Space Force Guardian Gives Insight to El Segundo Base

By Kiersten Vannest

Across from El Segundo’s quaint downtown and tree-lined residential streets, a complement of business complexes and aerospace companies make up the eastern border. This is where the Los Angeles Air Force Base makes its home and where the United States Space Force in part develops its technology.

One such developer is South Bay native First Lieutenant Oscar Chacon. Chacon’s official title for the United States Space Force (USSF) is Product Manager of the Space Tasking Cycle Portfolio Team. He works for Space and Missile Systems Center (SMC) in El Segundo, under the Cross Mission Ground Directorate. All that to say: he builds apps and technology used by the Space Force.

Chacon was born in Wilmington, California, near Long Beach, and grew up in Palos Verdes. As a kid, soccer was his passion, and he dreamed he’d be a doctor, largely because of his desire to help other people. When it came time for college, he applied to the pre-med track at a number of colleges and was pursuing an athletic scholarship for soccer. It was during this recruiting process that the Air Force Academy reached out to him.

Being able to play soccer and ultimately serve in the U.S. Air Force drew him to the school, which he attended in Colorado until graduation in 2018. Given the opportunity to fly, code, and explore many careers before declaring a major, Chacon went for a business degree.

“If you had asked me in high school, ‘where will you be when you’re 24 years old?’ I would not have been able to tell you that,” says Chacon.

Space Force is a relatively new wing of the Department of Defense. It was established in December of 2019. Its official mission reads: The USSF is a military service that organizes, trains, and equips space forces in order to protect U.S. and allied interests in space and to provide space capabilities to the joint force.

Members of Space Force are called Space Guardians. While Chacon couldn’t give specifics on what missions the USSF is working on currently for security reasons, he was able to explain who his work benefits and why.

Lt. Chacon’s team interviews Space Operators. These are members who track and manage all space assets (all U.S.-owned satellites, antennas, missiles, rockets, etc.), as well as communications in space and from ground-based radars. Imagine the room filled with computers and screens and maps you’ve seen in movies about space. That’s what Space Operators do.

Sometimes, the technology used to track and share data from all of these assets is not as advanced as the technology on the assets themselves.

El Segundo Native Plant Enthusiasts Foster Sustainability

By Duane Plank

As we enter year two of the pandemic lockdown, people worldwide have had to find ways to cope with the COVID-19 scourge as they have been virtually closeted in their residences for more than 12 months.

Some have turned to binge-watching their favorite shows from the safety of their couch; others have developed an avid interest in cooking and baking; while some people have decided to dust off a few of their unread books that have been gathering dust on a bookshelf and turning a few pages and others may have visited the local liquor store or cannabis dispensary more frequently.

And then there are the members of the El Segundo Native Plant Society (ESNPS), many of whom have used the enforced extra “home-time” to increase their love of all things plant-related.

Leonard Koike, an El Segundo resident who, by trade, is a local aerospace engineer, has lived here for the past ten years. He said that he was drawn to settle in our city, mainly because of his employment site’s proximity.

Koike said that he bought a local home seven years ago, and, about that time, the county was offering rebates to homeowners who would “pull-out” their lawn and replace the green (or somewhat brown)

Barbara Celeste Ernest

Barbara Celeste Ernest, April 11, 1928-March 17, 2021. Our beloved mother, grandmother, aunt, cousin, friend and neighbor, passed away on one of her favorite holidays – St. Patrick’s Day. Barbara was born in Los Angeles to Annah Moran and US Army recruiter Henry Moran. She was proud of being an LA girl from John C. Fremont High School who loved LA sunshine and its beaches. She was predeceased by both parents and all of her siblings – Lenora Moran, Henry Moran, Jr., Rosemary Moran, Doreen Riddle, and Jacquelyn Silliman. Barbara met her future husband, Virgil Ernest, at the US Naval Station in China Lake, CA where he was stationed as a Marine and she was working as a civil servant, marrying in 1948. Besides finding each other, they made lifelong friends during their time there as well as at Cal Poly SLO where they lived for four happy years. Then this LA city girl became a farmer’s wife in Tulare CA. Along the way, Barbara and Virgil became parents to ten children. She always said that her life’s goal was to have a large family, and she sure did. Family connections were most important to her.

sure her children were going to “know their cousins.” Vacations almost always involved visiting family members around the US. She especially loved Hawaii! Through all of these events and travels, she always had a camera at hand and painstakingly created photo albums of them all, thereby leaving her descendants a huge photographic record of her/their lives.

This LA girl returned to the South Bay when she and Virgil moved to El Segundo in 1966 where she worked as a bookkeeper/office manager for several local businesses. Barbara was a faithful parishioner at St. Anthony Catholic Church, where her children attended school, and was honored a few years ago by the parish for her many years of devotion.

Barbara passed away at her home where all ten of her children had gathered. She is survived by sons Don (Deb), Dave (Laurie), Dana (Linda), Devin (Stacey), Dan (Mari) and daughters Deborah, Dorinda (Paul), Drucilla (Greg), Deirdre (Jim), Dulcie (Sheldon), as well as 28 grandchildren and 25 great grandchildren. Additionally, she opened her home to extended family members and friends over the years. She was a role model for many in how to live a joyful life of integrity, service, tolerance and unconditional love and had the strongest work ethic and amount of energy, even into her last years. She will be missed by many.

People always knew where Barbara was because she could be heard laughing, talking, or singing. She loved organizing family events and designing projects for home improvements. Everything was a subject for a party, even “work parties” where huge numbers of family members would gather at someone’s home and spend the day working on home improvements, all organized by Mom, while at the same time telling stories and laughing. Also, she claimed to be the instigator of the Ernest family reunions where she made

Due to COVID-19, memorial/funeral arrangements are on hold. Final resting place will ultimately be beside her husband at Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery, Culver City. Donations can be made in her name to two organizations near and dear to her - Children’s Hospital of Los Angeles and the American Red Cross. • cinematic achievements of Ad Astra, Arrival, and Shutter Island, among others. And now, it’s Max’s turn to step into the spotlight as the star of his own feature film, Max Richter’s Sleep, now streaming on MUBI.

Directed by Natalie Johns, Max Richter’s Sleep is an arresting look at the infamous performance of his celebrated eight-hour ambient opus “Sleep” at an open-air concert in Los Angeles. Together with his creative partner Yulia Mahr, the documentary explores the genesis of the complex piece, as well as the relationship that his fans have developed to it after spending the night under the stars while Max and company performed it live.

Max Richter’s Sleep is not only a groundbreaking composition but also a massively overwhelming physical performance. Running eight hours long (his original performance—not the doc) the “Sleep” composition consists of 204 classical movements and was composed in consultation with American neuroscientist and meditation.” As the world seems to be swinging from one disastrous news event to the next, Max Richter’s Sleep aims to unite all who watch in a collective moment of musical reflection. •

Eagles Stumble in Losses

By Gregg McMullin

It was a tough week for the Eagles. The baseball team lost two nail bitters and a forgettable game. The football team was decimated by injuries and was blown out while the girls' cross country team ran short-handed. On a brighter note, the softball team opened up with a win, and the boys cross country ran to victory.

Baseball Team Drops Three

The Eagles played flawless defense against Bishop Montgomery, but the bats were silenced in their 1-0 loss to the Knights. On a miserable cold and windy afternoon, both pitchers took advantage of the elements. The Eagles sent Jake Stolnack to the mound, and the crafty right-hander kept the Knights off balance. He gave up one unearned run on three hits, no walks, and struck out two. The Eagles were baffled by the Knight's Derek Murphy's pitch selection. Kenny Chung broke up Murphy's perfect game in the fifth inning

Eagles fell 10-9.

The 7-0 loss to Torrance will be one to forget. Nothing seemed to mesh on defense, and the offense was again shutdown. El Segundo pitchers including Kenny Chung, Brady Engelhardt, Trevor Steel and Josh Zarneki threw well enough to combine for a win. Together they gave up seven unearned runs on six hits and two walks. Rafael Smith broke up Torrance's Cory Nunez's perfect game in the fifth inning with a single to right field; Brendan McAndrews and Kenny Chung had the other two hits for El Segundo.

The Eagles played host to Peninsula on Tuesday and travel to Redondo tonight. The Eagle's next home game is Tuesday, April 6, when they host Bishop Montgomery at 6 p.m.

It was a solid first game for the Lady Eagles. Head coach Megan McCann was pleased with her team's season opener. "Bailey (Gertsch) hit her spots, and the defense played well behind her." El Segundo faced Mira Costa on Tuesday evening and travel to Culver City today at 3:15 p.m.

The Vikings countered with six runs of their own to cut El Segundo's lead to 9-8. In the sixth inning, Santa Monica took advantage of one hit, two walks, and three wild pitches to score two runs and take a 10-9 lead. In the seventh, Sapanza led off with a single, but he was stranded at third base when the next three hitters went in order, and the

So, Chacon speaks with them, figures out which processes are taking unnecessary time and hours, and comes back to his team to develop an application that can streamline the process. His job makes everyone else's job faster and easier.

During the pandemic, these interviews have to be conducted via secure video calls, which Chacon says has been the most difficult part of his job. Typically, he'd get to talk to the Operators in person, see where they work, and get a better understanding of what his team should be building for them. However, post-pandemic, he believes this innovation in communication will ultimately aid Space Force, saying that being able to call instead of travel with every update can help with things like previewing prototypes.

Growing up in the South Bay and playing soccer, Chacon is very familiar with the area. In El Segundo, he says, the base has strong ties with the local community. Everyone on the base lives nearby and frequents El Segundo parks, restaurants, and attractions often.

"As a military member, it's easy to get stationed in a new city and feel alone or isolated," he says, "I've never felt that here. And my buddies who come from out of town definitely love living here, too." Since being stationed in El Segundo, Chacon has joined a recreational soccer league. He has friends who've joined local basketball teams or worked as coaches for local sports teams as a way to give back and interact with the community. They work often, he says, with the parks and recreation department to coordinate events and work with the city. The Chamber of Commerce has said that they will celebrate the birthday of Space Force with the base this year. He frequents restaurants like Rock & Brews and travels to other entities in the area like Boeing and the LA Kings to learn and make connections.

In the future, Chacon hopes to go to grad school. He hopes to expand his team in the Force. Mostly, he plans to continue completing his assignments to the best of his ability, knowing that his work directly affects the USSF and, ultimately, American citizens. This ability to help other people is what keeps him motivated every day at his job. As for El Segundo, he hopes that Space Force will continue to be the best neighbor it can be and that residents feel comfortable asking questions.

"We love answering questions," Chacon says, "because it, in turn, allows you to understand better what we're doing." Knowing that Space Force very much wants to be a part of the community, he encourages residents to reach out if there are any events or programs, they'd like Space Force to participate in.

Being the first in his family to join the Air Force or the military at large was exciting. Being part of the first generation of Space Force Guardians is even more exciting.

"I think at the moment," he concludes, "we sometimes don't realize how amazing or how big these milestones really are. But, when we're older, I'm going to be telling my grandkids that I was one of the first Space Force Members." • lawns with “low tolerant plants.” The county was offering “about two-dollars a square foot, if I recall,” Koike said. He banked about $4,000 bucks for changing-out his sod for environmentally friendly plants.

Soon, Koike, prompted by his sister, an environmentalist and landscape architect, enrolled in an introductory Theodore Payne Native Plant class. After attending a few classes, Koike realized that “I was totally hooked.” He worked with a local landscaper who helped him select both native and non-native plants for his yard, but said Koike, “I was pulling out all the non-native plants and replacing them with native plants.”

The ESNPS primarily disseminates information through their Facebook group, which has more than 35 members. Koike said that when the group started picking-up followers, there was not a plethora of information available about native plants, but with the advancements in social media, especially in the COVID era, more information has become available, with native plant videos dotting YouTube.

So how do you find out which plants are native to El Segundo? Well, I accessed the calscape.org website, typed in my address, and- boo -a list, with photos, of more than 300 native plants popped-up. They included California Buckwheat, Fremont Cottonwood, and Blue-Eyed Grass.

Koike met fellow native plant proponent Nadine Currimjee-Quane through a social media post when she rallied native plant enthusiasts to meet at her house, view her native plant offerings, and discuss their shared passion.

Currimjee-Quane is currently quarantining outside of the United States but keeps close tabs on her El Segundo native plants’ progress surrounding her domicile. She lamented the fact that normally, at this time of the year, with the advent of Spring, “we would be seeing some quite beautiful blooms,” but that the parched rain conditions in Southern California have delayed the blossoming.

Currimjee-Quane has been an El Segundo resident for more than a decade. Once she moved to El Segundo, she said she noticed that her property had been adversely affected by the continuing drought, including a precipitous amount of soil erosion that was impacting her property, as well as her neighbor’s acreage. She said she tried to figure out what to do, landscaping-wise, and joined the California Native Plant Society to research differing alternatives to landscaping her property.

She finally prevailed upon “a friend of a friend” to help her build back the foliage of her property. She was adamant about incorporating native plants into her new landscaping design. Not an easy task, because the availability of El Segundo native plants is problematic, as are the vagaries of the neighbors watering systems, moisture in the air, and soil salt content. She said it was “a really interesting journey. Slowly but surely, (plants) died, plants lived.” All the while, she continued her studious research of native plants.

She then crossed paths with Koike. She took a UCLA course on plant sustainability and soon learned of the iconic El Segundo blue butterfly and how the butterfly was death spiraling towards a possible path to extinction. She researched and deigned that a specific strain of native buckwheat was key to propagating and sustaining the nourishment needed to keep the blue butterfly majestically floating in the air.

Currimjee-Quane said that when researching what type of plants to place surrounding her home, drought-tolerant plants were emphasized, which helps with the water usage, but not necessarily native plants. Continued research evoked the info that the smaller the plant, the better: she also mentioned that some very well-intentioned resident gardeners have killed-off native plants by over-watering them. “Something that doesn’t look ‘too good,’ does not (necessarily) need water,” she said. Who knew? She also volunteered that the death knell to many budding plants can occur when they get “peed on” by dogs or that birds, caterpillars, pesky bugs, and other forms of long-existent nature can attack plant life. While also noting the inordinate number of crows in the environs of El Segundo, who swoop down from their perches and “hunt the eggs of birdies who lay eggs in our garden,” breaking the eco-systems long-term sustainability nourishment chain.

Back to Koike. One of the reasons he has developed a passion for native plants is that “it benefits wildlife.” Koike said that because of the specific plants that he has planted, his yards attract a plethora of diverse wildlife, including lizards, frogs, and “a ton of different birds. That is what I like about it,” he said. “I feel that I am helping sustain the wildlife (eco-system) and helping sustain the wildlife of some of these endangered animals.”

Koike is touted as having a “gorgeous garden.” He was generous enough, along with his wife, to allow a writer to meander through his front and back yards on a recent sun-splashed Saturday morning to get a rudimentary education on El Segundo native plants. Koike pointed-out the native plant-life and wildlife surrounding his home, including California sagebrush, which supports the feasting of local insects, with bees a-buzzing. He also noted the plant that sustains the eco-system that supports the El Segundo blue butterfly, which is a strain of buckwheat.

Said Koike: “If that plant didn’t exist, then the beloved blue butterfly wouldn’t exist,” because the caterpillar that eventually morphs into the blue butterfly “can’t eat anything else.” Hummingbirds were flitting in-and-out of his yards, searching for pliant insects who would provide them with the nectar that they need for their sustenance and to keep them able to beat their wings more than 50 times a second amazingly.

“This is our garden; we love to spend a lot of time out here,” Koike said. He related that he enjoys relaxing on his backyard deck with a camera and snapping pictures of the exotic birds that frequent his domain, and post the photos on social media.

Next, we wandered down the street and around the corner and dropped-in on Sueanne Shimon as she was tending to her budding native plant front garden.

Shimon’s front yard is evolving, with her efforts in year one still focusing on irrigation and fighting the ever-present battle of conquering weeds.

Shimon, a six-year resident of El Segundo, said that Koike heavily influenced her to pursue the native plant landscaping route. “It was good timing,” she said, noting that when she had moved to her current residence a few years ago, a complete remodel was in order, which necessitated the removal of all of the at-the-time landscaping, which left her and her husband “a blank slate” to look at alternatives from re-sodding with the typical grass. Koike and Shimon were work officemates and, and he touted the wonder of native plants to her. Shimon said she was intrigued by native plants, because they naturally flourished in local environs and tended to thrive without an overabundance of fertilization, chemicals, or watering, which limits genetic modification. Because Shimon lives in what she terms “a visible location” in El Segundo, she did not want her newly remodeled digs to be fronted by an “eyesore,” initially featuring “bare dirt,” so she eagerly embraced the planting of natives.

“It doesn’t take much to get started,” Shimon said. “The beauty of native plants is that they will naturally thrive, with very little prompting, because they are truly native to the conditions,” and have, over the years, adapted to their environment. “When you meet the minimum conditions” to cultivate native plants, she said, “you are setting yourself up for success. And that is the fun part. You have minimal pests, minimal watering, and a lot of the plants are drought tolerant.”

Barbara Boland is another local resident who touts the benefits of native planting. “As’ native plant’ gardeners, we strive to bring our local natural world back into our gardens, a supply chain for our native insects and birds,” Boland emailed.

“When we moved into our house almost three years ago, there were only stones for a front yard,” Boland said. “Now there is a verdant garden. I have planted mostly native plants which attract birds, hummers, butterflies and bees. Our local garden center,

Selection of El Segundo Native Plants.

International Garden Center, is a good place for a start. There are sections for native plants, particularly perennial salvias, and sages, which hummingbirds and others love!

“During the covid shut down of schools,” Boland continued, “local day teachers have brought their individual students to my garden to educate, observe our seasonal changes, slugs, insects and more.”

Currimjee-Quane aspires to have locals “plant something that will create a corridor for native birds and bugs to survive in and attract butterflies. Dedicate an area of your garden to native plants. (That) makes you aware of pollution, rainfall, drought conditions. It makes you more in-tune with what is going on with nature, our environment.

“Being in the garden and sticking your hand in the soil,” she said, “is excellent for mental health, especially in the time of COVID. We can build these green corridors for the survival of bugs, and birds, caterpillars, and butterflies. I think that is what people love.”

A noble aspiration, indeed, in these unsettled times. •

his first year would be a test. Preparing for a season beset with a pandemic made it even more of a challenge. It didn't help that a program that has been so successful and had as many as seventy players making up three levels was reduced to 57 players for two levels, including just ten seniors. So facing a perennial powerhouse such as North Torrance would be another obstacle to overcome in an abbreviated season.

Before the game against North, Coach Green was faced with another dilemma. Three starters were declared out for the game due to injuries and would be forced to replace them. Then during the game, eight more players were injured and came out of the game for extended periods. It led to the Eagles getting shutout for just the tenth time in the last 18 seasons.

North took advantage of Eagle turnovers and converted them into scores. Penalties by both teams marred an otherwise mistake-filled game on both sides. It was the injuries to El Segundo players that doomed the Eagles. Matt Kusserow, Cooper Dolan, Damien Garcia, Wyatt Burnett, Jason McGowan, Mason Kahn, Duke Sanders, and backup quarterback Leonel Menendez all suffered game-ending injuries. The status of each is day-to-day, and it was unknown who would be ready to play Friday night.

In the lopsided loss Coach Green saw some positives come out of the game. "With so many injuries, the backups got a ton of valuable snaps and got game-time experience."

The Eagles return home Friday night at 7 p.m. to face Torrance. Prior to the game, the seniors will be honored on Senior Night.

Garrell Leads Cross Country Team to Victory

In the final cross country meet of the year the Eagles edged South Torrance at home. For just the second time in decades El Segundo hosted the meet that went smoothly with the course run entirely on school property on a sun-drenched cool morning.

Will Garrell capped his senior season with a blistering 15:10 time in a race that he led from start to finish. Marcus Ortiz, another senior, ran a solid race kicking it in on mile two and finished third. Lucas Romero, Nasai Rivas, Luke Harrell, Daniel Pop and Jeff Antel filled out the roster and will all return in the fall for the Eagles.

On the girls side Ami Jacobson led a depleted cross country team that included three freshmen a sophomore and three juniors. The others were Kaitlin Pintens, Ainsley Gulden, Kristin Begeman, Kiera O'Keefe, Julianna Guzman and Deirdre Elliot. •

Michael Wilson stops North running back Toa Ortega for a short gain as #5 Kahiel Flores-Cumming and #2 Justin Gil close in.

Marcus Ortiz capped a solid cross country career by finishing third in 15:57

Featured Pets of the Week

Provided by Hannah Collett, spcaLA

Shadow is an independent and easy-going 5 year old male, domestic medium hair cat. He's lived with another cat before, so he might do well with a cat of the same temperament. He's a small guy who enjoys being pet, and he's a purr machine. Adopt Shadow! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-01785>

Vera is a young 5 year old pit bull girl, who is gentle, sweet, and demonstrates social behavior. She's looking for a quiet home where she can relax and be your best companion ever! Vera would appreciate all your attention as the only pet. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-01280>

This dapper gentleman is Louie Bear. He is a 7 year old male Shih Tzu mix with a soft grey and white coat. Louie Bear enjoys playtime, especially if there are treats involved. If you are looking for a buddy that will keep you company, look no further. Apply for Louie Bear today! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-01858>

Oreo is a 5 year old male Chihuahua mix. Oreo is sensitive fella who shows social behaviors with our trainers. He is beginning to explore and adjust to the shelter. He is a cautious dog who needs patient and mature companions to help him blossom. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-01904> •

Happy Tails

It's a happy adoption for Peppa! She is a 6 year old Staffordshire Terrier mix that has been in and out of the spcaLA South Bay Pet Adoption Center since September of 2020. While she is a smart and sweet girl, at 55 pounds, she is a larger dog, and best suited to be the only pet in the home.

It was important to find the right home for Peppa. On February 28, 2021 she found her forever home with a family with two kids to keep her company. Congratulations to Peppa and her new family! If the time is right for you to adopt, visit the spcaLA website at spcala.com. •

Congratulations to Peppa and her new family.
