City Council Considers Stricter Water Conservation Requirements

By Brian Simon

In the wake of California's continuing drought that has reached historic severity and the Governor's recent executive order to reduce water consumption, El Segundo residents will be asked to further conserve their own usage of the precious commodity. During Tuesday night's City Council meeting, Public Works Director Stephanie Katsouleas presented a series of staff recommendations to beef up El Segundo's existing water conservation ordinance from 2009 to align the City with State requirements set to be approved in early May and go into effect on June 1.

While the State Water Resource Control Board called for measures to cut water usage by 25 percent overall, the reduction goal won't be applied evenly across California. Reduction ranges will be set from 10 to 35 percent depending on a particular city's existing consumption patterns. With that in mind, El Segundo residents will be asked to cut water usage by 20 percent—based on an average consumption allocation of 55 gallons per day (equal to four units per person per billing cycle) to meet basic indoor needs. El Segundo residences averaged 95.4 gallons per day according to the most recent statistics, with landscape and irrigation usage accounting for the overage.

Staff-recommended municipal code updates include limiting outdoor watering to two days per week. El Segundo's current water ordinance restricts the time (may be done between 5 p.m. and 9 a.m. only) and duration (15 minutes per station) of watering, but not how many days per week it can take place. Katsouleas asked the Council to consider designating specific days for all residents to water, but the group was reluctant to impose a set calendar. Mayor Suzanne Fuentes preferred to "leave it up to the people" and avoid a police enforcement scenario. "If we tell them [residents] they need to conserve, they will," she said. Councilmember Mike Dugan thought it more sensible to spread out watering dates, as people may end up oversaturating their lawns if restricted to two days.

Another suggested code change is to limit landscape watering 48 hours before or after predicted rainfall. The City ordinance currently only restricts watering during actual rainfall. This item didn't sit well with Mayor Pro Tem Carl Jacobson, who questioned how anyone can accurately predict when it's going to rain. Fuentes added that some residents don't know how to turn off their sprinklers (that may be on timer systems). She suggested encouraging residents to follow the 48-hour guideline, but not to make it a requirement.

Other proposed revisions include completely prohibiting washing down driveways and sidewalks (local residents can do so now as long as the water doesn't reach the storm drain); not allowing watering of landscape medians with ornamental turf unless using recycled water; and revising the building code to allow only drip irrigation or microspray for landscaping of newly constructed homes.

West Basin Municipal Water District Associate General Manager Fernando Paludi touched upon conservation incentives such as available rebates for removing turf (recently increased to $3 per square foot) and for exchanging old sprinklers for new smart controllers that sense weather conditions. The agency will promote these and other options. "When armed with information, they [water consumers] tend to do the right thing," Paludi said.

Meanwhile, Dugan emphasized the idea of reducing consumption "in a creative way—not in a policing way" so that the end result isn't simply "shutting water off and killing landscaping." He also thought the City ought to look into the future viability of recycled water and grey water systems. Earlier during public communications, Tree Musketeers Executive Director Gail Church reminded the Council that El Segundo is home to the nation's largest water recycling plant (West Basin's facility on Hughes Way) and yet that water is not available for residential landscaping. "Recycled water is the long-term answer to a green El Segundo," she said. Church also maintained that "everyone needs a plan for

El Segundo High School Talent Show 2015

By Cece Stewart, Sophomore at ESHS

On Thursday, April 16, I attended El Segundo High School's talent show, which was hosted by the ESHS Drama Club. The performers had to be chosen: not just anyone can be in the talent show, so the performers are all incredibly talented and passed the tests to make the show. The show was hosted by seniors Zac Keller and Sarah Hansford. They would banter with each other in between acts, and were quite funny. They opened the show with a "Prologue Rap." However, this rap used the song "Ice Ice Baby," and was performed by teachers dressed in gold chains to look like rappers, including Mr. Lubs and Mr. Glotz, and they were hilarious in their attempt to seem like rappers.

The first contestant was Rachel Wang, who performed a beautiful song on the grand piano, center stage. She is absolutely amazing. Next, a very confident girl, Marley Armstrong, sang a jazzy blues song. She was exuberant in her performance, and I aspire to be as confident as she. After her, Thomas Daroca played an instrument I had never heard of before - the Jaw Harp. He was dressed as Woody from Toy Story in his cowboy hat and clothes. In the background, pictures of Toy Story were being shown in a slide show. I first noticed this when he came dressed as a cowboy, and the background was blue with white clouds, and I knew I recognized it. Then, I realized it was from Toy Story and I put it all together.

After him, an incredible act by Justin Bobbs and Nate Vinzon performed. They did a dance act where they acted as a puppet and a puppeteer. They wore white masks, which made the performance more mysterious. I cannot put into words how amazing the performance was, but I could not look away. After them, a "boy band," including Bryce Schott, James Dahl, and Steven Moody performed a song they wrote. Steven played the base, James played the guitar, and Bryce played the electric guitar. It was amazing that they could create such incredible music. In the middle of the song, James played the trumpet, which was unexpected, making the song even better.

Thereafter, my personal favorite of the night Jonathan Williams, also known as the yo-yo king, did an extreme yo-yo act. It was the coolest thing I've ever seen; and I know cool is not quite the best vocabulary I could use, but it is the best word to describe his performance. I cannot use a yo-yo regularly, but the things he could do with the yo-yo were amazing. He will surely be in the yo-yo Olympics. After that, there was a "Seniors Girls' Dance." The name of this act was not quite how it played out, though. There were two girls dressed as guys, and they lip-synched songs by boy bands. Then, another girl came out dressed as a rapper, and lip-synched the rap perfectly. After these acts and some banter between Zac and Sarah, it was intermission.

The second session began with a "Teacher Dance." Three of the Spanish teachers sang and danced to a song in Spanish. They were honestly one of the best acts, and it was hilarious. After that, Asia McGlover sang beautifully, and everyone in the audience was in awe. Then, Danielle Martinez and Dwayne Polk performed a dance number. They both had customized shirts, and their dance was great. One of the best parts about this performance was watching Dwayne's family yell and cheer. It was so sweet to see how into it they were. Then, a musical prodigy, Tom Flores, played the piano. He was incredible. He could move his fingers so quickly but so beautifully. After this, Amore Angiano and Sam McKinney performed. Amore played the guitar, and Sam sang. Amore is honestly the best guitarist I have ever observed in my life, and he accompanied Sam's voice perfectly. The last performer was Sean Szetho in "Live Looping." It was an interesting act. He would make noises, record them, and replay them while on stage. He would do that over and over again until it sounded complete. After that, Sarah came to say the show is over, but then she said that there was one more, unplanned act. Zac, the other host, came out using an accent and a different name. He said he was going to break a brick with his head, and he succeeded. Terrifying.

When all the performances were complete, all the contestants were called to the stage, and the winners were announced. Third

Nick Kroll and Friends Grow Up in Adult Beginners

By Ryan Rojas for CINEMACY

Opening at the ArcLight Hollywood this Friday is Adult Beginners, an adult-aimed comedy about struggling thirtysomethings trying to embrace and make sense of newfound grown-up living. It's light-hearted fare and an easy watch that will effortlessly entertain young audiences with its humor and heart. Just don't go into it expecting it to add anything new to the genre.

The film stars Nick Kroll as Jake, a young jerky entrepreneur seen living the good life

With no other options, Jake leaves New York to temporarily move in with his estranged and very pregnant sister Justine (Rose Byrne), brother-in-law (Bobby Cannavale) and three year old nephew. As a Big City transplant in the small-town suburbs, Jake prolongs his stay, becoming their "manny," looking after the kid with the hopes of grounding himself and figuring out next step. At this point, the movie leans into the comic hijinks of seeing Jake's self-centered sleazeball so hilariously taking care of the kid ensuing in the sort of generalities of a kid being looked after by a bigger kid that you might expect.

Adult Beginners works fine with the gimmicky laughs of Kroll as Jake so ineptly skilled at taking care of a kid. He wheels the kid to the park in a suitcase-as-stroller and hits on the single mothers. It's all fine, quippy banter, but the movie is more or less saved by its complimenting and watering trees"—since grass can come back relatively quickly, but it can take "30 years to get new trees."

Before the Council makes a final ruling on the potential code updates, the City Attorney will first determine if the items in question must be imposed according to State mandate or can simply be local policy calls. Staff will come back in the coming weeks with a draft ordinance for consideration. While the State can issue cease and desist orders as well as impose hefty fines on cities for non-compliance, Katsouleas said she does not believe El Segundo is in danger of such action given its exemplary recycled water record (over half of all water used in town is recycled, with Chevron the primary user). She described El Segundo as the "poster child for the whole state for what water conservation should be."

Also on Tuesday, the Council approved another expansion of the permit parking zone in residential sections on the east side of town to alleviate the negative impacts of Sepulveda business employees who leave their cars in adjacent neighborhoods. Permit parking areas will now also include the 1400 and 1500 blocks of Maple Avenue, 700 block of California Street and 700 block of Washington Street. The City recently received signed petitions from a majority of residents on those streets favoring implementation. In voting for the item, Councilmember Dave Atkinson remarked that "residents here should have the right to park in front of their house." Realizing that the City can't force existing employers to provide parking, Councilmember Marie Fellhauer suggested to expand the current permit zone even further—since residents on other blocks will almost certainly make the request in the future anyway. Dugan felt that the latest Council move only treats the symptoms but not the root of the problem. He asked if the City can require employee parking provisions as part of future business permits issued in the area. Fellhauer said the City must strike a careful balance in setting any such regulations so as not to push a large business away from coming to town.

During Council reports, Jacobson received his colleagues' blessing to send a letter in support of Senate Bill 485 that would allow the Sanitation District of Los Angeles County to assist local jurisdictions in stormwater and dry weather runoff management projects. Fuentes asked staff to look into the process of establishing a committee to pave the way for El Segundo to have its own float during the 2017 Rose Parade—in celebration of the City's 100th anniversary. •

Lakers Season Ends How It Began

By Adam Serrao

Losing. That's what the Lakers did best during the 2014-2015 NBA season that ended last Wednesday night with a 122-99 loss to the Sacramento Kings at Staples Center in Los Angeles. Not only did the Lakers finish off their worst season in franchise history with 61 losses on the year, but the team also lost their rookie Julius Randle to injury and lost Kobe Bryant once again: the Lakers even lost at winning this year. It was a rough year for fans of the Lakers and for the team itself, which lost its first five games of the season back in late October and early November. With another three-game losing streak to close out the season, the Lakers finished the season just the way it began, leaving everyone to wonder whether or not there is any hope for the future of this once prestigious franchise at all.

"There's nowhere to go but up for the Lakers now, though last year we thought it couldn't possibly get any worse when the Lakers finished at 27-55."

With golden championship banners hanging from the rafters and all of the glitz and glamour of Hollywood that surrounds, a Los Angeles Lakers team of nobodies and cast-offs finished off the regular season dressed in purple and gold. Almost as if it was Halloween all over again, faces that were almost unrecognizable donned the purple and gold once worn by all-time greats and Hall of Famers like Magic Johnson, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Wilt Chamberlain. My, how these Lakers have come a long way. Magic and the Showtime Lakers could have won 21 games with their hands tied behind their backs and blindfolded, just to bring the crowd to their feet in an ovation once again. Well, this year there weren't many ovations at the Staples Center and what was left of the crowd at Staples Center was rarely brought to its feet, if ever. At least, for now, it's over. The optimism that inevitably comes with every Lakers offseason can now begin anew as fans dream of what the team may possibly look like next year.

"It obviously doesn't sit well with me," said head coach Byron Scott, who was hired on to coach a team that he knew would be bad. "I don't like the sound of that," he said referring to the 16-time NBA championship franchise's worst season ever in the history of its existence. "But it also makes for a remarkable story when we turn this around as well." There's nowhere to go but up for the Lakers now, though last year we thought it couldn't possibly get any worse when the Lakers finished at 27-55. With a 21-win season this year, not only did the Lakers get worse, but they also missed the playoffs for the second consecutive year for the first time since 1976 - the team's worst two-year stretch in all 67 seasons of existence. "It's embarrassing, but tough times build character," said Lakers forward Ryan Kelly. Tough times for the Lakers used to be missing the NBA Finals, not finishing as the fourth worst team in the league.

In order to get better, you have to get worse, to look at things optimistically. It's hard to believe that just five years ago, in 2010, the Lakers won their last championship. It's also hard to believe, however, that they will be back to anywhere near that same type of championship caliber anytime soon. Expect to see a completely different roster once again, though. The only players contractually guaranteed to be back are Bryant, Nick Young, Randle and Kelly. Say goodbye to Jeremy Lin, say goodbye to Carlos Boozer and say goodbye to Jordan Hill. All three of those players will take their mediocre talent to the next most willing team to hand out money in order to fill out a roster. As the team's lone bright spot this past year, you will also certainly see Jordan Clarkson back. A team that can keep Clarkson, Bryant and Randle all on the court and healthy for at least 82 games sounds like the beginnings of a pretty decent team - at least compared to this year's standards.

In addition to Randle, Clarkson and what will hopefully be another high draft pick in this year's NBA Draft, the Lakers will have a lot of money to spend on free agents, as they did last year. Last year, they chose not to spend much. This year, the free agent crop is ripe for the picking and apparently the Lakers won't be shy about spending. Marc Gasol, Greg Monroe, Kevin Love, and Rajon Rondo, just to name a few, will be on the free agent market and could all fit in nicely with the Lakers. If you disagree, just look at what the team was working with this year. See? They'd all be upgrades. The Lakers have resisted the urge to just throw money at their problems to solve them thus far, but this year they will have to spend that money before NBA's new national TV contract with Turner and Disney hits in 2016, increasing the salary cap for every team in the league. "Two years from now, it looks like almost every team in the league is going to have cap room," Lakers GM Mitch Kupchak explained. "We do have a lot of cap room this summer. You can look at that as a strategic advantage, yeah."

It would be about time the Lakers had an advantage at anything, but it seems all signs are pointing to this offseason to get things turned around for the once prestigious franchise and that can make for an entertaining time for fans. Money will be spent, more young talent will be acquired and groomed and before you know it, the Lakers should be back to being the Lakers again as long as they avoid another Steve Nash, Dwight Howard debacle. Clearly, the Lakers have bottomed out with their worst season ever. If they stay bottomed out, it may be time for the Buss's to think about leaving office. But with the worst season ever officially done with and in the books, everyone can now start looking forward to an offseason that could and should be filled with promise for the purple and gold. •

Eagles Rolling on all Levels

By Gregg McMullin

Photos by Gregg McMullin, unless otherwise specified

The high school baseball season is over halfway through and the Eagles, on all three levels, are on a roll. The varsity has done so well they are ranked second in the latest CIF Southern Section Division 3 polls behind San Dimas, who is undefeated and ranked sixteenth in the nation. The JV team had their eight-game winning streak snapped and the soph/frosh team has won five out of their last six games. The softball team's winning streak is at seven and counting as they head into this weekend's El Segundo Tournament.

The baseball team's recent surge into their lofty rankings can be traced to winning nine Nootbaar was given the opportunity to close out the seventh inning. This could be a preview of the hard-throwing senior once the playoffs begin in a month.

The Eagles scored single runs in the first three innings and then put up three more in the fifth inning and one in the sixth. Jake Palmer had a big day going 2-for-3 with three RBIs and a run scored while Dylan McDonnell was 2-for-2, scored twice and walked once.

El Segundo dropped to 1-2 in the Redondo Tournament with their recent 7-4 loss to Gahr. The Eagles led 3-2 going into the fourth inning when the Gladiators scored twice, then once in the fifth and two more runs in the sixth. The Eagles managed a short-lived rally in the seventh before falling.

out of ten that included Torrance, the defending CIF champions, and perennial powers Lakewood and San Luis Obispo. Their number two ranking is the highest it's been in ten years and being ranked that high in the Division 3 polls hasn't happened in close to twenty years. It's been a real testament from where the team was to today's obvious strut they've been showing lately.

The Eagles opened Ocean League play and dismantled a once proud Beverly Hills team 8-1 and 7-0. Willem Mostert continued his brilliant high school career by giving up an unearned run, limiting the Normans to just five hits and improved to 5-1 on the year. Nick Saucedo pitched the seventh inning after a 97 pitch performance by Mostert. Hunter Lewis and Noah Bergren led the Eagles' offense by each going 2-for-3; Lewis had three RBIs while Bergren had two RBIs.

The Eagles improved to 2-0 in the Ocean League by defeating the Normans 7-0. Mitch Thompson looked sharp on the mound, limiting Beverly Hills to just three singles while striking out seven in six innings of work. Lars Bergren raised his batting average to .344 after going 2-for-3. His two RBIs gives him a team leading 25 on the season. Jackson Stone continued his hot hitting when he was 1-for-3 and extending his hitting streak to seven games. The Eagles continue Ocean League play this week and host Culver City today at 3:15pm and return home next Thursday to play Hawthorne.

The JV team's success over the past nine games has been the sound fundamentals the team has been using. The lineup is producing from the top of the order to the bottom. They are moving runners over, stealing bases and getting timely hitting. But what has been the biggest surprise is how well the pitching staff has done.

During the streak, starters Ben Saucedo, Garrett Boyce, and Shane Kiel as well as CJ Shevlin and Kobe Estrada in relief have done remarkably well. Saucedo has a three-game winning streak going, including a complete game against the Royal Highlanders. He held the Highlanders to three runs on six hits, a team that was averaging seven runs per game. Boyce was masterful against Palos Verdes and was the tough luck 4-3 loser against South Torrance; a team with just one loss (to the Eagles earlier in the season).

The Eagles continued their Ocean League schedule by hosting Culver City this past Tuesday and travel to play the Centaurs today at 3:15pm.

The frosh/soph team has been on a sort of hiatus due to the lack of schools that field a team at their level. Still head coach Larry Robinson has kept his team sharp and playing good baseball. Defeating Royal 10-7 recently proved how well the team has been hitting. Ryan Maryoung hit a homerun to help show off the team's power.

The Eagles opened their Ocean League tilt

this week against Culver City. They were at home on Tuesday and travel today to play the Centaurs. They'll host Hawthorne next Tuesday.

Softball

The softball team continued its success with a 10-0 win over Beverly Hills, and 4-1 on the road against Culver City to open up Ocean League play. Julie Roach hit a home run to start the scoring, and Alyssa Pelegrin doubled home two more runs against the Centaurs. The Eagle's ace in the circle, Shannon Brooker, won both games for the Eagles.

The 30th Annual El Segundo Softball Tournament comes to town this weekend and next. The Eagles have been to the final two straight years losing to Agoura two years ago and then turned the tide on the Chargers winning 6-3 in last year's final.

Lloyd Sapanza was very effective against the Yankees.

The Yankees' Nelson Taback slides safely into second base against the Angels.

The tournament should be well balanced this year with a number of teams having successful seasons including Westlake, POLA, Santa Monica and Redondo, which are on one side of the bracket. El Segundo, Banning, LB Wilson, and San Pedro are on the other side.

If you enjoy good softball this is one of the premiere and well run tournaments you can attend. There should be some great matchups in all rounds, especially in round 2, as well as the semi-finals and finals as the tournament progresses.

Each team is guaranteed four games, two each Saturday including this week and May 2nd. Games are at Rec. Park, Richmond Field, and the El Segundo Middle School. The Eagles open with Bishop Montgomery at Rec Park at 3pm on Saturday. Should they win they would advance to the 7:30pm quarter-finals against the winner of the West Torrance/ Banning game.

Track and Field

The track and field Mt SAC Invitational was held last Saturday. The girls varsity 4x400 relay team was the only relay group that qualified to go and the team took 2nd place in their heat and won a silver medal. More importantly the future looks bright for these sprinters since they broke the high school record for their relay. The old record was 4:09.34 and this year's team did it in 4:08.50.

Genevieve Johnson led off with a great leg which set the tempo for the rest of the team. Catherine Walz took the baton in stride and followed with one of her best showings all season. Sydney Wilbanks ran the third leg and kept the pace strong to setup Kendall Brooks. Brooks got out extremely quick and finished strong and just like that the girls set a new school record.

On the boy's side, Gavin Glenn impressed meet officials as well as his teammates when Callie is a Schnauzer mix who is very sweet.

Atlas is a big, big bundle of puppy love!

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway Redondo Beach 90277, from noon-3:30 p.m.. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one

My name is Callie and I'm a real cutie pie. I was rescued from a shelter where they referred to me as a stray but I was really just lost. I'm a two-year old, female Miniature Schnauzer mix who has a lovely, plumy, natural tail. No one has decided what I'm mixed with but it certainly works for me in the looks department. I'm a slender, petite gal – just 14 pounds – but it's all sweetness and love. I get along wonderfully with other dogs so if you have one, it won't be a problem for me. If you are interested in Callie please email info@msfr.org for more information.

If you're looking for a three-year old, male Lhasa Apso mix, just come to adoptions and ask for CJ. I was a stray at a local shelter when the MSFR folks found and took pity on me even though I'm not a Miniature Schnauzer. I'm not very big, only 14 pounds, but trust me, it's all personality. I've been told that I'm quite the character so I'm pretty sure my antics will keep you entertained. I get along really TREMENDOUSLY with people but I'm not the best with other dogs. I would just love being your only companion and best friend. If you are interested in CJ, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

Apparently, my previous owners didn't realize that a full-grown Anatolian Shepherd will weigh between 90-150 pounds and that's why I almost ended up at a shelter. Sure am glad the Yellow Brick Road folks intervened and rescued me! My name is Atlas and even though I'm only a six-month old pup, I weigh almost 75 pounds and on my way to being a big boy! I'm a great looking, good-hearted, boy who is extremely friendly with people. Like most puppies, I'm kind of silly and very playful but because of my size I can be intimidating to other dogs. It's been recommended that for the time being, I would do best being an only dog. I need lots of room to run and play so my family will need to have a large yard and quite an athletic lifestyle to match my energy. If you think I might be the perfect addition to your family, I would suggest that you do some research on my breed so neither of us will be disappointed. If you are interested in adopting me, and have some large dog experience, please contact Yellow Brick Road in El Segundo at (310) 606-5507.

My name is Paloma, which is derived from Latin meaning dove and, honestly, I am not much bigger than a dove. I am a very tiny 10-month old, 4-1/2 pound Chihuahua mix that was rescued from the Devore shelter. I'm a very gentle, friendly, Paloma is a tiny little cuddler.

little gal who loves playing with other dogs but I'm not the least bit intimidated by the larger breeds. As much as I like to play, my other favorite pastime is being held and cuddled in your arms. Since I won't get much bigger and I still need to learn manners and not run out of open doors, I would do better with a family that doesn't have small children. If you're interested in Paloma, please contact Yellow Brick Road in El Segundo at 310-606-5507. •

Keep Your Pets Healthy During the Holidays

By Dr. Greg Perrault

The Chicago area is experiencing a very serious outbreak of Canine Influenza. Over 1,000 cases have been reported and 5 dogs have died. Here is the link to the story: <http://www.cbsnews.com/news/chicagos-canine-flu-outbreak-almost-an-epidemic-vets-say/>

Why should we be concerned in sunny California? Canine Influenza Virus, abbreviated CIV, has been found in every state. Most dogs have not been vaccinated for CIV and more dogs are enjoying day care and dog parks where respiratory infections can be easily transmitted. Southern California has experienced similar but fortunately smaller outbreaks of CIV in the past.

Canine influenza is a contagious viral disease that can spread quickly among dogs. It affects a dog's respiratory system and may cause serious illness. In the US, outbreaks of canine flu were first reported in 2004 and the virus has since spread across the country. CIV represents a very rare event in adaptive evolution; the entire genome of the H3N8 equine influenza virus was transferred to dogs, and the virus adapted to the canine species to emerge as a new canine-specific virus. Although the virus spreads readily from dog to dog, there is no evidence to support that it can be transmitted from dogs to humans.

Dogs have no natural immunity from the flu virus and dogs of any age or breed can get the disease. Canine influenza is caused by an H3N8 virus. Similar to human flu, it is contagious and is usually spread when dogs come into contact with infected dogs in places such as dog parks, at dog shows, boarding kennels, grooming facilities, veterinary hospitals, and humane shelters.

It is important to know and recognize the signs of infection both in your dog and in other dogs that your dog may come into contact with. Some cases of canine flu may be mild and include signs such as: a persistent cough, sneezing, runny nose, fever, loss of appetite, and loss of energy. However, some dogs may develop a more severe disease, which could develop into pneumonia. If you notice any of these signs, it is important that you contact your veterinarian.

Virtually all dogs that are exposed become infected with the virus. Infection rates of 60% to 80% are not unusual and 10% to 20% of those dogs may develop severe disease. Deaths occur mainly in dogs with the severe form of the disease. The mortality rate is thought to be 1-5% or slightly higher.

Canine flu spreads through 3 main ways. First, through contact with infected dogs. Dogs that do not show signs of canine flu can still spread the virus to other dogs. Second, by airborne exposure, coughing, sneezing and runny nose. Third, by contact with contaminated items such as food and water bowls and toys.

Just as you take steps to protect yourself from the flu every year, it is also important to help protect your dog. Highly effective and affordable vaccines for canine flu are available to help protect dogs against this serious disease. Vaccinating against canine flu is beneficial by helping to prevent infection in your dog and reducing the spread of the infection. Talk to your veterinarian for more information about CIV and other preventable canine diseases.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Robert James Bruce be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 12, 2015 at 8:30AM in Dept. No. 79 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. balanced out other half, the more warm and honest reflections and admissions of young married and family life, which Jake is forced to confront with his sister, as well as with her and her husband's rocky moments.

There are whiffs of the Apatow-styled man-child hero that is forced to grow up in an age of stunted maturity epidemic that has grown to define the generation, but there is more of a connection to the 2011 feature Jeff Who Lives at Home and the HBO series Togetherness, both of which were made by the films producers, Jay and Mark Duplass (Duplass Brothers Productions). It's a watered down version of this Duplassian comedy, as half-laughs are given the same treatment as its dramatics, involving the expecting of children, infidelity, and commitment to family, that makes the film a very lukewarm experience comparatively.

Kroll and friends work as a strong, three-piece dynamic in a film that certainly needed each of its leads to be able to navigate the waters between playfully humorous and seriously relatable to earn this film's keep. Kroll as Jake dials in his slacker charms that make his character's story-about his ignoring of his sister and ailing mother while he was off making his dreams come true-that much more effective. Cameos by familiar-faced comedians Joel McHale and Jane Krakowski add a further touch of comedic do-gooding.

Applaudable strides are given to Kroll, who pushes himself here in more dramatic moments than he has in any other opportunity. For fans of the comedian's signature unconventional comedic stylings, they'll only be treated to the film's opening sequence: a fake commercial ad for his company "Minndsi," in which he's able to use the weird format to best serve his signature "Tim and Eric" chops, however briefly.

In the end, Adult Beginners isn't exactly proof of what a terrific low-budget festival-style film is, but what one inspired by those is. It's simultaneous meandering and heavy-handedness could come off more dissuading to others, such as its forced title into the story: "Adult Beginners," as it turns out, is a swimming class for the age-pushing crowd ("Get your feet wet!" is on the brochure, and an almost eye-rolling metaphor), and wouldn't you know - Jake and Justine were both never taught how to swim. Suffice it to say, the film's emotional climax centers around embracing family by reconciling differences, and jumping into the pool.

If you decide to take the plunge with Adult Beginners, just know that you won't be leaving the shallow end - but you might end up still having a little fun anyways. Adult Beginners is Rated R for language and some drug use. •

Little League Roundup

The El Segundo Little League hit the halfway point and there is so much parity that it could go down to the last week of the season. The Red Sox and Angels are atop the standings but the Dodgers and Yankees aren't far behind.

There's something about attending a Little League double-header. The players love it maybe not so much for the parents since it becomes a long day. In between games the two teams try and out do the other for best lunch. In this one the Red Sox swept the Dodgers in two great games. Though the Dodgers were on the losing end in the first one Daniel Marion and Ryan Coulter hit home runs in a 4-2 loss. In the second game Daniel Ragat hit a walk-off to give his team the 5-4 win.

In a single game the Angels smothered the Angels 9-1 behind the pitching of Lloyd Sapanza and Jake Stolnack. Nolan Kelly had an RBI double and Ethan Ralls had a two-run single to pace the Angels. •
