Council Holds Off on Rec and Parks Fee Decision

By Brian Simon

During its Tuesday night meeting, the El Segundo City Council opted to postpone any further action on recommended Recreation and Parks fee increases until after the April 8 election. The public hearing on the matter will continue at the second meeting in May.

In the interim, City staff will go back to the drawing board to make some tweaks and address various concerns brought up by citizens on Tuesday—particularly local seniors worried about the recommendation to charge $1 each way for Dial-A-Ride and Beach Shuttle users, $2 each way for out-of-city shopping trips and $5 each way for out-of-city medical trips. Those services are currently free and have always been so. Lou Kutil informed the Council of a 37-page petition with 544 signatures calling for the City not to impose a fee for senior Dial-A-Ride. Another resident wondered how the City planned to collect such fees, stating that bus drivers told her they didn't want to be responsible for the task.

Younger residents with large families also weighed in about proposed fee hikes they felt would be prohibitive for swimming and other services. In looking at various potential costs for her household under the revised fee structure, Jill Dull expressed that the day-to-day activities families do can "add up to such a large number" that it would be "just a little insane." Another resident with a family of four said he was more in favor of a "lump sum, upfront fee" like a summer swim card or paying more for his Rec and Parks ID card rather than continually shelling out "small nickel and dime" amounts.

Speaking on behalf of his colleagues, Mayor Bill Fisher said there was consensus on the Council to not apply fees to those on Lifeline or CARE or seniors/other residents on fixed incomes. He also agreed with Mayor Pro Tem Carl Jacobson's suggestion to delay any action on the matter for a couple of months. "It's a little premature," said Jacobson, noting that he wasn't ready to decide on several of the fee recommendations on Tuesday because it would depend on where the City's finances stand after the election (when voters will either pass or reject proposed tax increases on the ballot). Councilmember Marie Fellhauer maintained that the fee issue needs to be addressed regardless of what happens on April 8, though Jacobson disagreed.

Councilmember Dave Atkinson emphasized that the recommendations do not mean to penalize any specific age group, but run across the board with the goal to be as fair as possible to local residents and have those outside the community pick up the bulk of the costs. He explained the need for the fees as a way to recover costs for personnel, equipment and maintenance. "If we don't start paying for things that are being worn out, we'll have no choice but to let them wear out and then close them," Atkinson said. "And if we don't charge people from outside the city, shame on us." If the fees go into effect, the City will see additional annual revenues estimated between $200,000 and $250,000.

State of the City: Mayor Draws on El Segundo's Past in Hope of Brighter Future

By Brian Simon

During last Thursday's State of the City address, El Segundo Mayor Bill Fisher looked at the community's beginnings in order to provide perspective on the present and future. Before a packed house at the Dockweiler Youth Center for the 13th annual luncheon hosted by the Chamber of Commerce, Fisher explained that the event's theme of "El Segundo By the Sea" tied in with a song of the same name composed 100 years ago "at a time when it was important to get the message out about El Segundo" when Standard Oil was the only business in town. "They [El Segundo's founders] had a challenge... to bring investment and folks to a place that they had great vision and hope for," Fisher said. "We have that same challenge today." To further drive home the theme, the El Segundo High School Choir was on-hand to perform El Segundo By the Sea with sheet music and lyrics from 1914.

Fisher detailed the City's progress in economic development, including the recent hire of a new public relations firm (Paolucci), the revived activity of the Economic Development Advisory Council (EDAC), the continued effort to transform the Smoky Hollow district, and plans to improve parking in the Downtown area, among other top priorities. Fisher emphasized that the goal of the City's economic development initiative is "not to change our residential area, but to preserve and protect it and keep it charming and safe. The economic development movement is to fill buildings gone vacant from the recession--to stabilize our economy for the future."

Susan "Sue" Work

Susan "Sue" Work, 87, of Irvine, CA passed away on Wednesday February 19, 2014. She was born on June 23, 1926 in Los Angeles, CA to Paul and Marion Van Dyne.

She grew up in Van Nuys, CA and kept in contact with many of her childhood friends over the next eight decades. She graduated from Fairfax High School in Los Angeles and went to Nursing School in San Francisco. It was after completing school and working as a nurse in San Francisco that she met her future husband, Richard "Dick" Work. After being married in Inglewood, CA, they resided in the Bay area and started a family in El Cerrito. The family moved several times with Dick's job at Standard Oil Co./ Chevron. From El Cerrito they moved to El Paso, TX and even got a brief relocation to Hawaii, before landing in El Segundo. Sue and Dick moved to Irvine, CA in 1995, living at the Regents Point retirement community. Sue was preceded in death by Dick, her husband of 59 years, in May 2009.

Sue initially worked as a Registered Nurse, then as a mother to their four children. She was a loving, caring wife, mom, grandma and GiGi (great grandma) and a good friend to many. She kept up her RN licensing for six decades and did volunteer work in her communities. She was active in her churches, at her kids' schools and in the kids' other activities. Along the way she participated in 4H, Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Little League, PTA, AFS, the El Segundo Women's Club, raising Seeing Eye Guide Dog foster puppies, Red Cross blood banks and as an election polling place worker. Most recently Sue had been involved in the Parish Nurse program at St. Mark's Presbyterian Church in Newport Beach and in the residents' Health and Wellness Committee at Regents Point.

Sue and Dick enjoyed sailing out of Marina del Rey when they lived in El Segundo and took the opportunity to make sailing trips along the California coast. They also took sailing or cruising trips that were arranged in other parts of the world. In El Paso they hosted foreign servicemen that were training at Ft. Bliss as well as international guests that were bicycling across the USA. In El Segundo they hosted AFS foreign exchange high school students, who lived with the family for at least half of the school year.

Sue is survived by their children: Son Keith Work and wife Laura; Daughter Ann Lewis and husband Harrison; Son Greg Taylor; Daughter Nancy Calabria and husband Ron, four special grandchildren: Alison and Jason Lewis; Chelsea and Dominic Calabria, and a wonderful great granddaughter: Sophia Lewis-Guerra.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, March 08, 2014 at 1:30 p.m. at St. Mark Presbyterian Church, 2200 San Joaquin Hills Rd, Newport Beach, CA 92660.

The family ask that in lieu of flowers, gifts in Sue's memory be made to: benefit the Parish Nurse program at St. Mark's Presbyterian Church, or to benefit the Benevolence Fund at Regents Point, attn: Jill Hammer, 19191 Harvard Ave, Irvine, CA 92612, or to Canine Companions for Independence, PO Box 446, Santa Rosa, CA 95402. • annual operating budget of about $5 million.

Atkinson originally brought the fee topic to the Council in September 2012. He and Fellhauer then formed a task force with Recreation and Parks Commissioners Bob Motta and Debbie Bundy, meeting on 16 occasions over the next year to study costs associated with athletic fields and facility maintenance, processing permits, implementing special events, and administering various activities. Utilizing data provided by City staff that assigned a per-hour cost for every line item and took into account usage and who benefits, the task force members worked out a program of fees they felt was fair— based on a pyramid that incorporates a 3:1 cost factor ratio in which people who live outside of El Segundo as a rule pay three times as much as local residents.

Under the formula, services/programs used by the most people will result in lower fees compared to those used by just one person or a small group. "The fewer people it benefits, we thought the City should subsidize less," Fellhauer explained, adding that even with the increases El Segundo's charges would still run below—or at worse, no more than—other cities. She also noted that "nothing is set in stone" and that she does not want to hurt citizens who can't afford to use the services they need. Fellhauer thought the idea of a season Dial-A-Ride pass for seniors at a "much-reduced rate" could work (and also address the logistical problem of drivers collecting a dollar every trip), though she felt they should still pay something to help extend the life of the service itself. "If reserves [that pay for local transportation services] run out, there won't be any money for cars or personnel to take people anywhere," she said.

In addition to discussing fees on Tuesday, citizens also took the Council to task on several other items, including future maintenance costs for the Wiseburn pool, the wisdom of the TopGolf approval, and paying a consultant to perform a Downtown parking study. Responding to comments from former Councilmember Mike Robbins about the City's property tax revenues being at an all-time high, Fisher responded that those dollars still only amount to two percent of the general fund, or about $1 million annually. El Segundo receives 6.2 cents on the dollar for its share of property tax revenues, compared to a County average of about 11 cents. Fellhauer pointed out that property tax revenues don't even cover the cost for the City's smallest department (the Library at $2 million a year). At the same time, Fisher would not blame the City's budgetary woes on meager property tax revenues—instead pointing to the economic downturn and the resulting vacant office space as businesses left town or laid off employees. "Eighty-five percent of our budget comes from our business community," he said, adding that the City also lost $2.5 million per year from a single company that had to change its tax reporting process. •

Politically Speaking

One Man's Opinion

By Gerry Chong

Busy, busy, busy. Up in the North Pole Santa was flitting from elf work station to work station, encouraging his little men to work faster because Christmas would be here too soon. Then, from behind a tour group approached. Beaming Santa, addressed them, saying, "I'll bet most of you thought I only worked once a year, but nothing could be further from the truth. Each year we search for a gift to keep our constituents in line and voting for our cause. Why last year, we knew cell phones were the rage, so we gave each of our voters at least one. When taxpayers complained, about the cost, we explained it was because when our eager job searchers found tons of job opportunities they needed a cell phone to field all those offers.

"Then there is the collateral damage of 500,000 minimum wage earners who will be terminated by companies that need to stay in business."

Unfortunately, the offers never materialized so our constituents used their free minutes to call old Aunt Martha, or order another nickel bag, or whatever. Soon when their minutes were gone, our people just sold that useless phone. (sigh, oh well, our heart was in the right place).

This year, we're proposing a greater gift, and it's not going to cost taxpayers a dime! We'll require all companies, regardless of whether or not they're profitable, to give our constituents a raise. Why, by raising the minimum wage from $7.25 to $10.10 per hour, we'll bring millions of our voters into the middle class, and it won't raise the national debt, cool, no?"

In his triumphant declaration, Santa felt a little tug on his hem. A shy tourist with a green eyeshade, a sharp pencil and a pocket calculator looked up at the Great One and said, "Sir, you're wrong on three counts: first, if employers raise the minimum wage, they'll have to raise the wage of that worker's supervisor. Then that supervisor's supervisor would have to receive a raise, and so forth as the initial increase reverberates through the entire company's cost structure. The company's prices will have to increase to reflect it's cost increase, and inflation will ensue.

Second, a cumulative increase of $2.85 an hour plus FICA and other taxes is enough to inflate the company's cost structure, but provides less than $500 per month to each worker; far too small a sum to bring 'millions into the middle class' as you claim. Then there is the collateral damage of 500,000 minimum wage earners who will be terminated by companies that need to stay in business.

Third, your thought process is flawed. If you raise the bottom, you don't leap from them over other into the 'middle.' You simply raise the bottom, to an inflated level and everyone else will still be above them."

A red-faced Santa glared at the tourist and bellowed, "Look here, you little creep, this is an election year. We need to keep giving gifts to our constituents to ensure they vote the right way, so get outta my face." And with that, Santa wheeled about on his heel and left the room. •

Another Man's Opinion

Arizona's Leaders Come to their Senses

By Cristian Vasquez

The national media's attention recently shifted to Arizona when our neighbor's senators approved Senate Bill 1062. This bill, Religious Freedom Restoration Act, would have altered a part of an Arizona law regarding free exercise of religion to broaden protections to nongovernmental entities. Meaning that "any individual, association, partnership, corporation, church, religious assembly or institution or other business organization" would have been allowed to argue "burdens" on their religious preferences as a defense in court. In essence businesses could not be sued for denying service to anyone, including homosexuals, when religious beliefs were the reason behind the decision. Fortunately, Arizona Governor Jan Brewer vetoed the bill.

Still, it is disgusting that 33 senators in Arizona would pass a law that gives one segment of the population the legal authority to discriminate against others. Every individual is deserving of equal protection under the law, including the many religious groups that have found a home in America. However, this law didn't protect religious liberties--but simply attacked those not falling in line with certain religious practices. The law was a preemptive attempt at protecting business owners of faith from attacks that have not occurred. Maybe the faith-based community feels that having same-sex marriage legalized across the nation is the same as an assault on their faith. The good thing is that this is not true. Religious freedoms in America are safer than ever. Regardless of what certain news outlets argue, religious freedoms are not under attack.

Americans of all and any religious faith can attend Mass, temple or services on any given day without fear of arrest or attacks. Religious organizations continue to receive tax breaks from the government, religious buildings are not being torn down or burned to the ground in an organized fashion and there is no desire from the gay community to destroy the faith-based organizations. Having same-sex couples marry does not hinder my ability as a Catholic to attend Mass and be the best person that I can possibly be, based on my religious upbringing. However, Arizona's Senate Bill 1062 would have allowed the faith-based community to hinder someone else's ability to live and exist.

Without this law in place, business owners can still deny their services to same-sex couples because of faith preferences, even if they do risk being hit with a lawsuit. However, the great thing about running a business is that it will succeed or fail based on the quality of the service that is provided. If a business owner decides to deny service to anyone, for whatever reason, that represents an immediate loss of income and the loss of what could have been a loyal customer. You can be sure that same-sex couples being denied service will not only never return to said business, but also never recommend that establishment to anyone. I'm sure we have all seen the "we reserve the right to refuse service to anyone" signs inside of businesses. The good thing is that the consumer has the right to take their business elsewhere.

The problem with this law is that it legalized discrimination and left the victim without recourse. Religion is not under attack and laws like these simply highlight the lack of decency that exists in some of this nation's lawmakers. •

the way—but tempered his enthusiasm with the realization that El Segundo faces a budget deficit next year. Noting that the City had already reduced employee compensation and benefits by 17.5 percent and its workforce by 20 percent, Fisher said any further cuts would impact important services. As a result, the City Council made the "difficult decision" of putting the Measure A tax initiative on the April ballot and will look to local voters to determine El Segundo's financial future. The Mayor thanked the Chamber and business community for supporting the campaign and coming up with a proposal that still keeps taxes lower than surrounding communities with businesses absorbing 90 percent of the bill and residents only asked to pay an average of $7 to $10 a month extra. "It is incredible to me what a great business community we have here in El Segundo--always ready to help, always ready to contribute to this city," Fisher said. "It's now up to the voters to decide if they are ready as well."

While last year's agreement with Chevron provided critical dollars for El Segundo financial future, Fisher admitted that the "City Council needed to face the hard truth that the world around us has changed. Some of our revenues have not recovered as a result of the economic downturn and still we have held on during that downturn and maintained services. Other revenues, millions of dollars, are gone forever. At the same time, our expenses that we don't control and are under State mandate have continued to increase."

Fisher elaborated on the City's particular quandary. As opposed to other municipalities that rely heavily on property taxes that don't fluctuate, El Segundo receives 85 percent of its general fund revenues from businesses. "Our residential property tax in El Segundo covers just two percent of our revenue," Fisher said. "So in El Segundo because of our dependence on the business community, if the economy does well we do well. If not, we do not." With that thought in mind, Fisher stressed the importance of attracting more businesses to move to El Segundo as the economy improves.

Fisher listed a number of new commercial projects that will help the cause some--including the elevon development at Campus El Segundo now under construction; The Point shopping center at Plaza El Segundo scheduled to open in the spring of 2015; new businesses such as Petros Kafe coming to Downtown in the near future; Mar Ventures' just completed office condos on Grand and Kansas; several eastside property renovations underway; and a proposed 1.8-million square foot office, industrial and retail complex on the Raytheon campus. "These projects represent almost a million square feet of renovation--if you take into account the Raytheon proposal, then it is three million square feet," Fisher said. "But it's mostly renovation of empty buildings. What it really represents, and this is the good news, is the risk these firms are willing to take to spend millions of investment dollars in El Segundo."

As for El Segundo's game plan to build for the future and further bolster economic development, Fisher listed five items: "We must continue to diversify our economy with new and different businesses--and we are doing that. We must cultivate job growth, particularly attracting business with higher wage earning positions--and we are doing that. We must refine and streamline more appropriate City rules, ordinances, plans and processes to promote and expedite quality development...and especially in Smoky Hollow--and we are doing that. We must approve long-range development plans for vacant and underutilized properties so that they can be more quickly developed as the economy recovers--and we are doing that. We must do infrastructure improvements to promote development and serve the community--and we are doing that." With the above points in place, the Mayor added that "we must keep the El Segundo residential area a safe, charming and wonderful place to raise our families--and we are doing that..." •

While the Lakers continue to struggle to get wins up on the board, their counterparts from just across the arena are quietly making a run at a championship this year. Yes, the Los Angeles Clippers have taken over the role as the dominant basketball team in Los Angeles. If you haven't let yourself believe it yet, start getting used to it. Chris Paul, Blake Griffin and a cast of other talented basketball characters have come together to make the Los Angeles Clippers the premier team in L.A. this year. Normally, that role belongs to the purple and gold. With Hollywood drama as everpresent as it is for the normally dominant team this year, however, someone had to take over the reins. Donald Sterling, for the maybe the first time ever, seems to be interested in winning a title and his team may just be poised to do exactly that this year.

"Yes, the Los Angeles Clippers have taken over the role as the dominant basketball team in Los Angeles."

The Los Angeles Clippers haven't only started the year with talent, but they've continued to gain integral pieces to add to their own championship puzzle throughout the course of this season. Most recently, they have added both Glenn "Big Baby" Davis and Danny Granger into the mix in an effort to give their roster the best chance of competing for the finals in the Western Conference. Of course, there are still the San Antonio Spurs and Oklahoma City Thunder to deal with, but simply the fact that the Clippers can call themselves one of the three best teams in the conference means that they have come a long way. That doesn't mean that these Clippers don't have anything to improve on, though. Even head coach Doc Rivers can tell you that. "We haven't been consistent enough defensively," Rivers said following the All-Star break. "You look at the Portland game the other night. We won in an offensive game because we got seven or eight straight stops at the end. And you look at that and think, 'What were we waiting for?' through that game. All of a sudden we started doing some things we should've been doing, so that's my concern. We've become so good offensively, I think at times we think, 'Well, we'll outscore them.' That does not work in the playoffs." Rivers definitely makes a good point and the fact that he is already looking forward to the playoffs means that this Clipper team definitely has a little bit more than just potential.

One thing that gives the Clippers more than just potential is the acquisition of former Boston Celtic, and most recently Orlando Magic center, Glen Davis. Davis will most certainly add to the Clippers' depth off of the bench and add another big body to Rivers' defensive scheme. "It gives us another big and what I like about a guy like that is he can play a five with a four," Rivers said. "If we got a guy like that, he also knows my system." For most of you who do not speak Doc Rivers, what he means is that Davis, most of the time, plays the power forward position but can also go up against the opposing teams' centers on defense. Also, Rivers coached Davis on his 2008 championship team, giving the Clippers a more experienced addition while also bringing more size to their bench and front line.

In addition to Davis, the Clippers also fortified their squad by signing Danny Granger. Granger, formerly of the Indiana Pacers, struggled to overcome a knee injury while playing in only five games a year ago. Recently, he was traded from the Pacers, where he spent his whole career, to the Philadelphia 76ers. Philly bought Granger out, giving the five-time Pacer leading scorer free range to sing with whichever team he so chose. Unlike the Lakers, the Clippers just happen to be Southern California's most desirable destination these days and Granger joined Davis to help out an already solid basketball team.

In their quest for their first championship ever, the Clippers may not even need outside help, even though they now have acquired it. Though Paul has been injured for a portion of the season, Griffin has been having the year of his career. Averaging nearly 28 points per game in the latter portion of the season, Griffin has not only been one of the most improved players in the league, but also one of the league's most valuable players. Together with Paul, and a deep bench, the Clippers may just be poised to have the most successful season in franchise history.

The portion of the game where the Clippers are most successful is obviously offense. With Paul and Griffin clicking on all cylinders, the Clippers are averaging 106.7 points per game--second to only the Portland Trail Blazers. Unlike what Rivers thinks, the Clippers actually only allow opponents to shoot 44.1 percent from the floor to rank the team seventh in the league defensively. Everyone knows the Clippers can score the ball--but in order to take the Western Conference title, even that seventh rank will have to improve. Maybe Davis will help. Maybe Rivers' attention to detail will help. One thing is for certain, however. Defense wins championships. If the Clippers get clicking on all cylinders, they will be an extremely difficult team to beat in this year's playoffs.

Eagles High School Softball Season Begins This Week

By Andrew Thomas

The El Segundo Eagles Varsity softball team will begin their season at home this Friday, March 7th, with a non-league game against Santa Monica High School. The Vikings were a Division 4 CIF Finalist last season. The Eagles compete in Division three.

"We are excited to get the season going and start achieving our goals," stated Head Coach Keith Cameron, who is entering his 18th season as the Eagles Head Coach. "We have a lot of talent on the team and in the program this season, but we still have to put it all together," explained Cameron. "Our goals for the program are a Pioneer League title and a CIF title. We have to work and get better each game, and it all starts with game one on Friday. We are excited to see what the season will bring, and to represent our school and our city as well as we can."

The Eagles have 12 returners from last year's team that lost in the second round of the CIF playoffs. There are only three seniors (McCall James, Tess Von Flue, and Nicki Honsowetz), but the team, despite its youth, is well balanced. "We have an excellent pitching staff with Senior McCall James and Junior Shannon Brooker, who were both All Pioneer League selections last season, and we should have an excellent defense. We also have great team speed, and we have good power as well. If we perform to our abilities, it really opens up options for us on the offensive side of the field. We can utilize our speed and make things very difficult for the opposition," exclaimed Cameron. The Eagles also return All League players Rhianna Rich (Junior, shortstop), Allison Tattnell (Sophomore, outfield), and Alyssa Pelegrin (Sophomore third-baseman).

Before Friday's game, the Eagles will honor former third baseman Liz Garland, who passed away last year. Her father, John Garland, will throw out the first pitch to start the season.

The Eagles next game will be Wednesday, March 19th against Mira Costa. The two rivals have not played in over seven years. "I am excited to finally renew the rivalry," stated Cameron. They are a good team, and it will be a great early season battle of the South Bay!" Game time is at 7:00 PM.

The JV team is also in action at home this Friday at 3:15 against Santa Monica, and at 3:15 against Mira Costa on March 19th. In between they will compete in the Redondo JV tournament. The Fr./Soph team started their season this week with two games and will also be at home on March 11th and 13th at Richmond Field. Game time for both games is 3:15. •

El Segundo Little League Looking Good at 60

By Gregg McMullin

We continue our look back as the El Segundo Little League turns 60 this season. Two weeks ago the El Segundo Little League kicked off its 60th season. In grand fashion 1954 Opening Day players, coaches and family members took part in the parade and opening ceremonies.

With the groundwork of starting the organization out of the way and players that would some day become household names, El Segundo's Little League was entrenched in our community. It seems it didn't take long before the popularity of youth baseball was on a fast track to success in El Segundo. The El Segundo Babe Ruth League would come into existence in 1955 and an American Legion baseball program would soon follow. Together these three programs would be the feeder system for a high school that has sent 50 players to the professional ranks and hundreds to play at the collegiate level.

A few years after the Central Little League was formed, it became apparent that El Segundo could and would survive with just the National League and American League. So the players still eligible on teams like the Corvettes, Vikings, Padres and Indians would be divided up and placed on teams in the National League's Braves and Red Legs. The players that wound up in the American League were placed on teams like the Indians and Senators, and the Thunderbirds and 7-Uppers were renamed the Red Sox and White Sox.

With all of the kids wanting to play, it was evident that not all of them could compete together. A minor division was created after the first few years and it has become the feeder system to the major division that we have seen continue to present day.

The American League had been playing all of its games at White Field. On June 30, 1958, the new El Segundo Recreation Park opened up to the public. There had been a small diamond that the Little League had been playing on before moving to White Field. Now it had a home of its own, but that would be short-lived when it would move one final time.

In the first game played at Recreation Park, the Senators, managed by Paul Harrison, defeated the Yankees 12-4. American League all-stars included John Brett and Leonard Bernard with coaching by Red Sox manager Bob Southern.

Gary Vinson took over as manager of the Dodgers when Frank Schroder passed away in 1958. Vinson would go on to be a television star. With his connections, he and his cast mates from the hit TV show McHale's Navy appeared at the National League's Opening Day in 1962.

In earlier years, the city champion had first been decided by all-star teams from the respective leagues. In 1958, for the first time, the El Segundo Little League held its own version of a World Series when the Cubs--the National League champions--faced the Tigers from the American League. Derryl and Wayne Cousins and Ralph Spargo led the Cubs to victory.

In 1960, Bob Flynn became the first El Segundo Little Leaguer to sign a professional contract thanks to his scouts Al Zarilla and Art Lilly. The National League all-stars were loaded with talent that included Ed Moore (who became a State Farm agent here in town), Eddie Facia, Dana Pagett (drafted by the Virginia Squires of the ABA) and Eddie Hora (who played basketball briefly at UCLA and had a Minor League Baseball tryout).

1962 was a big year as Little League became more and more popular in our town. Each of the leagues tried to outdo the other. In 1962, mothers Cynthia Cousins and Sally McMullin headed up the National League's second fashion show. That league also elected its first queen, Terri Steffan, and princesses Judy and Jody Soto. The National League additionally got the first lighted scoreboard and the field was aptly renamed Lil' Candlestick. The Los Angeles Dodgers donated red clay dirt for the infield.

The American League would not be outdone. They opened a Little League field and named it Standard Stadium since it stood on Standard Oil property in the 2200 block of Mariposa Avenue near where the current post office sits. Standard Stadium was dubbed "Little Chavez" after the Los Angeles Dodgers' Chavez Ravine. The new Little League field also received red clay dirt from the LA Dodgers. The outfield fence displayed sponsors for all of the teams.

On Opening Day, El Segundo Mayor W.E. Baker threw the ceremonial first pitch to Public Works Director Robert Webb. Webb clobbered the pitch over the centerfield fence. In the opening game of the new stadium, Alan Christensen struck out 16 and led his White Sox team to a 4-0 win over the Tigers. In the second game, Mike McCready hit the first two home runs by a Little Leaguer in the new stadium as the Yankees defeated the Senators 3-1.

The Yankees would go on to win the American League while the Dodgers would dominate the National League. In an epic cross-town game, the Dodgers and Yankees met to determine the city champion. Kent Wright threw a brilliant five-hit shutout as the Dodgers won 2-0. He was helped along by the spectacular defensive plays by Brian McMullin at shortstop. The hard-throwing McCready went the distance for the Yankees and surrendered just four hits and two walks while striking out 12, but picked up the loss.

After high school, McCready would go on to sign a Major League baseball contract with the New York Mets. He was on the 40-man roster when he was tragically killed in an automobile accident. During his funeral at St Anthony's church, the legendary Casey Stengel wept.

In the late seventies, the two leagues combined to make one league. Today there are six divisions with over 350 players competing in the El Segundo Little League. What was once a vision has turned into a something the community has been proud of for 60 years.

Deluca Trattoria: Authentic Italian Eatery Raises the Bar

By Brian Simon

It took some time, but Downtown El Segundo has emerged as a Southland dining destination with an eclectic mix of eateries all within walking distance of one another. Already a popular go-to spot from its opening in the fall of 2007, Richmond Street's Deluca Trattoria has upped the ante since the arrival last April of new managing partner Andrea Francesco whose goal is to provide authentic Italian cuisine and a signature experience. Judging from a recent Herald staff visit to Deluca, Francesco definitely means business. It's always commendable to strive to make a good thing even better. For Francesco, getting to the next level meant a commitment to not only upgrade the quality of the food and wine but also the service. "The first thing we did when I came in was to work with staff to improve the restaurant," he said. "We built a team and reorganized schedules to build relationships with the patrons and create familiarity."

Francesco next went to work on the menu ingredients, with the goal of going "farm to table fresh" with everything homemade and handmade. "In running a business, you can get into a comfort zone with your suppliers," he warned. "So we're changing the supply chain to look for more local sources and to gain access to the freshest possible, hand-selected produce from the tomatoes to the carrots to the onions." The kitchen has also moved from dry pasta to the fresh stuff—delivered to the restaurant within 24 hours of being handmade just like it is in Italy, Francesco noted. "It makes a huge difference." Additionally, the sauces are made from scratch, chickens are free range or organic, seafood is sustainable and steaks are prime. Chef Luis Rosales, who has cooked in Los Angeles area kitchens ranging from fine dining to casual for more than 20 years, adds his personal flair to the ever-evolving menu that now boasts several new entrees. He and Francesco also continue to fine-tune the house favorites by testing new ingredients and concepts virtually on a daily basis. Nothing is ever set in stone.

Coming from an Italian family (his mother lives in Florence) that produces wine in the mother country and imports internationally, Francesco not surprisingly made a complete revamp of Deluca's wine list—which used to be predominantly domestic. The wine bar now focuses on mainly Italian selections with only about 20 percent coming from California plus a few choices from notable areas such as

"I like to use the simple Margherita (tomatoes, basil and mozzarella) as a benchmark for pizza craft and Deluca nails it."

France and Argentina. Francesco definitely knows his vino—he is an Italian wine expert and educator who teaches food and wine, consults for restaurants throughout California, and even serves as a wine judge at international competitions. His wine list is thoughtfully considered in order to pair with individual food items. The roster of Italian varietals and blends is one of the more interesting and extensive in the entire South Bay—particularly on the red side. Here you'll find several top-notch Super Tuscans, Amarone, Barolo, Brunelo and much more. Happy hour selections are available on some of the wines between 5 and 7 p.m. and all bottles are half-off on Wednesdays. Deluca also features a number of craft beers you don't see every day, including a few from locales such as the Czech and Slovak republics, as well as the local El Segundo Brewing Company's own Hop Tanker Double IPA. The restaurant hosts a craft beer tasting every Friday night.

During the Herald visit, we sampled a mix of house specials and longstanding favorites. The popular and amply portioned Insalata della Casa is a personal addiction, with its intriguing blend of chopped lettuce, tomatoes, mozzarella, grilled chicken, dried cranberries, white beans and roasted nuts in a tangy red wine vinaigrette. It has changed subtly in recent months and is even better than before—it's a tad more peppery, with the mozzarella now imported from Italy and the beans of the cannellini variety. We enjoyed it with basket of hot, freshly baked bread dipped in a wonderful garlic/olive oil blend. We also devoured a new menu item—the crunchy, baked garlic parmesan toast and it was good enough for us to toast to it.

On the entrée side, the Pollo al Ripieno was particularly outstanding, featuring a perfectly cooked chicken breast stuffed with goat cheese and ricotta and topped with a flavorful sauce that seemed a blend of Marsala and marinara. The dish also comes with roasted red peppers, broccoli and mushrooms.

Herald CEO Heidi Maerker proclaimed that night's special risotto as the best she had ever tasted. Risotto (an Italian rice dish cooked in broth to a creamy consistency) has always been a flagship dish at Deluca. This evening's version included chunks of chopped turkey and ham as well as peas and asparagus for the perfect blend of soft and crunchy elements. Even better, Rosales added several grilled tiger shrimp to the mix.

Other notable dishes included the simple, but classic spaghetti with fresh basil, sundried tomatoes, garlic and parsley; and tender, sliced, braised beef short ribs enlivened with a wonderful red wine reduction and accompanied by sauteed peas, carrots and "smashed" potatoes. The kitchen also turns out some very fine pizzas, with thin-crust pies that can feed a couple of people and taste just as good the next day. I like to use the simple Margherita (tomatoes, basil and mozzarella) as a benchmark for pizza craft and Deluca nails it.

The menu features over a dozen pasta selections, additional pizzas, salads, soups, antipasti, and entrees highlighting chicken, veal (including a brilliant Osso Bucco), lamb and seafood. Desserts include classic staples such as Tiramisu, Italian gelatos, chocolate torte and Crème Brulee, but be sure to look into whatever the weekly special might be. Despite being full to capacity, our group tore through a stellar cheesecake with a light Graham cracker crust and topped with raspberry chunks. The sweet stuff goes particularly well with espresso or cappuccino—a decidedly Italian way to wrap up a good meal.

Deluca has a warm, rustic feel and welcoming décor. There is also a front veranda patio with a view of quaint Richmond Street, as well as a private rear patio and bistro lounge ideal for parties or special events. Thursday through Saturday night starting at 6 p.m. by the bar area, you can catch a rotating roster of talented artists performing a variety of musical styles (jazz and pop standards in particular), with the house upright piano featured most evenings. The restaurant manages to work equally well as a family eatery, a spot for date night, or the ideal venue for single folks to sit at the wine bar sipping some Chianti, nibbling on pizza and taking in some live music. Francesco has indeed succeeded in bringing the authentic trattoria experience to El Segundo and he continues to look for ways to improve. "If I ever rested on my laurels, my grandmother would turn over in her grave," he said. "A recipe is never perfected..."

Deluca Trattoria is located at 225 Richmond Street. It is open for lunch Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to p.m. and for dinner Monday through Saturday from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays feature an all-you-cat-eat pasta special, while entrees are two for one on Tuesday. When I was growing up in New York, part of every Italian mother's cooking skills was to learn how to roast peppers. These beautiful red and green bell or sweet peppers were an essential part of any antipasto salad platter. The trick was to almost burn the outside of the pepper without ruining the sweet meat that the charred skin was protecting. To place a platter of fire roasted peppers in good olive oil and sea salt was the perfect way to start a meal. Served with cheese sausages and crispy bread set the tone for the meal.

Fire Roasted Bell Peppers

Ingredients: 1.) 6 large firm bell peppers 2.) 2 tablespoons of olive oil

Rub the peppers with the oil and place on an open flame or grill

Char them on all sides till the skin or outside is a black color, but not burnt. Keep turning the peppers till all the sides have been charred. Place the charred peppers in a plastic bag and close the bag to let the peppers steam, about 5 minutes. Remove the peppers from the bag. Peel or brush off the charred skin with your hand. Rinse the peppers under a light stream of cold water. Remove the core and serve with a drizzle of extra virgin olive oil and a sprinkle of sea salt.

Prepping Tips for Spring Outdoor Projects

(BPT) - Soon, winter will be winding down and homeowners will start planning - and prepping for - a variety of outdoor projects for spring. From cleaning, repairing or replacing decks, to creating raised beds for veggies and flowers, now is the time to start gearing up for those spring projects.

Cleaning up

Start with spring cleaning existing structures. Take a weekend to clean decks, gazebos and pergolas of dirt, debris, mold and mildew. For structures made of naturally durable Western Red Cedar, a broom, garden sprayer and hose, plus a little bleach are all you need.

Sweep winter debris such as twigs and leaves from decks, taking care to clean between planks on horizontal surfaces. This facilitates airflow and drainage, and can help prevent a buildup of moisture when spring showers arrive. Next, use a garden sprayer to apply a mild oxygen bleach solution to kill mold and mildew. Be sure to leave the bleach solution on the wood surface for approximately 30 minutes, and then rinse with water. Never use a pressure washer as it can damage the wood.

Maintenance and repair

Carefully inspect outdoor structures for wear and tear. While Western Red Cedar contains natural preservatives that make the wood durable, all outdoor structures require annual care, including those made of pressure-treated lumber or composites.

Check planks, beams and boards for cracking, warping or rough spots and repair accordingly. Replace damaged wood, and be sure to examine hardware to ensure it's working properly and free of rust.

New projects

If you've always dreamed about lounging on a lovely deck on a summer afternoon, or savoring a spring morning beneath the shade of a decorative pergola, now's the time to start planning the project.

A great deck is the showpiece of an inspired backyard, and spring is a prime time to add one. To ensure your deck affords you the most value and enjoyment, consider using an online deck planner to help you envision your deck before you begin building.

As gardening grows in popularity, you might consider adding raised planting beds to your landscaping. Raised beds not only make caring for and harvesting your garden easier - no bending required - they can also function as a decorative enhancement to your outdoor environment.

The material you choose will influence the longevity, beauty and enjoyment of your structure, so carefully consider your options before deciding.

"Many homeowners choose Western Red Cedar for its beauty and natural durability," says Paul Mackie, western area manager, Western Red Cedar Lumber Association, or "Mr. Cedar" as he is known in the industry. "It has a deep, rich luster that other woods and man-made materials just can't match. Plus, it's a greener choice because it's renewable and recyclable - unlike composites - and doesn't require chemical treatment as non-durable wood species do. It's naturally rot and insect resistant, and you can stain it or leave it natural, depending on your preference."

The green qualities and durability of Western Red Cedar make it a great choice for virtually any outdoor structure - including those popular wooden playsets that begin appearing like wildflowers in backyards across the country every spring.

Whatever project you're dreaming of this spring - from building a new deck, pergola, or planting beds to refurbishing an existing outdoor structure or playset - careful planning, cleaning, maintenance and the right materials can ensure your project adds value and beauty to your home environment. •

understandable and reasonable but not if the criticism is based on inaccurate or misleading information. Mr. Dugan ridiculed the Council and stated and inferred in the last series of answers that the The Lakes renovation will cost the city millions of dollars and make us less money than the current facility. This is absolutely not true and rubbish. In a public council meeting on November 5, that you can watch today on the internet, the accounting was presented in detailed fashion showing a net gain of $332,300 dollars a year and in addition to that a payback of $200,000 a year to the city fund which supported the The Lakes over the years because it wasn't able to pay its own bills. The early on opposition, which was about 40 people composed 95% of Manhattan Beach residents, dwindled down at the last meeting to a few still wildly misinformed and Mr. Dugan presenting his inaccurate accounting and stating he was against the project for which we learned later, in that same meeting, were personal desires based on more misinformation. To that point he was publically railed against in that meeting by one of the council members stating that his financial analysis was flawed and incorrect – and it was. The city manager, director of finance, the accounting department, the council and many residents involved in the year long process all know this. I and the city manager on multiple occasions offered to have him sit down with the city accounting department to go over the numbers. A one hour meeting would educate anyone on this. He never did it. He continues, to this day, to argue against this 22 Million dollar investment by a publically traded Real Estate Investment

Trust in our city land, creating a wonderful family facility, jobs and a fantastic amenity to our city. You can check the facts presented in the November meeting by going to www.ElSegundo.org and clicking "Videos" on the left side of the page, then "City Council Archives", then "View Video" on the "November 5, 2013" line on that page. Choose Item 3 on the video page for the start of the discussion. If you move to 2 hours 44 minutes and 30 seconds into the time line you'll hear figures I mentioned above. Anything can be written in these answers but you can check the truth. If you hear other outlandish claims please check the facts or call me or the city manager at city hall – my direct number is 310 364-3115.

Incumbent Council Member Suzanne Fuentes: I'd give the current Council a 'B'. The past two years have presented many challenges; Chevron negotiations, closed session legal issues, a leadership change and budget deficits.

Council has borrowed one-time monies with the intention but not the revenues to replace them.

Five Councilmembers serve, each with distinct personalities, philosophies and agendas; this diversity is beneficial for the City. The present Council is open to discussing issues and opportunities to arrive at resolutions and, overall, the Council members have been respectful and productive.

Consultant Mike Dugan

If I believed that all Council members were doing a good job I wouldn't be running. Our inability to control spending and the lack of transparency in our current City Council are issues that need to be addressed. The unethical action of some of the Council members to unseat Carl last May was a disgrace. We continue to pay high costs for services and benefits but I don't see the present Council helping the City Manager to get these costs under control. I'm also not pleased with the quality of some of the decisions the present Council is making around taxes, fees and imposing additional costs on residents.

The economics behind the Top Golf decision are clearly not in the best interest of the residents. This lease deal was made in closed door sessions without public input other than what was allowed during restricted open comment periods. The actions of some of the City Council will result in significantly less revenue for the City and significantly higher cost for residents. There was resistance from many residents to making the deal but some of the Council acted without seeking to resolve the differences and confirming forward looking economic comparisons of keeping The Lakes driving range verses granting a 50 year lease to CenterCal and Top Golf.

It is time for transparency in City government and informed fiscal decision making. It's time for a change in leadership. The Council needs to focus on the residents of El Segundo and their best interests.

Thank you Candidates! •

Invest in U.S. Savings Bonds This Tax Season

(BPT) - Millions of Americans get a refund on their taxes each year. If you are one of them, why not use part of your refund to save for the future with a Series I Savings Bond from the U.S. Department of the Treasury? You can invest as little as $50 in this affordable, safe

“Tax season can be a great time of year to build savings,” says Jerry Kelly, national director of the Treasury Department’s Ready, Save, Grow, campaign. “I encourage anyone who is due a tax refund to consider using part or all of their refund to grow their savings with U.S. Savings Bonds.”

and convenient savings option, which can help you meet your long-term savings goals and build a brighter future.

Turn your tax refund into savings.

If you would like to buy a savings bond with your tax refund, follow these steps:

1. Fill out Form 8888 - Complete this form to designate your desired dollar amount to buy paper Series I Savings Bonds or to deposit into your TreasuryDirect account.

2. Set up a TreasuryDirect Account - Although you can buy paper savings bonds with your tax refund, digital savings bonds are even easier to manage with an online TreasuryDirect account. For instructions on how to set up a TreasuryDirect account, visit www.treasurydirect.gov and click on the tip sheet and guided tour links.

3. Give paper savings bonds as a gift with tax refund dollars - You may use your tax refund to buy paper savings bonds as a gift to others. To do so, follow the specific instructions for Part II on Form 8888. The bonds will be mailed to you.

4. Buy digital savings bonds for yourself with tax refund dollars - Deposit an amount into your TreasuryDirect account by using Form 8888. Then access your TreasuryDirect account to buy savings bonds or other Treasury securities.

5. Give digital savings bonds as a gift with tax refund dollars - You may use your tax refund to give digital savings bonds as a gift to others. Deposit an amount into your TreasuryDirect account by using Form 8888. Then use your TreasuryDirect account to make a gift of this deposit. Resources that provide guidance on gifting savings bonds include a tip sheet, demo and video that can be found on www.treasurydirect.gov. To efficiently gift savings bonds to your child using your tax refund, open a TreasuryDirect account for your child within your own account.

Why Series I Savings Bonds?

Series I Savings Bonds currently offer an interest rate of 1.38 percent, and they’re exempt from state and local income taxes. What’s more, interest earnings may be exempt from federal income taxes when the earnings are used to pay for qualified higher education expenses.

I Bonds are long-term savings instruments that can help you save for a home, retirement, college tuition or other life goals. You must hold an I Bond for at least one year after it’s issued, but it’s best to hold it for at least five years to avoid any early redemption penalty. To learn more about the value of savings bonds, the Treasury Department’s Savings Bond Calculator will come in handy.

Save with savings bonds year-round

U.S. Savings Bonds are a good investment at tax time - or anytime. Payroll direct deposit through your employer is a convenient option for building a regular savings habit. Every pay day you can automatically contribute to your TreasuryDirect account and build your nest egg. To learn more about payroll direct deposit and Treasury securities, go to the Ready, Save, Grow, website at www.treasurydirect.gov/readysavegrow.

Gaia Space Telescope Prepares to Survey a Billion Stars

By Bob Eklund

Europe's billion-star surveyor Gaia is slowly being brought into focus. Once this space telescope starts making routine measurements, it will generate truly enormous amounts of data. To maximize the key science of the mission, only small 'cut-outs' centered on each of the stars it detects will be sent back to Earth for analysis.

Professor Gerry Gilmore, from the University of Cambridge and UK Principal Investigator for Gaia, said: "Seeing the first magnificent images from Gaia's UK-built billion-pixel camera first of all generates a huge vote of thanks to all those scientists and engineers who have worked so hard to make this happen. Second, it provides just a tiny taste of the excellence and challenges ahead, to turn Gaia data into human understanding of the Milky Way's origins. One substantial step for astronomy, one huge leap still to come."

Gaia was launched on December 19, 2013 and is orbiting around a virtual point in space called L2, 1.5 million kilometers from Earth.

Gaia's goal is to create the most accurate map yet of the Milky Way. It will make precise measurements of the positions and motions of about one percent of the total population of roughly 100 billion stars in our home galaxy to help answer questions about its origin and evolution.

UK participation in the mission is funded by the UK Space Agency and scientists and engineers from around the UK have played key roles in the design and build of Gaia.

Dr. Chris Castelli, Acting Director of Technology, Science and Exploration at the UK Space Agency, said: "Gaia is an important space mission for the UK; we've won around €80 million of contracts from the European Space Agency to build the spacecraft and are providing a state-of-the-art data center that will turn the mission's raw data into the largest stellar catalogue ever made."

Repeatedly scanning the sky, Gaia will observe each of its billion stars an average of 70 times each over five years. In addition to positions and motions, Gaia will also measure key physical properties of each star, including its brightness, temperature and chemical composition.

To achieve its goal, Gaia will spin slowly, sweeping its two telescopes across the entire sky and focusing the light from their separate fields simultaneously onto a single digital camera—the largest ever flown in space, with nearly a billion pixels.

While all one billion of Gaia's target stars will have been observed during the first six months of operations, repeated observations over five years will be needed to measure their tiny movements to allow astronomers to determine their distances and motions through space.

As a result, Gaia's final catalogue will not be released until three years after the end of the nominal five-year mission. Intermediate data releases will be made, however, and if rapidly changing objects such as supernovae are detected, alerts will be released within hours of data processing.

Eventually, the Gaia data archive will exceed a million gigabytes, equivalent to about 200,000 DVDs of data. The task of producing this colossal treasure trove of data for the scientific community lies with the Gaia Data Processing and Analysis Consortium, comprising more than 400 individuals at institutes across Europe. •

Medicare Advantage at Risk for Seniors and Disabled

(BPT) - Nearly 15 million seniors and people with disabilities are enrolled in a Medicare Advantage plan in this country. That number adds up to almost one third of the total Medicare population.

Some provisions in the new Affordable Care Act (ACA), if implemented, could jeopardize Medicare Advantage benefits for each and every one of those 15 million Americans.

While Medicare Advantage benefits have already been reduced, they now face additional fewer plans managing chronic conditions and fewer plans offering dental/vision coverage and enhanced wellness/fitness services.

Data from the Medicare Current Beneficiary Survey shows that Medicare Advantage plans continue to be a vital source of coverage for low-income and minority beneficiaries. For example, 31 percent of African-American Medicare beneficiaries and 38 percent of Hispanic beneficiaries were enrolled in Medicare Advantage plans, and 41 percent of Medicare cuts, as much as $200 billion dollars over the next 10 years. Seniors and the disabled are expected to bear the brunt of these cuts, reducing the benefits they receive.

“Medicare Advantage has allowed us to provide far better overall care to our patients,” says Dr. Donald Rebhun, HealthCare Partners medical director. “And that level of care is at risk if these additional cuts go through.”

According to the Coalition for Medicare Choices, Medicare Advantage is a health benefits program available to individuals who are 65 or older or those with permanent disabilities. The coverage is provided through private health plans rather than the government and is required to meet or exceed the standards set by the original Medicare program. In addition to hospital and physician coverage, Medicare Advantage plans often include other benefits such as prescription drug, vision, hearing, dental, fitness, mental health and management of chronic illness.

The proposed cuts could mean higher out-of-pocket costs, limited choice of doctors, beneficiaries with Medicare Advantage plans had annual incomes of less than $20,000.

These programs are particularly critical to the well-being of thousands of low-income individuals who may not qualify for Medicaid and would therefore lack access to chronic disease management services. Because of these cuts, out-of-pocket costs for seniors and individuals with disabilities could also rise and premium-free comprehensive drug coverage would be in jeopardy.

“Thanks to the funding we receive from our risk-based contracts, we have developed creative and innovative programs and services that have delivered better clinical outcomes. These cuts will directly impact the care we can provide to our patients,” says Rebhun.

If you or a loved one has a Medicare Advantage plan, take time to research the funding cuts and reimbursement changes. Make your voice heard and tell your federal and state representatives to stop further cuts and continue to protect your benefits. To reach your representatives, visit ProtectMyMA.com/Today.

The Original Rinaldi's Italian Deli a Winner

One of the area's prime lunchtime destinations for over a decade, celebrates 18 years in business. Rinaldi's Italian Deli offers some of the biggest, best and most original sandwich creations anywhere. These are the questions we asked Rinaldi's about their success.

Why do you think you have you been so successful?

We kept the original concept that Mike Rinaldi started off with offering good and quality product at affordable prices. Being both Mike and Billy are health conscious, we offer lean ground turkey, egg whites and grilled chicken options. Anyone who knows Boar's Head premium will appreciate that our deli meats like golden roasted turkey are very low in sodium and almost no fat.

How do you choose who to name your sandwiches after?

A lot of loyalists! Customers and companies who have been with us from day one! Some items are created because we like to eat what we make. An example is «That's It» one of our personal favorites.

Anything else that you think our readers would like to know.

With prices of beef, sugar and flour going up every year, we try to keep our prices low and our quality sandwiches substantial. We don't carry any artificial fillers products because we are conscientious and care about the people we serve.

We thank our loyal customers and new ones who are still discovering us. Thank you!! www.theoriginalrinaldis.com, 323 Main Street, El Segundo, 310-647-2860.

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Pets Without Partners

Large or small, adopt a “pet without a partner” and give a homeless pet a second chance in life.

Pebbles was intercepted along with her brother as their family was dropping them off at the shelter. We were told she is a Mastiff/American Bulldog mix. Pebbles is a very sweet and playful puppy who was born November 30, 2013. She gets along with all other dogs and loves children. She has discovered toys and love to toss them up in the air and run and chase them. Pebbles will make a great addition to any family that loves large-breed dogs and has time to spend properly training her. Pebbles will be spayed, is current on vaccinations, microchipped, and is fine with other dogs and with children.

Come and meet Racine and her litter of puppies. There are four males and one female pup in this litter. Mom Racine was pregnant in a high-kill shelter and was rescued before the puppies were born. The puppies are now 10 weeks old and ready for their forever homes. Racine and her puppies are current on vaccinations, microchipped, fine with other dogs, and would be best with children over 12 due to their small size. They will be neutered/spayed when they are of age.

Pebbles

Connor is beautiful fawn-colored Mastiff and a gem of a dog. He was born November 2007 and was given up after his family’s daughter was diagnosed with leukemia and their world was turned upside down. We can’t say enough good things about Connor. He loves everyone he meets, and he grew up with kids and is happy to have them in his family. Gentle, loving, sweet, calm, mellow and easygoing, Connor is fabulous in every way. He was raised as an inside dog, is totally housebroken and has very good house manners. Connor walks superbly on leash and just loves to be with you wherever you are, no matter what you are doing. He would be best placed as an only dog or with another large female dog--he is not cat-safe. Remember that at 125 pounds, Connor can eat fair amount of dog food, so keep this in mind when budgeting for a new family member. Connor is neutered, current on vaccinations, has had a dental, is de-wormed, microchipped

Team Kitten Rescue is an official charity of the Asics LA Marathon, March 8 and 9. Help us help homeless animals by supporting the team today! Check our website for details. And add a little love to your life with a new best friend when you adopt your purr-fect partner.

Arwen is a gorgeous little brown Tabby and

Arwen

Carmen is your girl! Carmen will sleep on the bed if you’d like and will just generally hang out wherever you are in the house. If you have a safe cat enclosure or an enclosed yard with cat-proof fencing, Carmen loves to roll in the grass and that’s when her playful side will come out. Carmen needs to be given time to adjust to a new place and new people. Once she is settled in she will ask for gentle pets from you, her new best friend.

These kittens/cats are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All of our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, de-wormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see our other kitties, please check our website at www.kittenrescue.org, or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Boulevard, #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Boulevard, just south of Manchester Avenue, and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Avenue, just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

white girl with soft, golden eyes. This sweet girl was rescued from death along with her four newborn kittens. Time brought healing and as Arwen began to put on weight, she also began to take an interest in life once again. Arwen will rub against your legs, winding about your feet with a playful youthfulness that is extremely endearing. She adores playing with toys that she can bat and swat at, nuzzling her face against them from time to time as well. Arwen would be best suited in a calm, quiet adult household where she can feel secure and safe.

Carmen is a stunning girl who will grace your home with her beauty. If you are looking for a sweet cat who is gorgeous to look at, won’t bother anyone or anything and gets along with any resident cats, then

Happy Tails

Best Friends, Popeye and Sam

We love a Happy Tail with a happy ending to the beginning of a new, wonderful life...

“I just wanted to take a second to update you on the wonderful, smart Popeye the Pug. He has been a wonderful addition to our family! He and Sam, our Belgian Malinois, have fallen in love with each other. She thinks he is the greatest thing ever and is not keen on letting him out of her sight.

“Popeye is incredibly smart and learns very quickly. We have not found it as hard as we thought to train a blind dog. He sits like a champ, has leaned to shake, and we are working on ‘down’ and hope to get him rolling over soon. He was the first to learn the doggie door once it was installed. He loves his walks and is off like a sprinter every time we head out for a walk.

“They make such an odd couple! But they would never notice--they truly love each other and could care less about the 40-pound difference. Popeye loves to walk under Sam or sometimes even stand under her as they scope out the activity in front of the house.

“You cannot even tell he is blind. Sometimes he misjudges a wall, but he just shakes it off and keeps on going.

“He is a great problem-solver (sometimes more so than we would like). He has figured out how to get up onto the cockpit of our boat from the cabin. Or before I closed in the stairs, he figured out how to climb around the baby gate. Or if you hide a treat under a couple dog beds, he will work on it ‘til he has got it all moved to get it. Or if you mess up the pillows on the sofa, he will work ‘til they are back to how he likes them--not what looks good! As you know he is our second blind dog, and we always tell people it is a non-issue! Just adopt and give them the love---Tim.”

When you adopt a pet without a partner, you will forever make a difference in their life and they are sure to make a difference in yours. •

Vistamar's Vikings Hit Quarter Finals

Photos by Shelley Kemp

The Vistamar Viking Soccer team started out last Tuesday, February 25th, with a 2-0 win over Milken Community to advance in CIF Division 7 Playoffs. The young Vikings then went on to play Buckley High School in the CIF Quarterfinals in which they won 4-0. The result of the CIF Semi-Final game on Tuesday will determine if the Vikings head to the CIF Final late this week, either Friday, March 7, or Saturday, March 8.

Freshman Reese Andrade (white jersey #27), vaults over Milken Community goalkeeper after a breakaway run.

Senior Defender Markus Heim, wedged between two Milken players, heads the ball away to safety.

Junior Goalkeeper Tyler Salem makes a flying save to keep Milken off the scoreboard.

Lacrosse Team Off to Good Start

Photos by Jon Barber

El Segundo High School now has a CIF lacrosse team playing an independent schedule this year before, hopefully, joining the Bay league in 2015.

Coach Brooks Roscoe says the team currently comprised of mostly Juniors and Freshmen will be joined by a strong eighth grade group next year and many more talented players in 2016 to launch what he hopes will be a top program in the Los Angeles area.

"The key to the sport", Coach Roscoe says, "is getting our younger ages out there playing so they're ready to go when they reach ninth grade."

Anybody interested in joining El Segundo youth programs, boys or girls, should email Brooks at brooks.roscoe@mail.com.
