New School District Superintendent Looks to Build Upon Positive Momentum

By Brian Simon

Fall classes will start up soon with a brand-new superintendent in the fold at El Segundo Unified School District for the first time in a decade. Dr. Jason Johnson assumed the helm last month, taking over for long-time leader Dr. Melissa Moore after the latter's retirement at the end of June. While admitting his predecessor is a "hard act to follow," Johnson didn't take long to get his feet wet with a steady diet of local outreach to familiarize himself with every possible aspect of the community. Besides hanging out at the office and getting to know staff and students, he attends events every chance he gets. He walks the town regularly to meet residents, business owners, and stakeholders. So far, so good. Yet with all that, his true initiation into the community will come on August 10 when he and his kids plan to attend a family campout next to the District headquarters. "Apparently, you can't get the El Segundo experience until you are sleeping outside," Johnson said, noting that everything up to now has been a "warm-up" for this signature outing. "This will give me a chance to interact with families, and we plan to have a great time. Hopefully, I won't get bitten by too many mosquitoes."

Johnson comes to El Segundo after a four-year stint heading up Hermosa Beach Unified. During his tenure in the city just a few miles south, he oversaw the construction of two new schools (there were only two total before his arrival) and navigated that District out of a pandemic that was in full force and wreaking global havoc when he started in July 2020. While he loved his time in Hermosa, Johnson admitted he always kept an eye on El Segundo and jumped at the opportunity to take the position when he learned of the opening. After a little more than a month on the job, he feels he made the right decision. "Growing up in the South Bay, I love what El Segundo represents," Johnson said. "It's the best of a lot of different worlds. You're by the beach, but it's still an industry town and it's also a destination place. You don't just pass through El Segundo. You have to want to be here and you come here with a purpose."

Johnson's purpose early on is all about getting to know what he considers the most important asset—the people. "It's taking time to just sit down and listen," he explained. "This is my second rodeo, so I know enough to know that I don't know... so I am here to listen and learn. El Segundo already had a great thing going under Dr. Moore for the last ten years. There's a reason things are going great. It's a collective experience in trying to understand the community and its needs."

Born and raised in nearby Carson, Johnson has South Bay roots that go back several generations. Exposed to the academic life

Such a Bad Influence by Olivia Muentzer

By Library Assistant, Mary Martes

Olivia Muentzer's debut novel, Such a Bad Influence, is a promising start to a successful literary career. Muentzer is a podcast co-host, digital content creator, and writer. Here she writes about a social media megastar, Evie Davis, who began her career at the age of five, thanks to a vlogging mother. Evie is eighteen now, making millions as a lifestyle influencer.

Hazel Davis, Evie's much older sister, shuns the attention seeking behavior of her mother and sister. She has always tried to watch out for her sister and protect her from their controlling mother as well as stalkers and obsessed fans. Right now, though, Hazel needs to worry about herself. Having lost her job, moved back to her hometown which she loathes, and sinking under student loan debt, Hazel is floundering. She spends too much time on her phone, following Evie, Evie's famous boyfriend, and Evie's fellow frenemy influencers. Being the famous @evelyn's sister, Hazel is constantly confronted with fans who are convinced they know Evie because they've followed her on social media

Rebellious Irish Rap Comedy Kneecap Is Bold, Brash, And Unforgettable

By Ryan Rojas, Cinemacy.com

There's a brash, in-your-face cockiness that the new dark comedy and music-packed film Kneecap carries itself with. The law-breaking, drug-snorting antics from the Irish rap group at the center of the film—played by the real-life hip-hop trio “Kneecap” that the movie takes its name from—are downright anarchic.

Further, the film doesn't even care at times if you literally understand what's going on, as multiple rap numbers are delivered in their native Irish Gaelic language, requiring subtitles that the film sometimes, defiantly, does not provide. Despite this attitude, or perhaps because of it, Kneecap is a rebellious crowd-pleaser with a worthwhile message about preserving Indigenous identity.

The film fictionalizes the rise of the real-life Irish hip-hop group “Kneecap” in their proud hometown of Belfast. Naoise (Mógláí Bap) and Liam Óg (Mo Chara) are Northern Ireland hooligans who grow up selling club drugs and running from the cops. When Liam gets caught one night, a disillusioned music teacher, JJ (DJ Próvaí), is tasked with translating Liam's Irish Gaelic into English. We learn that Liam's defiant use of his native Irish language was instilled in him by his father, a small-town crook now on the run (played by Michael Fassbender).

JJ realizes that Liam's commitment to his mother tongue, along with his original, cocky lyrics, aligns with his own values and inspires him to record the band. The trio—Liam, Naoise, and JJ, now known as DJ Próvaí—begin recording songs that defiantly speak out against the country's harsh laws, drawing unwanted attention and catapulting them into the spotlight.

Kneecap is anarchic, foul-mouthed, and ungovernable. And also, it's entertaining as hell. It's also more of a crowd-pleaser than I expected. Written by Rich Peppiatt along with Kneecap stars Mógláí Bap and Mo Chara, the film brings a unique story and style. Director Rich Peppiatt, in his first credited feature film after a Kneecap music video, injects electric energy and style, making for a visually captivating experience.

Director of Photography Ryan Kernaghan (Ted Lasso, Belfast) delivers sensational camerawork, with a full-on music-video approach, featuring hand-scribbled lyrics that bring the songs to

Summer Baseball Comes to an End

By Gregg McMullin

The El Segundo baseball season is over. With the Babe Ruth U14 all-stars eliminated at the Pacific Southwest Region Tournament and the American Legion team reaching the final day of the American Legion California State Tournament, it's been another successful summer.

Babe Ruth All-Stars Finish 2-2 at Regional

The ES Babe Ruth 14U all-stars traveled to Murray, Utah, for the Pacific Southwest Regional Tournament. The regional tournament is one of eight nationwide, and the winners advance to the Babe Ruth World Series.

El Segundo faced Vernal, Utah, in the opening round under ideal baseball conditions and won easily over the number one team from Utah 13-0. Camden Quaintance led the 11-hit attack, going 3-for-4 with three RBIs; Quinn Eisner also had three hits. Caleb Kimm, Evan Steele, and William Ulrich combined on a no-hitter and collectively struck out nine and walked two in the five-inning run-rule game.

El Segundo dropped into the loser's bracket after getting beat by Tri-Valley 10-2. Tri-Valley scored five first inning runs and never looked back. El Segundo's offense was held to four hits scoring solo runs in the first and fifth innings. Tri-Valley took advantage of seven walks of which each scored.

In the first elimination game in the loser's bracket, El Segundo defeated Murray, Utah, the host team 17-0. El Segundo's pitching dominated, limiting Murray to one hit in the fifth inning while striking out ten.

In the second elimination game, El Segundo faced the Central California champions, Orcutt, the 2023 14U Babe Ruth World Series champions. After facing a 1-0 deficit in the fifth inning El Segundo tied the game with a run. Kyle Cantu singled and later scored on a single by Camden Quaintance. In the bottom of the seventh inning El Segundo manufactured the winning unearned run with a sacrifice fly to win it 2-1. Evan Steele was hit by a pitch, advanced on an error to third base on Quaintance's chopper, and scored on a sacrifice fly by William Ulrich.

El Segundo faced Tri-Valley for a second time, this time in the loser's bracket final. El Segundo's pitching was torched for 11 runs. The offense could produce but one run against a solid defensive Tri-Valley team and fell 11-1.

It was an exceptional all-star season for El Segundo and experience for the players, including Camden Quaintance, Griffin Lai,

TOOLS TO HELP PREPARE FOR HOMEOWNERSHIP

(BPT) - Many of today's homebuyers and renters face affordability challenges. Higher mortgage rates and low housing supply have increased homeownership costs. Corresponding increases in rent have also made it more difficult for potential borrowers to save for a down payment.

The difficulty of saving money for a down payment can discourage potential borrowers from pursuing homeownership. Eligible, creditworthy borrowers can utilize mortgage loan options like Fannie Mae's HomeReady®, enabling applicants to put down as little as 3% for home purchases or mortgage refinances. Through February 2025, the program also offers $2,500 towards down payment or closing costs, including mortgage insurance premiums, for very low-income purchase borrowers on the purchase of their principal residence.

An online down payment assistance tool can help you find programs that alleviate some of the upfront costs of buying a home. Using this tool, you can find federal, state, and local down payment and closing cost assistance for which you may be eligible.

If you're a first-time homebuyer, you can talk to your lender about options like HomeReady® First, which provides financial assistance to eligible first-time homebuyers residing in specific geographic communities. This mortgage option includes $5,000 in down payment or closing cost assistance, free homebuyer education, and may include a $500 appraisal credit.

If you're not ready to buy a home yet but hope to do so someday, there are still steps you can take to help prepare. First, review your credit score and see how it can be improved over time. As a renter, it's important to maintain a strong rent payment history to show lenders that you'd be a reliable borrower.

Make sure to use a closing costs calculator to educate yourself on closing costs and what fees are negotiable to potentially reduce your upfront costs.

Continue to educate yourself on the homebuying process with an online homeownership education course like Fannie Mae HomeView®. This free-of-charge, award-winning course provides 24/7, end-to-end access to information about financial literacy, building healthy credit, and the steps to homeownership and is available in English and Spanish. HomeView helps demystify the buying process and helps first-time homebuyers understand and navigate the process from start to finish.

Homeownership may be more accessible than you thought possible, whether you're ready to buy now or waiting until the time is right. By equipping yourself with the right knowledge, tools, and resources, you can navigate the complexities of the housing market. *

The El Segundo Babe Ruth 14-year-old All-Stars competed at the Pacific Southwest Regional Tournament in Murray, Utah.

Caleb Kimm, Gio Blanco, William Ulrich, Evan Steele, Quinn Eisner, Max Adlam, Kyle Cantu, Takya Tsurui, Smith Chargin and Samuel Ashelford; will ever forget.

Legion Team Advances to State Final

The El Segundo Blues (18-5) were making their third consecutive trip to the California State American Legion Tournament. That feat hasn't been matched in thirty seasons. And for the third consecutive year the Blues finished no worse than third. The tournament's winner advances to the American Legion West Regional Tournament a precursor to advancing to the World Series.

The Blues faced the West Hills Tomcats from Santee in the opening round. The Blues sent their ace Sam Forthuber to the mound, but the lefty experienced control problems and the Tomcats took advantage in their 14-2 win. The Blues' only offensive output happened in the first inning, highlighted by Ben Lee's two-run single.

The Blues faced Long Beach Wilson in the elimination bracket and came away with an 8-2 win. With the score 2-2 in the fifth inning, the Blues scored three runs, highlighted by Logan Brooks' RBI single and Jayden Rico's two-run single to make it 5-2. In the seventh inning the Blues added three more runs and then held off Wilson for an 8-2 win.

In the next game against the Petaluma Leghorns the Blues were facing one of the state's top American Legion programs. The Leghorns (32-12) had a 3-1 sixth-inning lead when the Blues scored a 4-3 win. In the inning, Forthuber drew a two-out walk and scored on Rico's single to cut their deficit to 3-2. Rico scored on Reed Abrams's RBI single to tie the game at 3-3; Abrams reached third base on an error. Then Abrams scored on a wild pitch giving the Blues a 4-3 lead. In the seventh Sam Forthuber, who came in relief in the sixth inning, got the Leghorns to preserve the win.

That win set up a loser bracket final between the Blues and the Fairfield Expos. The Blues sent 13 batters to the plate in a nine-run second inning in their 11-5 win. After trailing 2-0 after the first inning, the Blues exploded for nine runs on nine hits. The Blues collected five consecutive hits in the inning, highlighted by back-to-back two-run doubles by Chase Mattoon and Austin Homan. Lincoln Quaintance unloaded on a 385-foot three-run homerun, and Jayden Rico's two-run double punctuated the big inning.

For the second consecutive year the Blues reached the California American Legion State 19U championship game. A season ago the Blues were undefeated going into the last day and needed to win one game to advance to the American Legion West Regional. They lost both games and were eliminated. This year, since they were coming through the loser's bracket, they would need to defeat the Clovis Nighthawks (29-6), the only undefeated team, twice. The Blues won the first game 5-3, setting up a winner-take-all championship game. In the championship game the Blues outlit the Nighthawks but fell 4-3.

In the first game, the Blues sent Sam Forthuber to the mound, and the crafty left-hander was brilliant against Clovis. He gave up two runs on four hits and struck out seven in 5.1 innings before being lifted on a pitch count limit. Robert Cantu came on with one out in the sixth inning and held the Nighthawks to one run.

The Blues took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Chase Mattoon singled and scored on Ben Lee's RBI single. In the fifth inning, Mattoon, who was 3-for-4, doubled to left-center, scoring Reed Abrams, who had drawn a nine-pitch walk earlier in the inning. Austin Holman drew a walk, and Ben Lee reached on an error before Lincoln Quaintance hit a two-run ground-rule double to give the Blues a 4-2 lead. Jayden Rico's RBI double scored Quaintance giving his team a 5-2 advantage.

The Nighthawks threatened to tie the game in the seventh inning when they strung together a run on three hits. But Cantu got out of the inning with a weak ground ball to first baseman Reed Abrams for the final out and a 5-3 win for the Blues.

In the championship game the Blues, thin on pitching, sent Reed Abrams to the mound in a rare start. The lanky left-hander threw a brilliant, if not gutsy, game; he held the Nighthawks to four runs on four hits.

Trailing 1-0 in the bottom of the first inning, the Blues responded with two runs of their own. Mattoon walked, Holman singled, and Ben Lee walked to load the bases. Mattoon scored when a pitch hit Logan Brooks. Jayden Rico's RBI single scored Holman to give the Blues a 2-1 lead.

The Nighthawks scored two runs in the third inning to retake the lead 3-2. The Blues tied the game in their half of the fourth inning when Anders Tipton doubled and scored on Chase Mattoon's double.

The game was decided in the fifth inning when the Nighthawks' Drake Davis hit a one-out triple to left field. Gilbert Acosta followed and hit a chopper to the left side of the pitcher's mound. Abrams fielded the ball, looked Davis back to third base, and then threw wide to first base, allowing Davis to score easily. The Blues fell 4-3 after being blanked in the final three innings.

El Segundo High School Athletics Honored by CIF

The CIF Southern Section announced the top girls' and boys' athletic programs during the 2023-2024 school year. This marks the 31st year the CIF-SS has honored schools with the Commissioner's Cup. El Segundo placed fourth on the boy's side behind only Notre Dame (Sherman Oaks), Harvard-Westlake, and Mira Costa. Schools earn points based on how their athletic programs finish, and the Eagles earned points by winning a water polo CIF title, a golf CIF title, a CIF finals appearance in basketball, and a semi-finalist in lacrosse and tennis. It is the highest finish for the Eagles, but it isn't the first time the school has been mentioned in the top ten. El Segundo has finished in the top ten several times.

This recognition program is based upon comprehensive excellence in the CIF Southern Section athletic competition for both boys' and girls' sports. Its purpose is to enhance the spirit of competition, sportsmanship, and goodwill among student-athletes and CIF schools. •

The El Segundo Blues pose before their game against the Clovis Nighthawks in the American Legion State championship game.

from day one, thanks to his mother, who was also an educator and eventual school principal, he initially had other ideas about his career path. He wanted to become a lawyer, but that aspiration didn't stick. After graduating from El Camino College and then UC Berkeley, Johnson landed a position that transformed his life in two meaningful ways. He joined the leadership development organization Teach For America and became a Special Education instructor, working with underprivileged children in Watts for two years. "I recognized how much of a difference education was as a make or break for these kids—and so I realized that education was what I truly wanted to do for the rest of my life." While in Watts, Johnson met his future wife, who also taught Special Education. The couple bonded over work and life and the rest is history.

He next embarked on a lengthy career at Redondo Beach Unified. He rose up the ranks of the system there—eventually becoming assistant principal at Adams Middle School and then principal at Lincoln Elementary before Hermosa came calling.

Looking at the condition of El Segundo Unified as he gets up to speed here, Johnson said he is duly impressed. Rather than identify a spate of his own short- and long-term goals, he noted that the most important task at hand is "not to lose momentum" given that the District was "on a great trajectory" with projects from the Measure ES obligation bond close to completion. "The facilities here have never been in better shape, thanks to Dr Moore and the community's work," he reported. "Academically, we are in the top 10 percent of all districts in California. It has much to do with the teachers, parents, and, of course, the students." Meetings with the staff and board members, plus representatives from the partnering El Segundo Education Foundation and PTAs, further drove home the point that "the District is in even better shape" than he anticipated. Elaborating on the Ed Foundation, Johnson praised the organization for its continual commitment to fostering local academics via its $2 million contribution for the current year, which, among other things, helped ensure smaller class sizes for fourth and fifth graders to allow for a more personalized connection with teachers." As a dad, that's also what I want for my own kids," he said. That connection is paramount for Johnson, as he doesn't want teachers and staff to lose sight of the crucial rapport with the kids by "letting adult issues take over" during the workday. "I make sure we have photos of the kids and our programs on the walls at our office because that's the focus," he explained. "It's important to me to be in classrooms and at school sites so we can interact with the students. You have to live that."

Though in a strong financial position for the coming fiscal year, the District faces future challenges due to budgetary uncertainty from the State of California. Johnson pointed to a key decision to move away from using one-time, already exhausted Covid monies. "The District was responsible by consolidating positions rather than continuing without the funding to back it up," he said. The positions in question mainly encompass out-of-classroom personnel such as instructional coaches. "We are looking at using smaller consultancies that will cost less and it's also dollars we can walk away from if things get worse as far as funding from the State—while in the meantime being able to continue facilitating the coaching work."

Moving forward, Johnson was pleased the District created a Graduate Profile program that addresses the competencies students ought to have as they move through the school system. "To me, that is where we will put our emphasis," he said, adding that the process actually starts at the beginning. "It's not just when a student is in high school, but going back to the Eagles' Nest preschool and through elementary and middle school. Does everyone play their part as the student vertically matriculates? These aren't just school skills. They are life skills and citizen skills. We have the best opportunity to instill these competencies all the way up to college, more so than any other institution of learning, because we have had these kids for so long. We want to make sure this profile is realized at all 12 grade levels."

Meanwhile, technology continues to change and impact education. Artificial intelligence (AI) is perhaps the most significant game-changer in decades, with many potential benefits along with some caveats. El Segundo Unified was one of the first districts to adopt a policy to govern responsible AI usage. Johnson sees this technology as an opportunity as opposed to a challenge. "AI, I do think, is paradigm-shifting because of the power it possesses and how well it can model and mimic human interaction," he said. "Students who understand how to use AI will have such an advantage." He emphasized that utilization is "not just the ability to use it, but to do so as a good citizen." Johnson added that at the end of the day, AI merely mimics human interaction and does not replace it. When asked what he considers the most successful classroom technology, he didn't hesitate to respond: "The chalkboard. The key to technology is listening to your teachers--the people who are actually doing the job--and what helps them create good instruction. Good instruction is timeless. Everything else is just enhancements to the chalkboard, including AI."

Asked about his future vision for the District, Johnson was quick to amend the terminology to "our vision," with the belief that school leadership is a "team sport" that must be inclusive. "When you're a member of a team, the cliches are true—there is no I in team, and you really want to make sure you're creating a culture of we," he said. "Sometimes that means you don't get your way. This town and District have been thriving for over 110 years. It calls for a leadership style that honors those traditions, but also helps move the ball forward. El Segundo has a lot of history, but it's also a pretty progressive town when it comes to industry and innovation. It's a matter of balancing these things and that's what I pride myself on."

With that in mind, Johnson emphasized that there's much work to be done—especially when it comes to ensuring that the Measure ES projects finish up "on time and on dime" with the visible examples of success in the new buildings at Richmond Street Elementary, El Segundo High and the District campus. "Our schools are beautiful," Johnson beamed. "They are also old, which makes them even more amazing. Over time, we will ensure the infrastructure remains strong for 10, 20 years out."

Though he can't predict the longevity enjoyed by his predecessor, Johnson hopes El Segundo Unified will be his "forever home" for his remaining career. His other home is in San Pedro where he and his wife raise two children, ages three and seven. When not at work, he describes himself as a "really boring family man at heart" who reads books voraciously and likes nothing more than being a husband and dad. It's another reason why El Segundo is Johnson's dream job. "I am so happy to be here," he reiterated. "I was walking at Acacia Park recently and seeing so many families out and about enjoying the community. The values that El Segundo has as a close-knit community are something I share. This place feels like home. The more I learn and listen, the more I totally get why people love it here..." • life. Editors Chris Gill (American Animals) and Julian Ulrichs (Sing Street) create a kinetic, wild energy that the movie thrives on.

And of course, the music is massive fun. Electronic club beats underscore Kneecap's in-your-face raps sensationally. Even if you can't understand the lyrics (or find it hard to read the onscreen translations), you don't necessarily need to, as emotion and energy are the most important.

Kneecap is a riotously fun movie that captures the spirit of rebellion and cultural pride. As Michael Fassbender's wise, country-loving character says to the Kneecap lads, "Every word of Irish spoken is a bullet fired for Irish freedom," a sentiment that resonates deeply throughout the film.

1h 45m. Rated R for pervasive drug content and language, sexual content/nudity and some violence. •

Worn Out or Worn Down? How to Tell the Difference Between Tiredness and Fatigue

(BPT) - Have you ever felt like no amount of coffee or rest can shake off your lingering exhaustion? Do you wake up from a full night's sleep and still find yourself dragging? If so, you might be dealing with more than just tiredness; you could be experiencing fatigue. Fatigue is not just a fleeting feeling of sleepiness - it's a deep-seated exhaustion that can impact your daily life and point to more serious health conditions. However, these feelings are often dismissed as simply needing more sleep or seen as a normal part of a busy lifestyle. According to recent research by MD Live, an Evernorth company and leading virtual care provider, many aren't aware of what fatigue is despite experiencing symptoms and 35% rarely think about the reasons behind their tiredness.

"While we often use words like 'tired' and 'exhausted' interchangeably, there are distinct and clinical differences between tiredness and fatigue," explains Dr. Maggie Williams, medical director for MD Live Primary Care. "Occasional tiredness can often be managed with better sleep habits or lifestyle changes, but fatigue is a persistent exhaustion that could signal underlying health issues that should be discussed with a doctor."

Dr. Williams shares telltale ways to determine whether you may be experiencing simple tiredness or if your symptoms might point to something more serious.

1. Scrutinize Your Sleep

First, look at your sleep patterns. Tiredness generally improves with a good night's sleep or a short nap, whereas fatigue persists even after adequate rest. Try keeping a sleep diary for a week, noting when you go to bed, when you wake up, and how you feel upon waking and throughout the day. If you consistently wake up feeling unrefreshed or have difficulty staying asleep, it might indicate something more serious.

2. Track Your Tiredness

Consider how long and how often you feel exhausted. Tiredness is typically temporary and linked to specific activities or lack of sleep, such as staying up late to finish a project or getting a poor night's sleep. Fatigue is long-lasting and occurs frequently, often without a clear cause. Ask yourself whether exhaustion is a constant presence in your life, lingering for weeks or months. If symptoms persist and you cannot pinpoint a specific reason, it's more likely to be fatigue.

3. Be on the Lookout for Other Symptoms

Fatigue often accompanies broader and more severe symptoms, such as muscle weakness, joint pain, headaches, and a lack of motivation. Mentally, fatigue can lead to prolonged mood swings, depression, anxiety, and severe cognitive impairment, making it difficult to concentrate or remember things.

4. Gauge the Impact on Daily Life

Reflect on how your tiredness affects your daily activities. Tiredness might cause a temporary decrease in productivity and social interactions. Fatigue has a significant and prolonged impact on your ability to perform daily tasks, work, and maintain social relationships. For example, you may find it increasingly difficult to keep up with work responsibilities, household chores, or social commitments. Evaluate how often you find yourself canceling plans, avoiding activities, or struggling to keep up with everyday demands.

Fatigue is often linked to chronic conditions such as diabetes, heart disease, depression and thyroid disorders. These illnesses significantly impact the body's ability to maintain energy levels, resulting in persistent exhaustion that can negatively affect quality of life. According to the survey, one-third of respondents with chronic diseases experienced extreme tiredness but didn't recognize it was a symptom before their diagnosis. Identifying and managing these conditions properly can help alleviate some of the overwhelming feelings of exhaustion.

While you might be inclined to dismiss or brush off tiredness as not a priority, persistent problems are not something you have to live with. If sleep-related issues or extreme tiredness begin to affect your everyday life, you can schedule a virtual visit with an MD Live board-certified doctor to discuss your concerns. •
