Recycle 2 Riches: How Ashleigh Dawson Gives Old Clothes New Life

Story by Chase Yi

What many people don't realize is that fashion trends take a huge toll on Mother Earth.

From scrap material during manufacturing to old clothes that get thrown in the trash, the amount of waste that comes from major brands around the world often exceeds the products they produce and sell. For instance, the fashion industry produces 92 million tons of textile waste every year. They're also responsible for 20% of global waste water through dyeing and finishing processes.

Combine this with the fact that the average US consumer dumps over 80 pounds of clothes annually and the world is suddenly flooded with fabrics. But waste doesn't have to be the final outcome.

Ashleigh Dawson, President and CEO of Recycle 2 Riches (R2R), a 501(c)(3) non-profit based in El Segundo, has dedicated her career to solving this industry crisis. By encouraging consumers to up-cycle their old fabrics and materials, Dawson aims to create a closed-loop lifestyle that goes beyond just old sweaters in the closet.

"I was doing fast fashion internships in Los Angeles, three of them before I got to really understand the truth of the fashion industry," says Dawson. "And it's not just the amount of waste with clothing—I realized that every aspect of consumption required assistance. So, to address this, I embarked on a personal journey to explore ways to live a closed-loop lifestyle."

By "closed-loop," Dawson means living in a way where nothing goes to waste. For instance, a worn-out pair of jeans that you buy in the store can transform into a handbag that you now use for carrying groceries. You can sprinkle used coffee grounds from your morning brew onto a plant to help fertilization. Everything you purchase has a continuous lifecycle that doesn't end with it being thrown in the trash. So as Dawson pursued this endeavor, she realized that many people live unaware of how simple it can be.

"Basically, most people don't know that these solutions already exist. Thus, we established the R2R directory and eventually evolved into a non-profit organization."

Dawson is a member of WeWork, a global co-working franchise located in El Segundo at 222 Pacific Coast Highway. Currently, her team is working to organize sustainable events that teach the community there how to take small actions that can have a big impact on their overall environmental footprint—both at work and at home!

A typical day for Dawson consists of answering any conscious consumer questions from R2R community members or any partnership emails she has to reply to. If it is not an event day, she takes collaboration meetings throughout the day, working from 9 AM to 5 PM unless she has an event or speaking engagement. Each day calls for picking up dead-stock (clothing inventory that are no longer in production)

City Enlists College Students to Create Visions

El Camino College had a sizeable presence in the City of El Segundo last month as the El Segundo Unified School District (ESUSD) and the City of El Segundo Planning Division each solicited design ideas from El Camino's architecture students for two separate outdoor projects. The projects involved students from two different architecture classes, "Design Studio 1" and "Design Studio 2," and comprised of reimagining two different types of spaces within the City of El Segundo.

For both projects, students met with both District Management and City Staff to discuss the project criteria, which was followed by an analysis of the existing conditions, determination of the program, and the development of various design solutions. These student-designed projects helped the District and the City frame a conversation around the redesign of these outdoor spaces currently being contemplated. For the students, the exercises offered some insight into the professional processes and demonstrated the nexus between their academic efforts and the activities associated with an architecture practice.

The El Segundo presentations began with the proposals for outdoor learning spaces at the District's Center Street Elementary School on Friday, May 12. For this project, Design Studio 2 students

1912 Clubhouse Added to the National Register of Historic Places

The El Segundo Woman's Club Clubhouse, the 1912 grammar school for the newly founded City of El Segundo, has been added to the National Register of Historic Places following an application submitted by Club member Jane Burrell to the California State Office of Historic Preservation.

El Segundo Babe Ruth League Wraps up Regular Season

Story and Photos by Gregg McMullin

The sixty-sixth season of the El Segundo Babe Ruth League wrapped up its regular season and started its playoffs this week. With rainouts and rescheduling during the season, games were rescheduled to make the season work, and it climaxed with a 15-game schedule. The Oaks, the two-time defending league champions, and Stars had challenging seasons regarding wins/losses. The Seals, Angels and Padres look solid, while the Beavers have lost some close games. In the last week of the regular season, the games were either close or lopsided, which according to some, has been normal throughout the season.

Seals Take Care of Beavers

The Seals flexed their muscles in their 9-1 win over the Beavers. The Seals were leading 1-0 going into the second inning when the Seals exploded for seven runs. They sent 12 players to the plate. They combined two walks and five base hits to have a big inning. Jayden Rico and Sebastian Gomez each had a two-run doubles to highlight the inning. Cole Knupfer and Quinn Eisner had RBI singles. In the third inning, Collin Laffoon scored on an RBI single by Knupfer to make it 9-0. The Beavers had an opportunity to have a big inning but came away with one run when Chase Mattoon scored on a fielder's choice by Cooper McKie to conclude the scoring.

Angels Defeat Padres 1-0 in Pitcher's Duel

In one of the best-played games of the season, the Angels defeated the Padres 1-0. The only run came on a fluke play in left-center field. This was a game of pitching at its finest. The Angels' Sam Forthuber went five innings scattering two hits while striking out 12 and walked two. The Padres' Colton Ksieski went seven innings and gave up one unearned run on three hits, walked three and struck out five.

With runs at a premium scoring, chances were slim, but each team had scoring opportunities. In the first inning, the Angels' Joey Schobel singled, followed by a double by Brogan Comer. With one out and the bases loaded, the Padres' Ksieski got out of the inning with a strikeout and fly ball.

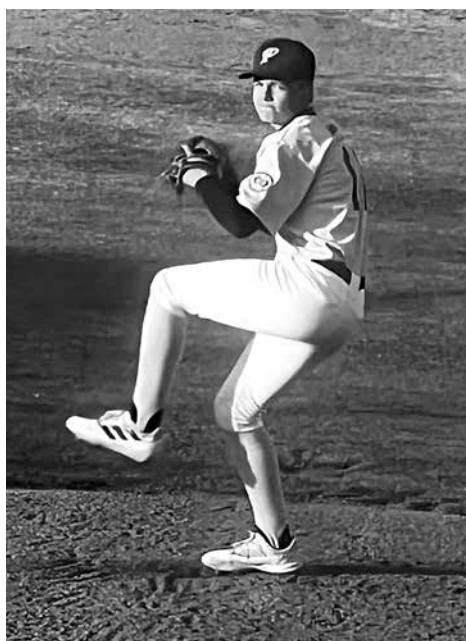

Sam Forthuber held the Padres to no runs, two hits and struck out 12 in five innings in the Angels' 1-0 win.

The Padres had runners on second and third to lead off the second inning but Forthuber struck out the next three batters to get out of the inning.

In the bottom half of the sixth inning, with two outs, the Angels caught a break when Brendon Pate was hit by a pitch. Pate, running on the pitch, came around to score when Ryan Wiacek's fly ball into left-centerfield was mishandled. The Padres centerfielder Matthew Fizulich ran down the fly ball and had it in his glove when left fielder Jeremy Hernandez collided with Fizulich, causing the ball to come loose. As both players lay on the ground and the ball next to them, Pate came around to score the eventual only run of the game. Each player was shaken up on the play, and Fizulich was expected to be out for two weeks with a concussion. His manager Charlie Haaker said an MRI had been done that revealed a better situation than at first feared.

Anders Tipton came in relief of Forthuber and pitched the sixth and seventh innings. He struck out two in the sixth inning and Padres right-hander Colton Ksieski was stellar against the Angels but lost 1-0.

Film Review

Spider-Man: Across the Spider-Verse Is A Dazzlingly Spectacular Sequel

By Ryan Rojas, Cinemacy.com

Spider-Man: Across the Spider-Verse is an incredible, mind-blowing work of art that is also one of the best films of the year. The film dives even deeper into the concept of the multi-verse(s), and its spectacularly animated sequences reach dizzying new heights in this sequel to 2018's Into the Spider-Verse, which won the Oscar for Best Animated Feature Film.

The story continues with Miles Morales (Shameik Moore) as he continues to figure out his life as New York's newest Spidey. Zipping through cityscapes with the greatest of ease, his biggest struggle is balancing his teenage life: honoring his commitments to his mother (Luna Lauren Vélez) and soon-to-be-police chief father (Brian Tyree Henry), looking ahead to college and oh yeah, trying to save the world—all while keeping his identity a secret from those he loves. The only ones who know Miles' true identity are the league of Spider-Men who helped teach him the ropes (webs?) after crash-landing into his universe in the previous film. All of the Spider-Men, including punky introvert Gwen Stacy (Hailee Steinfeld), are spread across different worlds.

The film opens with Gwen's origin story shown over an incredible drum-solo montage that also illustrates each world's specific visual style (Gwen's is a watercolor one, while Miles' ink-blotted world more readily resembles comics). After Gwen is attacked in her world by the universe-hopping villain Vulture (Jorma Taccone), she also unexpectedly meets a few more Spider-Men and women (Oscar Isaac as Spider-Man 2099 and Issa Rae). These heroes are part of a "Spider-Society" that protects the multi-verses from "canon disruptions." Wishing to leave her world behind, she pleads to join theirs. Against better judgment, she decides to pop over to Miles' world for a quick visit.

While Miles has matured since the first film, although still wise-cracking and perhaps a bit too cocky in his Spidey role, he underestimates the arrival of a clumsy new villain, Spot (Jason Schwartzman). Spot warns Miles that he is his new nemesis and holds him responsible for his genetic mutation; being covered in spots that he can use to travel through space (a result of the first film's universe collider).

A surprise visit from Gwen excites Miles, and the two web-sling around the city in friendly flirtatious fun. But when he sneakily follows her and her Spidey task force into a new universe (we travel to many in the film; buckle up) and disrupts a key moment in that world, he learns of an unintended truth that the Spider-Men share: some events, while tragic, are fated to happen and keep all of the universes connected and in order. Miles learns that he can't save everyone, a truth he struggles to accept and ultimately, doesn't.

And yet, while it's the most wow-worthy and spectacular thing I've seen this year so far, it fails to capture the same heart as its predecessor Into the Spider-Verse did. Likely, there is too much going on. The first film was more self-contained, in that all of the action crash-landed into Miles's world. By the time we've jumped into our sixth universe, you do feel a sense of endless abandon that makes it difficult to remain emotionally connected to the looming threat lurking back in Miles's world.

Spider-Man: Across the Spider-Verse is an incredible work of art that bursts with fun and visual wonder that proves the sequel game can remain strong (Beyond the Spider-Verse will return in March 2024).

2h 20 minutes. Rated PG for sequences of animated action violence, some language, and thematic elements. •

Taste: My Life through Food by Stanley Tucci

By Kristen Morell, Librarian, El Segundo Public Library

This week, I will be reviewing one of my favorite memoirs. Taste: My Life through Food by Stanley Tucci is all about his life in and out of the kitchen. Many know

Taste: My Life through Food by Stanley Tucci.

Tucci for his work as a talented actor but did you know he is also an avid foodie? I am a huge fan of his television show Stanley Tucci: Searching for Italy and knew I would have to read Taste: My Life through Food. This book combines Stanley Tucci's life with his love for food and starts off with his early beginnings. Stanley takes it back to his childhood and explains the significance of his family's homecooked dinners and his mother's wonderful cooking. He talks about how his relationship with food began with family at the forefront of it. He has a special adoration for Italian food in particular due to his Italian heritage and describes many simple but tasty sounding recipes throughout the book. Stanley not only describes homecooked meals but some of the new restaurants he's discovered while filming or traveling, always taking his love of food with him. While this book highlights many of the happy times in Stanley's life, it also covers some of the more difficult times. He discusses the impact of the Covid-19 pandemic on his family and later on discusses his cancer diagnosis. I thoroughly enjoyed this book and highly recommend it on audiobook. A bonus is that it will be featured for the June 2023 Evening Book Discussion at El Segundo Public Library. The book discussion is on June 28, 2023 at 6:30pm. You can check out a copy of Taste: My Life Through Food at the El Segundo Public Library. • managed to work out of a jam in the seventh inning when Jeremy Hernandez singled with one out and stole second base. Tipton got out of the inning on a ground ball and a popup to end the game.

Seals Too Much for Stars

The Seals continued their dominance with their potent offense in their 13-3 win over the Stars. It didn't matter who was pitching for the Stars when the Seals took care of business with 12 hits, including three doubles.

In the second inning, the Seals had nine runs on seven hits. Jayden Vanek doubled and scored on a two-run single by Jamison Dupertuis. Cole Knupfer had an RBI single, followed by Quinn Eisner's two-run single. Ben Lee's RBI single made it 5-1, and Alton DeBlanc three-run double made it 8-0. In the third inning, Knupfer had a sacrifice fly, and Jayden Rico had a two-run single to make it 12-2.

In the fifth inning, trailing 12-2, the Stars attempted to extend the game by manufacturing a run. Jackson Alba singled, stole second base and then third base, and scored on a balk to make it 12-3. In the bottom of the inning, Sebastian Gomez walked and later scored on an RBI single by Quinn Eisner to end the game.

The playoffs started this week and end with the championship game on Friday night starting at 6 p.m.

were directed to develop a design for one of six spaces that exist in between and adjacent to the half dozen classroom buildings. Currently defined by blacktop surface, the spaces lack formal programming and design measures to support student learning. Each of the spaces were designed to be multi-functional and flexible as well as support the developmental stage associated with a specific grade. Further, the proposals addressed various environmental constraints and ecological opportunities to provide

Upon receiving draft findings that highlighted the community's priorities, the students analyzed and designed solutions that represented the City's history and context.

Assistant Professor of Architecture at El Camino College, Marc Yeber stated, "the students' work was remarkable in their use of the City's iconography as the seed to cultivate their respective design processes. Further, their project outcomes helped to embed a visual narrative about El Segundo while addressing the functional needs of the space." In fact, the designs employed notions of the El Segundo Blue Butterfly, the aerospace industry or even the Chevron Refinery as design cues to help define their space. "As a result, the solutions were specific to the plaza in El Segundo which is a hallmark for creating a sense of place," he added.

Combined, these two design opportunities elevated the student work and offered El Camino College students an unexpected enrichment to their academic endeavors. Such collaboration with outside institutions and professional partners has become a key component in immersing students in their educational experience. The Architecture Department at El Camino College offers an in-depth and comprehensive curriculum designed to launch students into a university architecture program or a career path within the architecture field.

more greener and comfortable environments.

The students presented their findings and design proposals to a group of District staff, teachers and parents. One of the reviewers, Frank Glynn, a local architect and resident of El Segundo commented, "The students demonstrated a wide array of innovative strategies for creating outdoor learning in the interstitial spaces of the Center Street Campus," he continued, "They are to be commended for the depth of research that went into envisioning age-appropriate solutions for each of the various grades."

This was followed by presentations of a different type of outdoor space for the City's Planning Commission on Thursday, May 25 associated with the El Segundo Civic Center Plaza. Originally built in 1956 and remodeled in 1975, the plaza is an anchor to many community events including festivals, celebrations and a weekly farmers market. This civic space currently poses several challenges including not enough soft surfaces for child interaction, a significant deficiency in shading, minimal landscaping, and a lack of place. As part of the El Segundo Downtown Specific Plan, Design Studio 1 students were asked to reimagine the space to accommodate more impromptu activity, to encourage a variety of activities for different ages and to become an economic catalyst for revitalizing the downtown district.

Chicken Zucchini Boats

Provided by Campbells Soup Corp.

This easy stuffed zucchini recipe gives you a fun, new way to enjoy the classic flavors of Chicken Alfredo. We mixed the Alfredo sauce into the chicken and then drizzled more over the top to let the flavors infuse into the ‘boats’ while they bake. Dress up your ‘boats’ by making flags from lemons or roasted peppers to add a finishing touch. We like our ‘boats’ with a squeeze of lemon, but enjoy them any way you like.

Ingredients

- 4 large zucchini, cut in half lengthwise
- 1 pound ground chicken or turkey
- 1 jar (14.5 ounces) Prego® Homestyle Alfredo Sauce or Alfredo Sauce with Roasted Garlic and Parmesan Cheese
- 1/2 cup panko or plain dry bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup chopped roasted red bell pepper (optional)
- 2 tablespoons shredded or grated Parmesan cheese
- 3 cloves garlic, minced or 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1 egg

Send us a photo and recipe of your favorite dish. We'd love to share it with the community. Send to: web@heraldpublications.com

Directions

- Step 1: Heat the oven to 425°F. While the oven is heating, use a spoon to scoop the seeds out of the zucchini halves, creating a space for the stuffing. Place the zucchini halves on a baking sheet (lined with foil for easy cleanup).
- Step 2: Season the chicken with salt and pepper. Mix the chicken with 1/2 cup sauce, 1/4 cup panko, roasted pepper, if desired, the cheese, garlic and egg in a large bowl. Fill each zucchini half with about 1/2 cup chicken mixture. Drizzle the stuffed zucchini with the remaining sauce and sprinkle with the remaining panko.
- Step 3: Bake for 35 minutes or until the chicken mixture is done and the zucchini is tender. Sprinkle with chopped fresh parsley and serve with lemon wedges, if desired.

Tip

- Serving Suggestion: Skewer the lemon wedges or additional pieces of roasted pepper on toothpicks to make flags to garnish your zucchini boats!
