left cannot equal.

"We will use our now superior financial resources to build our momentum day-by-day and issue-by-issue to reach a crescendo in November. Our allied independent Super PACS will carry the negative attack segment of the campaign while the Romney campaign will carry the positive policy side of the campaign, ignoring the Obama 'spitball' campaign for the presidency. As Newt Gingrich said, 'Every day, Obama diminishes himself and the office he holds.' To paraphrase Bill Clinton, soon the era of big government will truly be over."

With that conclusion, the cat doffed his helmet and bowed to the stunned and adoring neighborhood. •

By Duane Plank

So Mitt "The Glove" Romney has now made his earth-shattering choice for his running mate and the conservative Romney did not choose to think outside of the box and select a female running mate. As championed in this very column weeks ago.

Nope, he selected the somewhat obscure Congressman Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, who is, according to a tad bit of research, the Elephant Party champion of cutting taxes. Cutting them for regular Joes. Cutting them for the less fortunate. And all fired up about cutting taxes for the wealthy.

Okay, on balance, I am always going to initially be in favor of cutting taxes. Who in his right mind wants to fork over more dinero to Uncle Sam? Criminy, we are taxed up the wazoo. Fed tax, state tax, income tax, petrol tax. Tax on tax on tax. And all to achieve what? More pork-belly handouts, more seemingly well-intentioned government programs that don't seem to cut the mustard, that tend to hand out the payola to the administrative muckey-mucks, who, to give them the dubious benefit of the doubt, may try to do the right thing, but it seems that a lot of our money is wasted, doesn't it?

So, have to admit that I did not know a whole lot about Congressman Ryan before Romney's pollsters and handlers anointed the 42-year-old as a possible President of the United States. Sure, that can happen, if somehow "The Glove" outpoints the POTUS, the hard-fundraising Barack Obama in the general election which will be taking place in about 10 weeks.

Congressman Ryan could be the President of the United States sometime in the next eight years. Or in the next 12, if "The Glove" were to somehow knock off the incumbent Prez. serve out his statutory two terms and then turn over the reins to the youthful Ryan. Chances of that happening, according to some very unscientific odds gleaned from unsavory sources: 'bout two percent.

But Ryan is the choice. And, as mentioned in a prior column, not sure that too many of us will have our vote influenced by the second banana on the ticket. Predictably, Ryan's speech writers crafted some nice alliteration when the youthful Congressman addressed the world after being anointed by the Romney camp.

Ryan said that America is a "nation facing debt, doubt and despair." And shockingly, blamed the aforementioned three Ds on the current campaigning his butt-off POTUS. "Regrettably, President Obama has become part of the problem...and Mitt Romney is the solution," cheered the youngster Ryan. Who happens to be a couple of decades younger than the 65-year-old Romney.

Now of course, the Demos were more than ready to shoot their slings and arrows at whomever the Republicans selected to be the man or woman in the shadows as the 2012 campaign heats up. The poli pundits pontificate to us that not a lot of folks pay attention to the November election until the semi-official end of summer descends upon us the day after Labor Day. A day that may find me in Sin City, by the way, if I can work out some all-important logistics on a couple of ends. But, as I occasionally do, I digress. So the Demos painted Ryan as a selection that will wreck all the freeloads that the Demos have so patiently and painstakingly crafted over the last few years, hitched to taking more money out of our pockets via taxes?

Initially, the POTUS demurred from making any comments about the Ryan selection. The Prez was too busy wandering around his old stomping grounds in the Chicago area, trying to raise more payola for his reelection bid. Now, I am sure that every President has spent his fourth year in office fundraising, saying basically to heck with running the country, trying to solve the nation's ills, but didn't you, didn't we, expect a little more from the ex- Chicago land community organizer when he gave his compelling inauguration speech some three-plus years ago?

Said some Demo vitriol after the Ryan selection: "A Romney/Ryan ticket is sure to take us back and repeat the same catastrophic mistakes that got us into the mess we found ourselves in the first place."

Shrewd move, link the Romney/Ryan ticket to the Bush era failed financial policies. Which may resonate with some folks. Whether the accusations are true or not.

So what do we have to look forward to, politically wise, in the run-up to the election? One of the top-tier candidates decrying the obscene gouging that is currently happening to us petrol whores as we continue to get bent over at the pump by Big Oil whenever they stage another well-planned-out refinery fire? Probably not. Or a drop in the obscene fees that the states are charging our kids to matriculate to college. Ha! Heard something about the fact that some cities out there were actually considering limiting the gouging that they do with their parking meter scams...That would be welcome. Don't see too many rip-off parking meters in Mayberry. Think the last time I saw a meter, I was parked on the top level in the lot outside of the now-defunct Cooke's market, watching, among other sites, the setting of a beautiful sunset gazing north towards the iconic Hollywood sign perched way above the tumult of the 405 north freeway. And I dropped nary a quarter in the slot. •

Swain Begins Third Stint as Head Cougar Grid Coach

By Joe Snyder

James Swain has been Hawthorne High's athletic director for several years, but he has been in and out of coaching the Cougars' football team over the past dozen years. After promising head mentor Joseph Kanach left and got Hawthorne High's team to pick up some victories that followed a futile 45-game losing streak that dated from 2005-10, Swain is back at the helm and hopes he can keep the program winning after he was not very successful in his earlier period.

Swain was Hawthorne's head coach when the Cougars lost 40 of their 45-game skid before stepping down after the 2009 season. He remained as the athletic director. Over the four seasons of his second period, he was 0-40 on the field but 1-39 officially since Hawthorne received a forfeit win against Compton--a squad that humiliated the Cougars 52-0 in 2006 before being discovered that it used an ineligible player. His second period was from 2006-09.

In Swain's first stint during the 2000 and 2001 seasons, he went 11-10 and had a squad that made the CIF-Southern Section Division III playoffs in his first year. That put Swain's overall Hawthorne coaching record to 11-50.

What are his Cougars like this year? Hawthorne, which went 5-5 overall but only 1-4 in Ocean League play in 2011, brings back 10 starters--five each on offense and defense.

The Cougars lost wide receiver Chris Bailey and running back Isaiah Brame to graduation, but also lost what would have been a very good returning quarterback in Rickie Calderon, who transferred to one of Hawthorne's Ocean opponents, Inglewood. Expected to replace Calderon is senior Xavier Clark, who started as a defensive back last year. Senior Paul Fuller will be a key wide receiver.

Hawthorne appears to have a good running game, led by Eric Scott Davis and Chance Kennedy. On defense, Scott Davis and Fuller are expected to start at safety and Clark is a returning defensive back. Swain compares Scott Davis to last season's Inglewood High standout Derrell Woods.

Swain plans to use six-foot-two, 170-pound junior Patrick Washington as a backup quarterback. Top linemen include six-foottwo, 260-pound junior De Shawn Smith. Swain also likes sophomore strong safety Paris McDaniels and senior lineman Thomas Espinoza, a transfer from Las Vegas. Espinoza has very good size at six-foot-four, 275 pounds.

Hawthorne begins its season on Friday at Torrance High Friday at 7 p.m. Last season, the Tartars had one of their best seasons ever as co-Pioneer League champions and made the CIF-Southern Section Northwest Division semifinals, losing to eventual champion Lompoc.

Top contenders for the Ocean League title include last year's CIF-Southern Section Western Division finalist Culver City, defending league champion Santa Monica and Inglewood.

Monarchs Seek Improvement

Morningside High's football team is expected to have very good experience with a senior-studded squad. After going 2-8 overall and 1-4 last seasons, the Monarchs return key starting quarterback Greg Adams.

Running back Dana Dotson is also back, as is wide receiver-safety Taveon Campbell. Morningside also returns two top starting linemen in Rodolfo Reyes and Trayveon Carter.

The Monarchs begin their season at usual powerhouse Canyon High in Canyon Country today at 7 p.m.

Lawndale Starts Under New Coach

Under first-year head coach Rick Mathiesen, Lawndale High's football team begins its 2012 season at home against last season's CIF-Los Angeles City Section Division II champion South East High from South Gate Friday at 7 p.m. The Cardinals return a few key players, including senior running back Michael Watkins and offensive guard Edward Banuelos.

Devastation Edges Power Circle

In a very tight game, Devastation topped Power Circle 53-50 in a Hawthorne Parks and Recreation Adult Basketball League contest on Sunday. Devastation had balanced scoring, led by Shawn Cobles with 15 points. Kai Keltz and Marcus Bailey each chipped in 13 points. Will Price led all scorers with 18 points for Power Circle. Marsellus Giray contributed 15 points. •

USC Overcomes Obstacles

By Adam Serrao

The magical world of college football is almost all the way back in action and Los Angeles' very own USC Trojans have been listed as the top team to beat in the Associated Press Top 25 poll. After a two-year bowl ban, the Trojans, under head coach Lane Kiffin, have found a way to stay consistent and stay hot. Surely, the appeal of Southern California can't hurt the recruitment process, but after all of the lost scholarships and sanctions sent down upon the school, one would think that SC would be looking at more desperate times. Instead, the Trojans emerge from the Pac-12 as the favorites and as legitimates BCS bowl contenders. Matt Barkley is back at quarterback after denying what was surely a pick in the top 10 of this year's NFL draft, and he comes back to throw to receivers like Margise Lee and Robert Woods, to name a few. Yup, the Trojans are back among the heavyweights in this year's college football rankings.

It's not supposed to be this way. What happened to the USC Trojans is supposed to hit a program where it hurts. Cripple a program. Make sure that they will be unsuccessful for a long, long time to come. Instead, however, what it did was give the team time. Time to find itself. In his first year with the club, Barkley may not have been ready to be the best quarterback that he could be. He may not have had all of the pieces around him to make a BCS run. Now, all of a sudden, the team that took the field last year looks mighty, to say the least. Last year, in what was a dress rehearsal, America got to see a contender that still wasn't allowed to contend put on a display of skill that was thoroughly impressive. Now that it's time for the real deal, the Trojans are back and have re-achieved their once customary position of number one--not only the AP, but the ESPN power rankings as well.

"Our goal was just to maximize the situation we were put in," Kiffin can now say in retrospect. "We didn't know exactly what that's going to mean." Well, Kiffin and the Trojans are starting to get a better picture of it. USC is not just a team that is ranked number one at the beginning of the season when rankings mean nothing and one loss can change a whole season. USC is a team that players have been faithful to and not fled the program. Players who are looking for big money, attention and notoriety have all remained faithful to a school that had no chance at a championship, no chance at the playoffs and no chance at even getting into the limelight for two years. That loyalty and solidarity will make this team one of the best that Southern California has seen in a very long time.

Even still, there are many restrictions placed upon this team. In 2010, the NCAA subtracted 10 scholarships a year for three years from the Trojans. That meant that 2010 would be the worst year for the Trojans. With so few scholarships, USC naturally had fewer players ready to suit up and take the field. Worried about losing even more players to injury before the season started, Kiffin conducted his practices in such a way to limit heavy hitting. When the season began, that was evident as the team could barely tackle and they ultimately wound up with an 8-5 record. This year, it is more of the same. With an estimated 71 players on the team (the maximum amount of players on a team is 85), Kiffin plans to redshirt nine freshmen. That will give the freshmen a chance for a longer career life at USC, but will also concurrently drop the roster of available players down to 62. It goes without saying that the Trojans can afford very few injuries. Case in point, starting defensive end Devon Kennard is already unavailable for a majority of the season because of a torn pectoral muscle suffered during the summer.

That being so and the risk being so high, Kiffin will once again attempt to handle his team with soft hands as to avoid any more unnecessary injuries. "We're going to have to manage it really well by the way we practice, by the way we play in the games, rotations of people, special teams," Kiffin said. "But if you're going to have a really good year with a reduced roster, you've got to have some luck and you've got to find a way to stay healthy." Hopefully luck isn't the only thing that Kiffin is banking on to keep his team's number one ranking throughout the entirety of the season. If you take a walk around the campus and talk to any of the players, you'll soon realize it's not. There is a different buzz around this team and a different energy around the school as the season approaches. With players like Barkley, Woods, Lee and running backs like Curtis McNeal and Silas Redd, it is clear that this team is stacked. USC's window for success may not be too entirely large, but this year that window is wide open as gusts of opportunity breeze right through. •

PETSPETSPETSPETS

After a two-week summer break for our volunteers, we look forward to seeing you this Saturday! When you adopt a "pet without a partner," you give a homeless pet a second chance in life.

Chica is a gorgeous, sweet little girl who was born on August 2, 2011. A tool chest fell on her and broke her leg, which needed to be pinned back together. Her owners could not afford her surgery, so they surrendered her to their vet. We paid the bill and Chica got her surgery. Chica's mother was a purebred Shih Tzu and her father was a purebred Toy Poodle. Chica is what we call a Shih-Poo. She is sooooo sweet--just a very nice dog. Her leg will heal up just fine, her pins will come out and she will be running around just fine. Chica is spayed, current on all vaccinations, de-wormed, microchipped, good with other dogs, good with kids, and cat-safe. If you would like to help, we are looking for donations to help offset the $1,700 for cost of her surgery.

While our volunteers took a short break, another rescue group picked up these adorable puppies! There are three beautiful, female Chihuahua/Dachshund mix puppies who are 13 weeks old, and a terrific litter of four female and four male Poodle/Terrier mix puppies who are 10 weeks old. To learn more about these puppies only, please send an email to MVitto2@aol.com or view them

Or come to our Saturday adoption events from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 305 North Harbor Boulevard in San Pedro (just off the 110 near the cruise port). We are always in need of donations for veterinarian bills and our senior dogs. Donations can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to: Animals Rule Placement Foundation at 305 North Harbor Blvd., San Pedro, CA 90731. All donations are tax-deductible. # Pets Without Partners Purrrfect Companions

These fun felines are just two of the many kittens and cats available thru Kitten Rescue. Looking for a boy or girl, a Calico or a sleek, black beauty...just let us know--we are sure to have your "purr-fect" match.

Dinky was rescued from Downey shelter along with his twin sister, Doodlebug. These two sweethearts were saved from death just in time and now are seeking a loving, forever home. Dinky can often be found sleeping on your bed, though like all cats he likes to be unpredictable just to keep things interesting. Dinky is a very relaxed guy, taking everything one day at a time. He definitely has his own mind and wants cuddles and petting on his own time. In that way Dinky can be a bit reserved, as he waits to be sure you are safe before asking for some love. He has a wonderful purr and will occasionally talk to you. Being so young still, Dinky has a lot of energy and loves to play. Dinky likes other cats and especially Doodlebug. Dinky would be far too lonely as an only kitty, so he would like a home with another cat or to going on with her. She and her brother are both very quiet kitties. Doodlebug has a nice amount of energy and since she is still so young, she loves to play with everyone. When nap time rolls around, Doodlebug can be found curled up with her brother or another kitty friend. She loves to wrestle around with other cats and can also be found grooming others.

These kittens/cats are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All of our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, de-wormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see our other kitties, please check our website at www.kittenrescue.org, or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org. Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Boulevard, #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon

Dinky and Doodlebug, be adopted with a buddy.

Doodlebug is a touch more cuddly than her brother. She will come over to ask for pets when she feels like it and she has got a beautifully silky coat that is just made for petting. She isn't pushy--which is very nice, as she can be content just hanging out with you. Her purr is super-sweet and she will occasionally meow to let you know what's to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Boulevard, just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Avenue, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

Be kind. Save a life. Support animal rescue. •

Wilma Finds Forever Home with Dan and Shari

Wilma deserved a home with someone who scored when she found her forever home with Dan and Shari. Both Wilma and Dan sent us a note

"Got settled in around the house. Then Dad walked me all over the place. I got to know lots of neighborhoods and new smells, got some tasty treats and saw lots of other dogs and people too. Near the end of our walk, we laid in the grass at the park, soaking up the sun in the cool breeze. Then we visited some friends down the street til Mom got home, then had dinner, then took our evening walk. I'm bushed!" -- Love, Wilma.

"On a side note, your rescue team is clearly... one of a kind. Over the course of would appreciate her inner "gentle giant." She my intro to Animals Rule, I've seen personal attention and interest given to all the animals within your care. Saturday's Adoption Day is among the top we've ever seen and you all go to great lengths to make sure each and every one gets a home. Having our baby is proof. If you/or the team ever need anything that I can lend a hand in, never hesitate to ask..." -- Sincerely, Dan H.

When you adopt a "pet without a partner," you will forever make a difference in their life and they are sure to make a difference in yours. •

Picking the Right Hospital for You

By David Sayen

If you're having a medical emergency, the best thing you can do is get to the nearest hospital. But if you need non-emergency treatment, and you have time to plan, how do you find a hospital that best fits your needs?

A good place to start is the Medicare website, www.Medicare.gov. There you'll find an easy-to-use tool that has quality-of-care and patient- satisfaction information on more than 4,000 hospitals around the country that participate in Medicare and Medicaid.

The tool is called Hospital Compare. We have a similar, user-friendly tool – Nursing Home Compare – to find skilled nursing homes. More than 17,000 skilled nursing facilities in the United States are listed. We recently redesigned and added more information to both tools.

Hospital Compare and Nursing Home Compare have two purposes. One is to help people make good decisions about where they get health care. By making quality-of-care information easily accessible to the public, we also hope to encourage hospitals and skilled nursing homes to improve their performance. You don't have to be enrolled in Medicare to use Hospital Compare or Nursing Home Compare — anyone can access them.

Both tools give you a good snapshot of the overall quality of care at various local hospitals and skilled nursing facilities.

Hospital Compare shows, for example, how often and how quickly hospitals give recommended treatments for heart attack, heart failure, pneumonia, and children's asthma. It also shows the percentage of patients who developed serious conditions such as bloodstream infections and bed sores while in the hospital. Such conditions are often preventable, if the hospital follows best practices.

You can find out how often patients returned to the hospital with the same condition, and how that rate compares with the national average.

We recently began posting information on how often a hospital uses imaging procedures such as CT scans or MRIs on patients with Medicare. That's important because some imaging tests carry potential health risks, including unnecessary exposure to radiation.

Hospital Compare also lets you read the responses of patients to a detailed questionnaire that asks about their experiences and level of satisfaction.

The questions include how well doctors and nurses communicated with patients, and whether patients' pain was well controlled. Patients also are asked if the hospital kept their room clean, and whether they received information in writing about what symptoms or health problems to look out for after they were discharged.

Finally, patients are asked to rate their overall hospital experience on a scale of zero to 10 – and if they'd recommend that hospital to a relative or friend.

Nursing Home Compare shows the results of health inspections and provides information on staffing, including the number of nurses, physical therapists, and nursing assistants at each facility. It also has a variety of measures that describe the quality of care in skilled nursing homes, such as the frequency of pressure sores and urinary incontinence.

And we're now posting the full text of our inspection reports, so you can read in detail about any problems that were found at a specific nursing facility.

To find Hospital Compare and Nursing Home Compare, go to www.Medicare.gov and scroll to the bottom of the page, under "Resource Locator." We also have compare tools for home health agencies and dialysis centers.

If you don't have a computer, you can call us, toll free, at 1-800-MEDICARE. We'll help you get the information you need.

David Sayen is Medicare's regional administrator for Arizona, California, Hawaii, and Nevada. Get answers by calling 1-800-MEDICARE (1-800-633-4227).

State On Verge of Approving Inglewood Loan, Takeover

Courtesy of the Office of Senator Roderick D. Wright

In the final weeks of the legislative session, a measure by Senator Roderick D. Wright (D-Inglewood) to aid the ailing Inglewood Unified School District has made its way through all of the necessary committee votes and is awaiting a final vote of the California State Assembly.

Senate Bill 533 will provide the financially struggling IUSD with an emergency loan of up to $55 million, while triggering a state takeover of district administration. A budget analysis conducted by the Los Angeles County Office of Education indicates IUSD is deficit spending and will be out of cash for routine operations by March of 2013, while some board members have suggested they will run out by December of 2012.

Based on the principle that providing a quality education is a fundamental goal that should not be jeopardized, SB 533 will provide IUSD the funds needed to continue operations, while causing the district to be taken over by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Superintendent will – in consultation with the Los Angeles County Superintendent – appoint a state administrator to exercise the powers and authorities of the district's governing board for a minimum of one year.

"The students of Inglewood deserve to receive the same quality education afforded every student in this state, one that is not interrupted or marginalized by financial failings not of their making," said Wright. "This loan will close a painful chapter in the Inglewood Unified School District's recent history and allow staff to get back to the business of educating the next generation of community leaders."

After fighting for years to keep the district afloat, board members voted in July to seek an emergency loan from the state. While the County's analysis points to several factors of financial mismanagement, the district was also besieged by a range of factors including declining enrollment combined with a reduction in per-pupil funding, as well as the need to tap reserve funds to maintain programs for which state funding is deferred.

A plan for recovery will be devised in coordination with the County Office Fiscal Crisis and Management Assistance Team (FCMAT).

The recovery plan will not focus solely on the financial health of the district, but on its overall health. The appointed administrator will also work with staff and the governing board to improve student achievement, attendance and parental involvement, while lowering the drop-out rate and attracting and retaining quality teachers.

The district is not getting a "blank check." Funds will only be disbursed as deemed necessary by FCMAT and the appointed state administrator. The administrator will remain in place until performance under the recovery plan has demonstrated to the satisfaction of the State Superintendent that future compliance with the plan can be expected.

IUSD will have twenty years to repay the loan and will also be responsible for the costs of state administration of the District. August 31 is the final day for passage of bills in both houses of the Legislature. •
