Robert Strock Works to Solve Homelessness in Los Angeles

By Kiersten Vannest

One of the biggest and most contentious issues Los Angeles faces today is its homelessness crisis. As the pandemic starts to ease up with the rising number of vaccinations, more residents than before find themselves without a place to live. This issue, coupled with a passion for rethinking the way we farm, is what drives Robert Strock, CEO, and founder of the Global Bridge Foundation, headquartered in El Segundo.

Strock is a teacher, psychotherapist, author, and humanitarian. His therapy clients are largely very successful people (i.e., those who have achieved the “American Dream,” which he later explains is a myth). They most often come to him because despite achieving all material goals, his clients report feeling empty, unfulfilled. He treats clients who may be addicted to their business or to saving the world, and he helps to bring awareness and balance to all that they do.

At the age of twenty-two, Strock oversaw a group of fifty master’s program students from ten universities in a project involving schizophrenic patients in LA. For the duration of this project, Strock was able to prove the importance of community. The participants’ status changed from “patient” to “member.” The students stayed longer than the average counselor and formed bonds and friendships with the members. While the average suicide rate in this facility was five people per year, that rate fell to zero during the four years his program ran.

After this, Strock worked to aid third-world countries, mainly operating in micro-finance and supporting self-sufficiency. From there, he turned his work to corporate intercommunication, before shifting to an effort to stop global warming. Most recently, his work revolves around regenerative farming and homelessness.

Regenerative farming is the practice of saving and reviving farmable soil. Our current organic farming method effectively “kills” the soil, making it unusable, and diminishing helpful nutrients that we then consume in grown food. Regenerative farming leads to healthy soil, more nutrient-dense food, and has the added benefit of saving space.

El Segundo High School Mascots “Elmer the Eagle” (and Ethel) Continue to Soar!

By Duane Plank

So, if you are like me, you probably do not know of too many folks named Elmer? Or Ethel, for that matter. Ethel is the El Segundo High School female mascot counterpart to Elmer.

When I was tasked to develop a story on one of the El Segundo High School (ESHS) mascots, “Elmer the Eagle,” I immediately thought...did I know of any Elmer’s? Elmer, by the way, means “noble, famous.” Only two Elmer’s came to mind. One was the iconic cartoon character, Elmer Fudd, the foil to Bugs Bunny in the vintage cartoon series.

The only other Elmer that I could think of was not a person, but “Elmer the Bull,” who became the face of a sticky substance product, which was credited with entering the marketplace more than 150 years ago. Today, you and I know that white, adhesive substance as Elmer’s Glue. And regarding Ethel, the only Ethels who came to mind were the next-door neighbor in the old “I Love Lucy” television show and the actor and singer Ethel Merman. Mercifully, that wraps up today’s history lesson.

Thanks to ESHS physical education teacher Rainy Smith, and others, Elmer the Eagle, first coming to life, courtesy Charlie Landreth, in an artistic rendering on a wall nearly five decades ago, continues to adorn the inside wall of an ESHS campus gym.

Longtime ESHS athletic director Steve Shevlin values the school mascots and

'Momentous' Decision Reached on Pension Debt

By Rob McCarthy

El Segundo will issue municipal bonds for the first time in 70 years to pay down what it owes the public-employee pension fund, the City Council agreed Tuesday. Mayor Pro Tem Chris Pimentel called the strategy which uses the favorable bond market to get out from under the $151 million debt a "momentous" council action.

The city intends to sell enough pension-obligation bonds to erase 95 percent of El Segundo's debt to CalPERS, the state-run pension fund for city employees. The council decided against a 100 percent payoff to avoid overpaying CalPERS by $7 million and losing control of the funds.

Prior to the unanimous vote for a 95 percent bond issue, Pimentel cautioned that once CalPERS has the city's money, "it's not a slush fund" that El Segundo can dip into to make regular pension payments. Holding back some of the bond money continues El Segundo's aggressive fiscal approach to eliminating the $151 million debt while leaving future City Councils the flexibility they may need to deal with rising pension costs.

Eliminating most of its debt from accelerated pension payments called for by CalPERS would still overfund El Segundo's obligations to CalPERS by up to $9.2 million, Finance Director Joe Lillio said. The city would carry a credit through 2034, though Lillio thinks it would be exhausted over the next decade. CalPERS is considering a change to its funding formula and asking local governments to contribute one-half percent more.

Lillio and elected city Treasurer Matt Robinson presented the council with two options to consider: Sell enough pension-obligation bonds to erase the $151 debt or slightly underfund the outstanding balance and immediately pay all but $9 million of the debt. The council appeared to favor the 100 percent funding method; however, Mayor Drew Boyles injected, "Why would we give CalPERS any more money?"

Councilman Scot Nicol, likewise, said he didn't trust the public-employee pension system and came to the meeting ready to support a 95 percent payoff with a caveat. He proposed El Segundo set aside approximately $500,000 per year in a pension-trust account and compete with CalPERS to see which earned the highest investment income.

"It's a judgment call," Nicols said. "There's no right or wrong."

CalPERS contributions are a moving target for cities like El Segundo because the majority of the fund's income derives from its investments. When the financial markets underperform, the fund sends El Segundo a supplemental bill to make up for any losses. Councilman Lance Giroux said before voting for the 95 percent payoff plan that either option would achieve El Segundo's need for a cost-effective way out of its dilemma.

"Whatever decision we make tonight, I think we're in a much better place than when we started," he said.

Tuesday's major decision followed four years of small steps by the council that resulted in modest savings of $17.1 million, according to City Manager Scott Mitnick. The City Council hired Mitnick in mid-2019 and let it be known that El Segundo's pension-fund debt - known as an unfunded liability - was the most pressing financial issue facing the city.

Actions Taken to Date Include:

- Accelerating back payments to CalPERS' fresh start program to eliminate the current debt in 20 years instead of 30 years.
- Making additional discretionary payments to the fund.

The Killing of Two Lovers Explores Untraditional Boundaries Within a Marriage

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy

In The Killing of Two Lovers, written and directed by Robert Machoian, a middle-aged man named David (Clayne Crawford) desperately tries to keep his family of six together during an amicable separation from his wife, Nikki (Sepideh Moafi). Even though they both initially agreed they could see other people, David can't control his hurt towards his wife's new relationship and doesn't hold back in expressing his male agro-rage.

Similar to how Marriage Story felt like a personal catharsis of sorts for director Noah in love with, almost on par with Nomadland. The soundscape is also noteworthy; much of the film's tension comes from quick cues and eerily ambiguous sounds.

For as much as The Killing of Two Lovers feels like a never-ending upward swing of emotional chaos, ultimately and unfortunately, it is met with a lackluster ending. After investing an hour and a half into this messy and complicated family, I was hoping for an ending that fit the bill. But that's life—unpredictable and sometimes: disappointing. While it wasn't as hard-hitting or

The Killing of Two Lovers, courtesy NEON.

Baumbach, The Killing of Two Lovers feels like familiar territory for Machoian. Full of heartache and angst, this character-driven drama tells a modern story of untraditional boundaries within a relationship and the complexities that come with veering from the status quo.

What sets this film apart from other relationship dramas is that the suspense and tension comes from what we don't see on screen, mainly due to the use (and overuse) of long takes (more later). The script forces the viewer to use their imagination as to the thoughts, feelings, and emotions of the other characters in the film since we see the story unfold directly through the eyes of the protagonist David. Although it can feel biased at times, it's an interesting directorial choice which earned Machoian a nomination for the NEXT Innovator Award at the 2021 Sundance Film Festival.

Machoian seems to really like the "long take" technique, as he falls back on this shooting style a little too often throughout the film. The first couple of uses are mesmerizing as we follow David running down a snow-lined street, or watch David drive his truck down the highway to catch up with his wife's new boyfriend, or watch David and his kids set off mini-rockets, or... you get the idea. This observational aesthetic would have been more impactful if used more sparingly. Nevertheless, the scenes are gorgeous and cinematographer Oscar Ignacio Jiménez creates a boundless cinematic landscape to fall impressionable as I had hoped, The Killing of Two Lovers is undeniably rich in its visual aesthetic. It could be argued that it has a slight case of "style over substance" syndrome, but overall it is an impressive early feature from all involved.

Watching The Killing of Two Lovers is best compared to witnessing a thunderstorm. First, the calming, almost zen-like rain begins to intensify, and the ground starts to slightly tremble with the anticipation of what's to come. A bright light flashes, catching you off-guard. Then a large crash echoes throughout the sky, causing a range of emotional instability like panic, bewilderment, or fear. And then it's over, just as quickly as it came on.

The Highs and Lows of a Long Season

By Gregg McMullin

Sometimes a sports season can be long when a team gets defeated more than expected. Then there are moments during a season when you wished it would never end. These are the highs and lows that many teams face each year. The baseball team has had many hiccups this season, and the softball team is trying to overcome injuries. The boys' basketball team is so fun to watch while the girls are in a league filled with talent that has been a challenge to face. The girl's lacrosse team's regular season winds down before the playoffs, and the girls' soccer team is playing in the CIF Southern Section playoffs.

Eagles Continue CIF Girls' Soccer Playoff Run

The Eagles CIF Southern Section playoff run took them to a first-round matchup on the road in the high desert at Granite Hills. It was a challenge to battle the 85-degree heat

A Look at 2020 Softball

Submitted by Jordan Lane

2020 was a rough year for all. This is especially true for our kids who love playing sports. In the summer of 2020, a group of El Segundo parents decided to try to make lemonade out of lemons (while wearing masks and applying lots of hand sanitizer). They rallied a group of ten-and eleven-year-old girls, who had been playing softball together for years, to try to get out and play. No parks, no fields, no games, no problem. This determined group met a few times a week, literally practicing on patches of grass and dirt wherever they could be found. Determination paid off as they soon found some open fields in different parts of Los Angeles and began holding practices a few times a week.

By late summer this team of friends decided to enter softball tournaments. They selected the El Segundo appropriate name, Eagles, and headed to Utah for a National Tournament. After a shaky start the earned a second place in their division.

Momentum started to pick up. In the fall, the Eagles went on the road to Nevada where they took first place in a regional tournament. Then, they were back to Utah in early 2021. They amazingly earned first place again, this time playing in 12u division for the first time.

The Eagles have now qualified for a national tournament in Des Moines, Iowa starting July 13th. They are eager to represent themselves and by association, the town of El Segundo, on a large stage.

To say that this rag tag team born in the depths of a global pandemic was a highlight of an otherwise challenging time is an understatement. These girls love being together on and off the field, have worked hard and can't get enough softball. We are so proud of them for their dedication and commitment to the game and we know they are excellent representatives of our amazing small town. Exciting times are on the way and the Eagles will be putting El Segundo on the map! The Eagles are Ava Waters, Brooke Englehart, Catherine Reed, Daniella Benjamin, Ella Sabosky, Grace Linares B., Kathleen Lane, Layla Yermian, Madeline Ferrier, Maya Bonner, Molly McAndrews, Olivia Galaviz and Sadie Gramajo. •

- Paying the unfunded portion of El Segundo's retirement obligations in a lump sum each year instead of making monthly payments.
 - To set up a pension trust fund to cover unexpected new costs resulting from lower-than-anticipated investment earnings or changes in CalPERS funding formula for cities, counties, and local government entities. The pension trust holds $5 million now, and it could grow to $10 million or higher in coming years, the city manager recounted.
- Once TopGolf reopens the city's golf course and driving range on Pacific Coast Highway, 60 percent or more of the revenues will go toward paying down any remaining unfunded liability with CalPERS or any new debts to the fund that are always possible. Once unfunded pension costs are eliminated, the golf property money would shift to building the pension trust fund, the council decided.

In Other Council Action:

- El Segundo city leaders officially observed Asian American Pacific Islander Heritage Month, the Arbor Day Foundation Tree City, and Public Works Week.
- Heard from Chairman Shad McFadden about the Diversity, Equity and Inclusion Committee's timetable for issuing findings and recommendations for making El Segundo a place where all residents feel safe and welcome. DEI members are expected to issue their first findings in early 2022. Since September, the nine-member DEI has been meeting, and McFadden reported the members - all chosen by the City Council - have had "hard conversations" in their meetings about the hot-button issues, including race relations and the police. While some people in the community say that racism no longer exists in El Segundo, the DEI members themselves think differently. "We on the DEI Committee think that's not true," McFadden told the council Tuesday night. The advisory panel plans to conduct a communitywide survey as part of

- the DEI's fact-finding mission.
 - OK'd an ordinance change to allow non-commercial beekeeping on single-family lots in the city. Beehives must be registered with the Los Angeles County Agricultural Commissioner to comply with El Segundo's relaxed nuisance ordinance.
 - Heard a proposal to forbid tenants or property owners from placing unwanted items out by the curb and halt the practice of putting garbage cans in front of neighboring properties. The item for council consideration was drafted to address abandoned items left in the public areas and around apartment buildings by tenants who move out. Public Works Director Elias Sassoon said the practice of giving away furniture, toys, and household items by placing them at the curb with a "Free" sign would be prohibited if the council OKs the change.
 - Agreed to remove parallel parking stalls on El Segundo Boulevard between Main and Sheldon streets. It was decided the vehicles parked along the boulevard create a traffic danger for drivers trying to turn onto El Segundo from side streets. The road will be restriped and the pylons removed. Public Works will develop a pilot parking project for the area, which could convert some two-way streets in Smoky Hollow to one-way lanes. Drivers routinely exceed the posted 35 mph speed limit, traveling at 42 mph on average, on that section of El Segundo Boulevard, Public Works Director Elias Sassoon added.
 - Renewed the agreement with Beach Cities Transit for the operation of Line 109 for another year.
- City Manager Mitnick announced the arrival of a new restaurant in the downtown area. Mama D's Italian Kitchen, which closed its Manhattan Beach location in 2018, will open on Richmond Street. Mama D's has served traditional Italian food in the South Bay for three decades. •

Many of Strock's current proposals address a cross-section of better farming practices and permanent housing solutions. For example, his foundation bought a parcel of land in Palmdale, which they are turning into a regenerative farm. This farm would be able to house 150 homeless individuals and simultaneously offer the opportunity to learn cutting-edge farming techniques in a practice the UN has declared the future of food. In addition, it would be able to feed the city of Palmdale.

One of his newest proposals looks like housing through the use of accessory dwelling units (ADUs). The idea follows that a resident could opt to have a tiny home added to their backyard, where an eligible and highly-screened person may live and learn regenerative farming practices, feeding both themselves and the main household. The government would provide a stipend to the landowner, helping to pay off a mortgage while providing a safe place for an unsheltered individual.

This all sounds well and good, but what about the idea of "Not in My Backyard"? Or that the homeless simply won't change? Or that the vast majority are dangerous?

There are many misconceptions when it comes to homelessness. One of these is the idea that the homeless don't want help. While a small percentage may refuse current options, there is currently a waiting list of thousands of eligible recipients who signed up to receive help and are waiting their turn.

Strock considers this idea to be a bias that is part of a larger misconception that the less fortunate are lazy, less motivated, and less intelligent. He sees this as a symptom of a greater societal illness, which he refers to as wealth addiction.

"There's an illusion," he writes, "that intention, lack of effort, and inferiority dominantly cause homelessness, rather than a combination of systemic barriers and less fortunate circumstances." This belief that hard work is the only thing that stands in the way of financial success "eliminates variables like birthplace, social connections, race, and lack of opportunity, education, medical care, and alternative places of living."

Currently, he does not believe that enough viable options are being offered to unhoused citizens, and he is working on trying to remedy that situation.

To purchase or renovate a hotel for an affordable living currently costs between 250-400k per living unit. According to quotes from tiny home manufacturers, units with a full bathroom, bedroom, and kitchenette run about 20-25k. The impermanent nature of the motel and shelter model can leave occupants feeling unstable and does not provide a strong foundation of trust and ownership.

Strock proposes separate communities based upon the needs of the unhoused individuals, with access to medical professionals best suited to help with specific problems. According to him, this would help build a better community for those struggling with similar problems. This might look like small families moving into a community or veterans living in a neighborhood with specified counselors at the ready.

So how can you help? The first and biggest step is to recognize your own personal biases and educate yourself. This can look like reading Strock's white papers or reaching out to him directly at the Global Bridge Foundation, which is 100% a nonprofit (he and his partner David Knapp fully fund themselves, along with a nonpolitical "friend board"). It can look like consuming content sponsored by his foundation, such as Community First! and their podcast "The Missing Conversation." It can also look like writing a letter to your local representative asking for positive change.

Having been a featured speaker at the UN, writing a book, and continuing to learn every day, Robert Strock hopes to speak soon with governor Newsom and mayor Garcetti about solutions to the current growing crisis. Homelessness is a complicated and deeply human issue requiring more education and reading than one article can provide. • their positive effect on the ESHS community. "Elmer the Eagle is a great tribute to the history and long-standing tradition of our athletics program," he emailed. "The young kids love the image when they come to games, and it is a part of what makes El Segundo so great."

While the Landreth graphic renderings inspire students, fans, and faculty, the somewhat

He also created other graphics paying homage to the ESHS mascots, but alas, his rooftop gym mural was weathered away by its continued exposure to the elements.

Landreth's high-school graphic artwork was extremely popular in the community in the early '70s, with a Main St. sporting goods store printing up and selling T-shirts with the fierce-looking Elmer on the front. Dorothy Landreth, the matriarch of the Landreth family that had five students graduate from ESHS, has lived in town for more than 70 years. She said that Charlie was always "very interested in promoting sports and other activities at the high school." When he was selected by the graduating Class of 1972 to use his talents to paint on the gym wall, he grasped the artistic opportunity, because he was "fascinated by the Eagle."

Colleges, high schools, and even middle schools have rallied around mascots for decades. According to the internet, the mascot name "Bulldogs" is the most popular mascot nickname for many institutes of higher learning. And Bulldog happens to be the moniker selected to represent the El Segundo Middle School.

Charlie Landreth and wife Dorothy had five children graduate from ESHS: Karen (class '63), Cheryl ('65), Terry ('68), Brent ('73), and Debbie ('74). Debbie Landreth-Brown is an ESHS Hall of Fame inductee for her athletic accomplishments in the sport of volleyball. She became a collegiate All-American at the University of Southern California and joined Team USA at just 17 years old. She was a captain of the 1980 United States Olympic team that was forced to boycott the Russian Olympic games. She has spent a 30-year career as head coach of women's volleyball teams at Arizona State University and then the University of Notre Dame. Currently, she is the athletic director at Saint Joseph's High School in South Bend, Indiana, and is planning to ride off into the retirement sunset in the next month.

Smith tells the story of a meeting with Landreth-Brown seven years ago. "In 2014, Debbie visited ESHS, and I happened to run into her. I was a bit starstruck since I had looked up to her as a young, aspiring athlete. When she walked in the gym," Smith said, "she was immediately thrilled to see one of her dad's murals was still on the wall. She asked me if I would take a photo of her, and of course, I did. She also shared with me about a second large mural he completed - the huge golden Eagle on the domed roof of the South gym - that was damaged due to years of environmental wear."

Smith, who has taught PE at the high school for more than two decades as well as coaching volleyball, said that "Earlier this year our South Gym had some renovations, and in a meeting, I overheard some discussion about painting over 'Elmer.'"

Smith said she did not want to see Elmer the Eagle, a part of ESHS history, be canceled and painted over.

Continued Smith: "I quickly had some stickers made and did a shallow dive into the background of Elmer to create a story to accompany the sticker and gave them to the staff on our first day back to in-person school a few weeks ago. I have also housed a stack of stickers at Richmond Bar & Grill to pass out to anyone who might have an emotional attachment to the image (my sticker lives on my water bottle that I carry with me 24/7)," she said. "I figured that Richmond Bar and Grill is a good place to leave them, considering the new owner was one of my students."

Added Debbie Landreth-Brown, noting that the mural was a gift from an early '70s graduating class. "I do not know if the classes still do that sort of thing or not, but 'back in the day,' the class would typically donate something (a bench, tree, picture, etc.). My dad was a gifted artist and sign painter and loved doing projects like these, but his main line of work was as a painting contractor. He painted many, many houses in El Segundo (inside and out!)."

"A few years after the Eagles in the gym, he painted a huge golden Eagle on the outside roof of the gym. It was really cool. However, due to being outside and exposed to weather, it did not last as long as the Eagles painted inside the gym!"

Smith was happy to do her part in remembering and promoting Elmer the Eagle. "I just really wanted the school to know the history behind this piece of art and not view it as something that needed to be removed," she said.

So, the next time you traverse to the Richmond Bar and Grill for a burger and a beer, you might want to inquire about a gratis Elmer the Eagle sticker.

El Segundo Eagle Strong! •

Elmer the Eagle Sticker.

real-life Elmer and Ethel mascots continue to make spirit-lifting, in-person appearances at ESHS sporting and special events. Emailed ESHS activities director Robin Espinoza: "Elmer and Ethel are alive and well and makes an appearance at every Homecoming parade and halftime show! Anytime two Eagles are out, it is Elmer and Ethel! Students rotate and volunteer from the student body to wear the Eagle mascot costume. Many students jump at the opportunity to wear it and have fun walking around at football games."

Landreth, a gifted artist who was a sign and house painter by trade and passed away in 2010, also completed a second large mural on the roof of one of the campus gyms, some say twice, which was viewable by those jet setters descending onto the LAX airport landing strip.

but then mix in windy conditions, and the Eagles were at a disadvantage. The Eagles would overcome deficits in the first and second half and win the first-round game 3-2 in overtime.

Granite Hills scored first on a high attempt by Samantha Grantham that the wind ended up pushing in for a Cougars 1-0 lead. El Segundo tied the game on Trinity Parascandola's twenty-three-yard free-kick. The Cougars' Mackenzie Bohn found an opening and powered in a go-ahead goal ten minutes into the second half. Later in the second half, Chelsie Charles found a bouncing ball in front of the Cougar's goal and knocked it in off a Cougar's defender to tie the game and eventually send it into overtime. Five minutes into the "Golden Goal" period, Chelsie Charles beat two defenders before slotting a low shot into the left corner for the game-winner.

In the second round, El Segundo hosted Hacienda Heights Wilson in front of nearly three hundred spectators. In a highly contested game, the Eagles came away with a 2-1 win. The Eagles found themselves trailing 1-0 in the first half when Wilson scored in the twenty-fourth minute. The Eagles evened the game a minute into the second half when Bella Munoz drove a high shot attempt from twenty-five yards out and into the net. As time was winding down, in stoppage time, Trinity Parascandola fed Chelsie Charles berth for the first time since 2008 when they were 18-12 overall but just 5-5 in league play.

In the first game, El Segundo's bats had no answer for West pitcher Tyler Lumbao and fell 5-2. He limited the Eagles to four hits, including Cooper Stalnack's pinch-hit solo home run in the seventh inning. Trailing 2-0 in the third inning Jack Stoker singled and later scored on Evan Smith's RBI single to make it 2-1. In the fifth inning, the Warriors tagged on three more runs, highlighted by Tim Horsey's two-run double.

In the sixth inning, Brian Pham made his first appearance on the mound this season for the Eagles. Pham, who had been sidelined with an arm issue, took over for starter Jake Stalnack. He ended up striking out three and gave up two hits in two innings of work.

The second game was a pitcher's duel between El Segundo's Kenny Chung and West High's Nico Bhattachan. The game went ten innings and was decided on an error the Warriors capitalized on and won 1-0.

Those watching the game were treated to some of the best pitching in the South Bay. Chung has been a workhorse for the Eagles this season and threw 9.1 innings. He got out of jams in innings where the Warriors had runners in scoring position, including the second, fourth, eighth, and ninth innings. In the tenth inning, Alex Mendez and Cameron Uszler each singled with one out. Dylan Newmeyer hit a ground ball to Brendan Croxall (Weber State), Leah Abitante (San Diego State), Kelly Carignan (UC Davis), Isa Gomez El Camino CC) and EB Steinbacher (UC Santa Cruz) were escorted by their families through the tunnel, of non-senior players, that led to home plate.

Each of the seniors will remember the Senior Day game when they each had at least one hit and scored at least one run apiece during the Eagle's 14-4 win over Lawndale. In the Chaikovsky hit a key three-pointer, and Leo Cagan led the offense by scoring ten first-half points and led all scorers in the game with 17 points. Another reason for El Segundo's success is their free-throw shooting. They converted 9-of-13 attempts, including Tyler Murray, who made five of six attempts.

El Segundo's biggest test, according to head coach David March, would come from West Torrance. The end result was a 52-33

Chelsie Charles gets set to kick the winning goal in El Segundo's 2-1 win over Hacienda Heights Wilson in the CIF-SS second-round playoff win.

Michaela Turner gets a steal late in El Segundo's win over H.H. Wilson in the second round of the CIF-SS playoff win downfield. Charles caught up to the pass, and the Wilson goaltender was caught off balance when Charles kicked it in for the eventual game-winner.

The Eagles faced Temescal Canyon (Lake Elsinore) on Tuesday in the third round of the CIF Southern Section Division 4 playoffs. A win would propel the Eagles into a semi-final matchup on Friday at home at 3:00 p.m.

Baseball Team Swept by West Torrance

It's been an up and down season for the Eagles, who dropped two close Pioneer League games to the West Torrance Warriors and dropped to (1-5) in league play. They could be in danger of missing out of a post-season

McAndrews for what would've been a sure double-play, but his feed to Evan Smith at second base was wide, and Mendez came around to score.

The Eagles face South Torrance at home today and host Grace Brethren on Saturday at 10 a.m. and wrap up their regular season next week against Lawndale.

Softball Team Honors its Seniors

The softball program paid homage to its 2021 seniors in a brief but memorable ceremony prior to their game against Lawndale. The eight seniors and their intended college are Mya Bennett (Santa Monica CC), Shanai Owens (Bethune-Cookman University), Laila Phillips (Cal State Northridge), Katie first inning, Mya Bennett had an RBI triple, Katie Croxall had an RBI single, and Kelly Carignan had an RBI double Laila Phillips had an RBI single and also scored in the first inning. Shanai Owens was 2-for-4 and scored twice with two RBIs, Leah Abitante was 3-for-4 with two RBIs, while EB Steinbacher was 1-for-3 with an RBI single and scored twice.

El Segundo fell to North Torrance 2-0 in a game that the Eagles could not get any rally going. They had just four hits, including two by Bella Gridley, a double by Croxall, and a single by Owens. Bailey Gertsch and Maiya Anderson split the game in the circle and threw well enough to win, giving up two runs (one earned) on six hits and gave up one walk.

The Eagles were at home on Tuesday and travel to West Torrance today. They finish off their regular season next week with a home game on Monday at 4 p.m., at Lawndale next Wednesday, and at home next Thursday against City Section powerhouse Venice at 3:15 p.m.

Eagles Showtime Fun to Watch

The Los Angeles Lakers of the 1980s were called 'Showtime Lakers' because of their fast break offense. The 2021 Eagles could fit into that category, with CJ Hardy leading the team's up-tempo transition on offense. The result has been a (7-0) start in Pioneer League play, heading into this week's games after defeating Torrance 57-35 and then overwhelming West Torrance 52-33.

In the matchup against the Torrance Tartars, the Eagles stretched a short lead into a ten-point advantage at halftime. Preston Engle and CJ Hardy ran the offense to perfection with their passing and unselfish attitude. JJ win over the Warriors and a two-game lead in the standings.

West took an early 9-5 lead, but the Eagles outscored the Warriors 13-0 to end the first quarter. CJ Hardy showed off his Magic Johnson-like passing that included a behind-the-back no-look pass to Engle for an easy layup. El Segundo stretched the lead to 34-11 at halftime, highlighted by Engle's 12 first-half points. In the third quarter, Hardy led a fast break, and instead of taking an easy layup attempt, he fed Engle for an uncontested layup and a 45-16 lead.

The Eagles traveled to West Torrance on Monday, hosted South Torrance on Tuesday, and finish their regular season on the road against Lawndale tonight at 6:30 p.m.

Lady Eagles Struggle's Continue

The move from the Ocean League to the Pioneer League this season has not been so kind to the Eagles. Their losses to Torrance 65-38 and to West Torrance 57-35 may have doomed their CIF Southern Section playoff hopes.

El Segundo kept the game close against Torrance when Bo Takehara sank a three-pointer, and Nicole Ungaro's layup off a missed shot attempt made it 21-21. The Tartars held a five-point lead at halftime before outscoring the Eagles 35-13 in the second half. The Tartars sank 13 three-pointers for the game and stymied the Eagles on defense.

The Eagles were never in the game against West Torrance, and they trailed by as many as 16 points in the first half. Leila Sugimoto's 15 points and Story Noble with 12 points were bright spots for the Eagles. The Eagles were at home on Tuesday and are on the road today at Lawndale at 5 p.m. •

Brendan McAndrews laces a single in the tenth inning in the Eagle's 1-0 loss.

On Senior Day Laila Phillips, Leah Abitante, Kelly Carignan, Mya Bennett, Katie Croxall, EB Steinbacher, Esa Gomez, and Shanai Owens were honored

Purrrfect Companions

Aster

“What greater gift than the love of a cat?”...Charles Dickens

Silly Aster is incredibly affectionate and is not shy about showing his love towards his foster mom. He loves wrestling with his sibling Indigo, but once he spots his favorite human, he runs over to her and sits on her lap or perches on her shoulder. Aster loves giving kisses and getting his tummy rubbed too. He is an extremely high energy kitten who loves playtime with his siblings. Due to his young age and energy level, this adorable kitty would love to be adopted with one of his siblings. These siblings have truly bonded and need to be adopted in pairs only.

Indigo is the observer of the group. He likes to check out the scene first before pouncing in on the action and causing chaos. Indigo loves leaping high into the air for the feather wand or chasing his siblings throughout the house. This silly kitty with his very playful personality will nibble on your toes to get your attention for pets. Indigo is a curious kitty who is still very much a mama's boy to boot. Due to his young age and energy level, this adorable boy would love to be adopted with one of his siblings or his mama.

Cupid was rescued on February 14th (hence the name) and he has definitely lived up to his name at our nursery in every way. Cupid has not met a cat he does not like or get along with. Whether it is a high energy kitten, or one of our special needs Power-puff girls who cannot stand or walk, or any kitty in between, Cupid befriends them. He gives them what they need, whether it's a play session, a cuddle nap or nice bath. Cupid loves humans too and is also sweet and affectionate with his two-legged friends. His BFF is Mojo Jojo, who has a mild form of Cerebellar Hypoplasia. When Mojo Jojo first arrived at the nursery, unable to walk, Cupid decided he was going to become Mojo's emotional support animal. We believe it was this very special therapy which Cupid provided that helped with Mojo's recovery. This duo loves to play, wrestle and cuddle together. We would love to see them find their forever home together as we think they are a purr-fect pairing.

Mojo Jojo is our miracle kitty! He was rescued from the city shelter where he was about to be euthanized. Mojo's legs were completely stiff and he was unable to walk at all; we quickly realized that he has a condition called Cerebellar Hypoplasia. As we have had a lot of experience in caring for cats with this condition, we immediately knew we had to rescue him. Cerebellar hypoplasia (CH) is a neurological condition where the brain does not develop properly; it causes cats to be wobbly when they walk and sometimes lose balance. In Mojo Jojo's case, his condition was extremely severe as he was unable to walk at all. For the first couple of weeks, we worked with Mojo providing physical therapy and stimulation to try to get him to sit, crawl or even walk. Becoming friends with Cupid helped tremendously with his physical therapy, so that one day Mojo decided he was done with laying around. Much to the surprise, shock and delight of all of his caregivers, Mojo Jojo started walking and even running... because he can! He loves to snuggle, wrestle and play with his BFF, Cupid. We would love to see these two boys get adopted together as we strongly believe that Cupid was a key factor with Mojo's recovery.

These cats and kittens are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org.

Our Adoption Center is temporarily closed. In the meantime, we are still conducting contactless adoptions using all the online tools at our disposal. To virtually browse our adoptable cats, please visit our Adoption Gallery where you can find photos and profiles of all the cats and kittens we have up for adoption from our network of foster homes and from the Sanctuary. At the end of each cat's profile is a link to the email address of the foster parent or adoption counselor, and you may reach out directly with questions or to arrange a virtual meeting.

Saving one animal won't change the world, but the world will surely change for that animal. •
