Privacy Rights Go Out With Trash

By Rob McCarthy

Strangers rummaging through garbage cans at the curbside have generated discussion on social media lately. Residents are understandably concerned about protecting their homes from opportunistic thieves lurking about. Are scavengers who dig through your barrels breaking the law?

The household trash placed at the curb isn't protected by law, but that doesn't mean it's okay to take the contents of the barrel either. That's the consensus, based on comments left at the neighbor-to-neighbor website called Nextdoor.com. Homeowners lose all rights over trash when it's put out at curbside, according to a U.S. Supreme Court case that sent a drug trafficker to prison in 1988.

However, the recyclables in the blue barrels and bins belong to the cities...and removing bottles and cans is breaking the law. That is the opinion of several city attorneys in Los Angeles County and a belief shared by several residents who took part in an animated discussion on Nextdoor.com.

Before getting to their comments, here's a brief review of the 30-year-old Supreme Court case back when trash barrels were metal -- not plastic -- and before recycling was a common household term.

The justices in a 1988 California case decided that any right to privacy or from unreasonable search and seizure is defined by a homeowner's property line. If the garbage cans are on private property, they're off limits to police without a search warrant as well as to scavengers. Since the case was decided, identity theft has become a huge problem, giving South Bay residents another reason for concern.

It is common knowledge," the justices wrote, that "garbage left on or at the side of the public street are readily accessible to animals, children, scavengers, snoops and other members of the public."

South Bay residents posting on the social media report seeing cars pull up in front of their houses in daylight and at night. Occupants of the vehicles get out of the car, lift the lids on the green and blue trash bins, and pick through the discards before the garbage collector arrives. Neighbors say it makes them nervous knowing that prying eyes are going through their once-personal property.

One resident found a solution. She places her green and blue trash bins at the end of her driveway, so they're on private property. She warned the scavengers they were trespassing and they haven't come back since the encounter, she wrote on Nextdoor.com.

Other residents are empathetic to the plight of the scavengers who come looking for aluminum cans, glass and plastic bottles they can redeem for cash. Residents admit to feeling torn about wanting to help the less fortunate versus the homeowners' lack of privacy and security in plain sight. "They're just trying to make a living," one resident said in a post. "And frankly, they are recycling stuff [scrap metal] that would end up in landfills."

Still, there is a sense of uneasiness among neighbors who report regular weekly visits ahead of the garbage collection trucks. Not even using a shredder to eliminate the risk of identity theft takes away the feeling that comes with knowing that remnants of your life are on public view at the curb. "It's still oddly invasive having someone go through your trash," one resident wrote on Nextdoor.com.

Some residents said they're willing to look the other way when scavengers go through the recyclables set out at curbside. Others insist it's stealing and the loss of revenue from the redemption of cans and bottles ultimately will lead to higher trash pickup rates for everyone.

One resident added that welcoming that kind of activity would increase property crimes, including residential burglaries and other crimes of opportunity committed by outsiders coming into the city. "I'm just as worried that these people are also casing houses, seeing whether you're home during the day or night, what you have parked in your driveway, what's in your car, etc.," the poster wrote. "It's naive to think someone who is already stealing wouldn't take the opportunity to grab something off your property -- or worse, load it in their car and leave."

The Los Angeles County District Attorney advises residents to shred their unwanted mail before tossing it into the trash barrel. Unsolicited offers for credit cards or personal loans contain sensitive information, including a person's name and address that identity thieves use in their crimes, according to the DA's office.

A South Bay legal expert says that privacy rights are thrown out with the weekly garbage unless a homeowner takes precautions to keep prying eyes from seeing what's inside those barrels. "Keeping trash bins closer to your home before a scheduled pickup may offer less exposure of your personal information during that time," said a column about the subject co-written by Donie Vanitzian, a mediator based on Marina del Rey. "But as the [Supreme] court stressed, it is unlikely anything can prevent other owners -- especially nosy ones -- from snooping through your trash bins once they are subject to public access."

Vanitzian added there's little to do to prevent police and determined snooping neighbors from getting into your curbside trash and learning something about you that you'd prefer to keep hidden. • of 9 and 13. This story is brimming with challenges and solutions that feel authentic and realistic. Anderson's characters are well-developed and the plot is well-constructed and woven with emotions.

The story takes place in the halls of Branton Middle School at a time when cellphones have been banned due to problems with online bullying, causing the student population to go into a frenzy. As a result, the students develop a new way of communicating with one another: Post-it notes. Some of them use the Post-it notes to leave cruel messages on the lockers of other students. The story follows four friends and the "sticky note war" as well as a new student, Rose Holland, who challenges the quiet acceptance of the harsh taunts and bullying. The message that words can hurt and that they have a lasting effect is not a new idea, but it is one that warrants reminding -- especially when the Internet can encourage anonymity and lessen the sense of responsibility for one's words. Perhaps the most important message presented in this novel is that even though it can be difficult and scary, we should not be afraid to make our voices heard if we are standing up for what's right. This is a story that is sure to capture the reader's attention.

Film Review

Charlize Theron Plays a Fearless Mother in the Riveting Film Tully

By Ryan Rojas for www.cinemacy.com

If you're looking for a film that is simultaneously sharp and funny, as well as deeply and deftly observational of the struggles of early motherhood, then I can't recommend Tully enough. Starring a fearless Charlize Theron as a mother of two -- and then to an unexpected third, before a night nanny comes to offer her some relief -- Tully is intimate, hasn't displayed since Young Adult which, no coincidence, was also directed by Jason Reitman and penned by screenwriter Diablo Cody. In that film, Theron portrayed a woman looking to steal a married man away. She plays the exact opposite role in Tully. They are bookend performances, no doubt, and Tully showcases Theron as a serious actress willing to take on these sorts emotionally affecting, and in the end, an unexpectedly surprising film that should connect with audiences who are willing to seek out a smaller, darker movie about the joys and hardship of motherhood.

Marlo (Theron) is a mother of two, struggling to keep her head above water when an unexpected third child enters the equation. With heavy bags under her eyes and a bloated middle (Theron gained 50 pounds for the role), she is obviously overworked and beyond tired, which her sweet but oblivious husband Drew (Ron Livingston) doesn't seem to notice. This leads her financially well-off brother, Craig (Mark Duplass), to offer her the services of a night nanny to help when her newborn arrives. When Marlo welcomes child number three, she's hesitant to accept Craig's offer... until she can no longer say no. This is when we see the arrival of Tully (Mackenzie Davis) -- a free-spirited bohemian girl living out her youthful twenties as a caretaker, who swoops in at night and cares for the infant so Marlo can get a decent night's sleep. Early hesitations turn into a real connection and friendship, in which Marlo reconnects with her younger self, resulting in a freer, lighter spirit that fosters a more positive self-image. However, Tully goes even further when it reveals the dilemma Marlo feels in confronting the spirited nanny about whether to continue using her services or revert back to mothering by herself.

In Tully, Theron takes on her role with full fire and commitment. It's absolutely Theron's movie, and she should be applauded for her commitment that requires her to be so emotionally vulnerable -- something she of demanding roles. Not to be overlooked, Mackenzie Davis is true magic onscreen as her spirit captivates at every turn and only promises more moving performances.

While Tully is a small movie that might not register with everyone, its detail is extremely rewarding. Reitman crafts a very moving love letter to the tolls of motherhood and all that it demands. The film leans into its humor with a strong story and dialogue that are absolutely fearless as well as humorous. Theron, Reitman and Cody collectively manage to craft a sharp and funny movie with beautiful images and sequences that will remain in audiences' heads long after the credits.

Tully is rated R for language and some sexuality/nudity. 95 minutes. Now playing in theaters everywhere including ArcLight Beach Cities. •

Hawthorne Happenings

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

I'm more grumpy at the end of each month when my meds start running low. Of course it's just the opposite after having a few sips of a cold one, or when my ol' lady is not around to bug me, then they think I'm on a "high". I tell them I get high on life, I don't need no stimulants to get me going.

HALL OF FAME BANQUET – THIS SATURDAY NIGHT

It's not too late to RSVP for a great Hawthorne celebration. The Historical Society started a Hawthorne Hall of Fame four years ago. There have been three banquets and 15 people, organizations and businesses have been selected to belong to this illustrious group. Another five have been selected for the class of 2019. The history of Hawthorne has been full of outstanding achievement and commitment to excellence. The five being honored this year exemplify these same traits. This year's banquet is on Saturday, May 19th at 6 pm at the Ayres Hotel located at 14400 Hindry Avenue in Hawthorne. The class of 2018 inductees include: Joe Contestabile, The Hawthorne Kiwanis Club, Phillips Plumbing and Heating, Chet Pipkin, and Emitt Rhodes. The MC for the evening's program will be Christina Pascucci, KTLA anchor. It looks like another great event for the residents of Hawthorne to celebrate the accomplishments of some great people and organizations. Please call Dick Huhn at 310-643-9157 ASAP to RSVP.

DISASTER PREPAREDNESS

Southern California Gas and the Hawthorne Chamber of Commerce are sponsoring a disaster preparedness workshop on Saturday, May 19th from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at St. Joseph's Community Center located at 11901 Acacia Avenue in Hawthorne. A panel of experts will tell us how to be prepared for earthquakes, terrorism and other emergencies. This event is free to the public and refreshments will be served.

COMMUNITY K9 DINNER

The Hawthorne Presidents Council will be hosting a community bbq dinner on Thursday, May 24 beginning at 5 p.m. at the Hawthorne Memorial Center. All funds raised that evening will go to the HPD's K9 unit.

EMOTIONS

God created us in His image and gave us emotions. We can love or hate. We can feel angry or feel happy. We can cry or laugh. He created us with a conscience and a brain so that we should know right from wrong. I tend to wear my emotions on my sleeve. My students, coworkers, and ol' lady can just about look at me and tell what my mood is. My brother- and sister-in-law think

These past few weeks I have had quite a few of emotions with some long-awaited, impending lifestyle changes forthcoming. Anxious would be my dominant emotion right now. I'm anxious to complete with my teaching job. I'm anxious to move to Orangevale and start a new chapter in my life with my ol' lady. I'm anxious and excited about retiring and having a choice of what I can do Monday thru Friday. I say all of this knowing full well that the "grass is always greener" somewhere else in the world. Just like it is always "6 pm happy hour" some place on the face of the earth. God tells us to number our days. He wants us to enjoy every day that he gives us. Anticipating future happy times is fine, but the mundane, routine, normal, regular days are also to be lived. Our days can be like cold ones, refreshing from start to finish. Just don't let it go stale on you. Enjoy every last drop, every last minute. God willing, He will give us another day to wake up to. Keep in mind that if we put our trust in God, we can look forward to that "eternal happy hour" in a mansion that He is preparing for us. Now that is something to be happy about.

SHOULD I KEEP ON TRYING TO WRITE?

One of my 18 readers asked me to keep on writing this column even when I don't live in Hawthorne. I asked why? She told me I'm crazy and she enjoys reading my ramblings. I have already told my newspaper bosses that I'm going to stop. I'm sure there are much more polished, professional and profound writers out there to step in. Everyone is replaceable. Life goes on. I'm old and worn out like my advice. If you are not enjoying a cold one by now, I can't help you. Who knows? Maybe there isn't anyone as literarily language-challenged as me.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. Simple Ways To Save On Your Pet's Medical Costs

(BPT) - Pet parents know that there's nothing like the love of furry family members. Keeping your pets healthy is a priority because you want them to live as long as possible. However, health care costs for pets are expensive, and if you are dealing with additional expenses such as prescriptions for chronic conditions, it can become a burden to your budget.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" is just as applicable to pets as it is to their human caregivers. One of the most important things a pet parent can do to ensure the ongoing health of any animal is to bring them in for annual checkups whether they are experiencing health issues or not.

During wellness checkups, veterinarians can screen for a variety of health conditions. They provide insight on diseases, age-related concerns, dental health, nutritional considerations and so much more. Plus you're able to provide your pet with important vaccinations.

Costs for managing your pet's health can be a bear with pet owners spending more than $8 billion on prescription and over-the-counter medications annually. The Inside Rx Pets program offers savings on commonly prescribed medications such as insulin and antibiotics, as well as seizure, glaucoma and anti-inflammatory drugs. The Inside Rx Pets savings card is not insurance; it is a savings card you can use for certain human medications that may be prescribed for your pet. A complete list of the medications with which you can use the Inside Rx Pet card, as well as pricing information and other details, can be found at <https://InsideRx.com/Pets>.

Benefiting from these discounts is easy for pet parents: If your pet's veterinarian writes a prescription for an applicable medication, simply download the free discount card from the Inside Rx Pets website and present it with the prescription at one of the 40,000 participating pharmacies located across the U.S. that fill prescriptions for animals.

Obesity is a growing concern for many pets. Poor nutrition paired with limited exercise causes pets to put on additional weight. This weight can put them at higher risk for health concerns like diabetes, osteoarthritis and ligament injuries.

Pets, just like humans, require exercise and proper nutrition to stay healthy and feel their best. Whether that's letting your rabbit out of the cage to run or going on a walk with your dog, be sure to make regular exercise a part of your fur family's routine. If you're unsure what is appropriate for your pet, call your veterinarian or bring it up at a wellness visit.

Some people are starting pet health savings accounts (HSAs) that are similar to the accounts that people hold for themselves to pay for medical expenses.

Being proactive is important for keeping your pets healthy for many years. From scheduling annual wellness visits to taking advantage of the Inside Rx Pets discount card, there are many easy actions pet parents can take today to reduce costs so furry family members stay well.

June is National Pet Adoption Month, a great time to consider providing a home to a pet from a local shelter. •

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Hwy., Redondo Beach 90277, from noon to 3: 30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability, you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one.

"Hi there, my name is Davis! My brother Dobbs and I were dumped at an LA area shelter by our previous owners and we're guessing it's because we had sarcoptic mange and they didn't want to deal with it. Why else would someone turn in a 1-year old, male Miniature Schnauzer mix? Treating sarcoptic mange is no easy task and the shelter made it perfectly clear that I had to exit the place immediately since this condition is highly contagious. Ta-da...MSFR to the rescue and I'm so very grateful to them! It was a pretty lengthy process of isolation and treatments at their veterinarian for several weeks. Now that I've had my last treatment, I'm ready to find my forever home. It's amazing what TLC and medication can do! I don't even come close to resembling the bald, patchy-haired guy that was rescued. Now everyone can see that I'm quite good-looking with my natural ears, my natural tail and the great 'schnauzery' handsomeness. In addition to my adorable appearance, I am extremely sweet and eager to please -- but need some training, as I had never seen a leash until I was rescued. I'm 15 pounds of love and affection and would be a great addition to your family."

If you're interested in Davis, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

I'm Dobbs, and I believe you've already met my brother Davis. Our previous owners dumped us at an LA area shelter and there is no doubt it's because we had sarcoptic mange and they didn't want to treat it. It's the only reason I can think of that would cause someone turn in a 1-year-old, 15-pound, sweet little male Miniature Schnauzer mix. Treating sarcoptic mange is very time-consuming and the shelter made it perfectly clear that because this condition is highly contagious, I was not welcome there. Thankfully, it was MSFR to the rescue and I'm so glad they took me in. Treatment required a several-week stay at the veterinarian's so that I could remain isolated while getting Ivermectin treatments. I have had my last treatment and I'm ready to look for a family that will want me and all the love I have to give. Honestly, if you were to see me now, you'd never believe I was the patch-haired, semi-bald dog that was rescued.

Sushi

Even though I'm a mix, I have inherited all of the 'schnauzery' good looks -- especially with my natural ears and natural tail. Since I'm not very big, I am easily transportable and ready to go anywhere. Well, I do need a bit of training because I didn't even know what a leash was until I was rescued. I am really sweet and eager to please, so training should be a great bonding time for us."

If you're interested in Davis, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"How would you like to be abandoned by your family after loving them and being a loyal companion for 10 years? Well, I certainly was devastated when it happened to me. My name is Sushi and I was rescued from an Inland Empire shelter after my family told the shelter they were moving and couldn't take me with them -- so they just dumped me. The shelter folks felt so badly for me that they gave me a dental, a blood work-up and then contacted MSFR to ask them if they could rescue me because they were doubtful they could find a home for me. A trip to the MSFR veterinarian, who took x-rays, quickly revealed that I have an enlarged heart and a grade 4 heart murmur. I had an appointment with a cardiologist, who confirmed that medication would definitely help my heart murmur and so I'm now on the inexpensive kind and feeling fine. I'm also planning on dropping a couple of pounds because at my current weight of 24 pounds, I'm a tad overweight. Luckily, I still get along and love to play with other dogs and I have a great temperament. You'd be hard-pressed to find a sweeter and more affectionate dog anywhere. Add my stunning good looks with my black and silver coat and I would be the perfect dog for you."

Happy Tails

Congratulations to Billie and his new family!

Congratulations to Billie, our Schnauzer mix rescue from Tijuana, and his new family. He was actually rescued by another organization in November and we took him in. He has been just waiting for the perfect family to come along and adopt him -- and the wait was worth it. His new family came to us via a referral from a longtime friend and fellow rescuer after they lost their 12-year-old Lab to cancer. Their Spaniel mix was very lonely and when the family met Billie at Yellow Brick Road doggie daycare (now known as Down Dog Lodge), it was a done deal. The two dogs, who are similar in size, hit it off like they had known each other their whole lives and are the best of buddies. In addition to a new Spaniel sister, Billie has a new mom, dad and a human teenage sister. Billie is now living in El Segundo and we want to send a huge thanks to Charlotte for her hand in bringing this family together. We expect there will be many happy stories to tell and happiness to share. •

THE YELLOW DOG PROJECT.com

If you see a dog with a YELLOW RIBBON or something yellow on the leash, this is a dog who needs some space. Please do not approach this dog with your dog. Please maintain distance or give this dog and his/her person time to move out of your way.

There are many reasons why a dog may need space:

HEALTH ISSUES
IN TRAINING
BEING REHABILITATED
SCARED OR REACTIVE AROUND OTHER DOGS

THANK YOU!

Those of us who own these dogs appreciate your help and respect!
