Career Pathways Grads Honored

Mayor James T. Butts, Jr. congratulates the third class of 40 formerly incarcerated adults from South Bay Workforce Investment Board's Career Pathways 180 Job Preparation Academy in cooperation with the Los Angeles Central Parole District and California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation on July 13. ## School Board Commends Workers Regarding Facility Improvements

By Haleemon Anderson

Maintenance and Facilities was represented by 13 staff members at last week's meeting of the Inglewood School Board. The group of staff members and managers received commendations from the Board for a year of unprecedented improvements and enhancements district-wide. "These are the people who are making it happen," said Board President Margaret Turner-Evans.

Chief Business Official Eugenio D. Villa reported on the process. "We have just completed over $6 million in facilities maintenance," he said. "We have another $30 million in improvements starting in the next six months. It's a complex and sophisticated process. We are trying to build out our capacity rather than hiring more construction managers."

Multiple projects have been completed, according to a written report available at the meeting. Portable buildings have been demolished and removed at Monroe K-8, Bennett-Kew, Oak, and Payne elementary schools. Monroe expects to receive Los Angeles World Airports (LAWA) funding to continue building new classrooms, with a projected completion date by the end of this year.

New playgrounds have been installed at Bennett-Kew and Highland. Oak Elementary hopes to receive a new playground within weeks. Construction to modernize Oak restrooms and provide ADA upgrades will start next year, using LAWA funds.

At the high schools, improvements are also in the works. Leased portables at the old City Honors site have been removed. The pool at Morningside will be painted and repaired, with improvements due to be completed by September, with modernization plans expected to begin next year.

Bobbie Hill, from Concordia, the development firm that prepared the report, said Inglewood Unified School District estimates that it will have $130 million in facilities funding "from several sources," including LAWA and Measure GG – as well as from developer fees coming from the NFL stadium development in Inglewood.

State Administrator Thelma Melendez de Santa Ana said the repairs to the pool and bleachers offer a great opportunity for the high schools. "We hope to attract middle school students back to their local high school," she said.

Campaign to Simplify Voting is Going Strong in the South Bay

By Rob McCarthy

If voting is such a privilege, why did so many registered residents skip the June primary? The absentee rate hovered near 75 percent in some South Bay communities.

El Segundo had a modest turnout -- 39 percent -- for a primary election with no local school bond issues to decide. Still, 61 percent of El Segundo citizens who were eligible to cast ballots remained silent about the finalists in the fall for Governor, the State Assembly and Senate, and the Congress.

In Inglewood, Hawthorne and Lawndale, citizens had school bond measures to decide that affect homeowners' tax bills and the quality of public education. The turnout in those communities was 25 percent or less, despite the kind of pocketbook issues that drive interest and participation on Election Day.

So, why did so many people forgo their right to weigh in on these important questions? Knowing that property values are connected to school test scores, Hawthorne residents had money riding on the outcome on June 5. So did voters in Lawndale, where 42 took the time to vote. Inglewood decided a city charter amendment about local elections.

Los Angeles' County officials have studied voter turnout for almost a decade and think they understand why the majority of eligible voters aren't engaged in summer

Riveting I'll Be Gone in the Dark Traces Serial Murderer's Path

Reviewed by Jeff Huttinger, Library Assistant, El Segundo Public Library

You have to prepare yourself when reading true crime – a hardening of the heart, if you will. Somber tributes by victims' families, dripping with affection and loss, tug at the heartstrings so fiercely that you wince at the thought of turning another page. Many times, a lack of closure can frustrate as a still unknown killer remains at-large denying the reader a true ending -- and along with it, any sense of fairness in the world. Not to mention the violent imagery that keeps you up at night. There are grisly details so jarring that you have to turn away every few chapters.

Tragically, author Michelle McNamara's I'll Be Gone in the Dark, a book of obsessive determination and self-sacrifice, comes with an added layer of misfortune. McNamara died suddenly in early 2016, prior to the completion of the book, of an accidental overdose, but her life's work is not in vain. I'll Be Gone in the Dark is an incredibly well-written and easily accessible chronicling of the terror elicited on California from 1974 to 1986 by a serial murderer dubbed the Golden State Killer. This monster is ultimately responsible for at least 12 murders and more than 50 rapes.

Through meticulous research, McNamara takes the reader back in time, tracing a route from victim to victim while touring various locations in the present day. Dark is filled with eyewitness interviews, police procedure, forensic evidence and thoughtful speculation from dedicated amateur sleuths just as determined to solve the mystery as the author herself.

Make no mistake, however. It is McNamara's heart and dogged perseverance that truly elevates this material above traditional true crime. Nowhere in the book is it more absorbing (and more somber) than the pages dedicated to Michelle's wonderful family and the balancing act she endured daily juggling parental/spousal responsibility with a tenacious pursuit of justice. She spent countless hours poring over decades-old police reports and ghastly crime scene photos until the wee hours of the morning, all while her family slept peacefully nearby. But as McNamara described the elation of tiny details connecting together to form a bigger picture, one gets the sense that she wouldn't have had it any other way.

There have been several updates to the Golden State Killer case since the release of I'll Be Gone in the Dark, including a likely suspect. A true ending to this book may be imminent -- and with it, one less reason to deny yourself such an amazing read.

To check out I'll Be Gone in the Dark, also available in e-book and audiobook formats, or browse any of our other true crime titles, please visit the library to apply for your free library card. This book would also qualify for prizes in our Adult Summer Reading program, going on now through September 1. The program includes activities, raffles and fun events! ## Film Review

The Meaning of Love Is Explored in the Futuristic Drama, Zoe

By Morgan Rojas for www.cinemacy.com

Drake Doremus has done it again. The independent film director takes the familiar theme of love in modern relationships and adds an exciting new sci-fi element to his latest romantic drama, Zoe. Starring Ewan McGregor as an entrepreneur computer scientist and Léa Seydoux as his research assistant, Zoe is a beautiful and heartbreaking look at the complexities of love and the lengths one is willing to go to in order to hold onto it.

Set in an undisclosed time in the future, Cole (McGregor) is at the forefront of revolutionizing romantic relationships. He has developed technology that determines the compatibility and likelihood of long-term success for couples looking to take that next step in their relationship. Each person is put through an intense question and answer session, with the results being run through Cole's computer system and then compared to those of their significant other's. In addition to the computer system, Cole has also been working on creating an ideal physical partner for singletons unlucky in love. "Synthetics," as they're called, are programmed to be completely compatible with, and never betray, their partner -- qualities with which humans struggle.

While working closely with Cole on this new development, Zoe (Seydoux) becomes increasingly overwhelmed with romantic feelings for him. Although she knows she shouldn't, Zoe asks if she can personally undergo the Q&A -- which ends up revealing intimate memories and vulnerabilities. When no one is looking, she runs a compatibility test with Cole with shocking results that reflect a 0.00 percent chance success rate. Dumbfounded, Zoe can't help but be honest with Cole about her discovery. His explanation as to why their relationship could never work out, despite their mutual attraction, leaves Zoe questioning her entire existence.

Doremus keeps to his signature 50 shades of blue color palette to create a moody and fresh vibe, similar to 2017's Newness. Partnering up with composer Dan Romer and music supervisor Chris Douridas, the score and music add another powerful element by giving the film its dark, dreamy tone. Songs from indie artists like Beach House are electrically hypnotic and the perfect companion to the visuals on screen.

The performances from McGregor and Seydoux are equally raw and vulnerable (and the irony of McGregor playing a man who strives to create the perfect companion who will never leave his partner is not lost on me). Supporting actors Theo James, Rashida Jones, Matthew Gray Gubler, and even Christina Aguilera add further star power to the romantic sci-fi. Drake Doremus definitely knows a thing or two about how to portray an intangible thing like love as either the heaviest burden or the lightest, most effervescent feeling.

"What do you want your partner to see in you?" asks Cole in the very first line of the film. "I want them to see me for who I really am," answers Zoe. This sentiment, while universal and fundamentally positive, turns out to have deeper implications than Zoe could have ever imagined, and is the crux of the film's emotional despair. This philosophical questioning of love and authenticity is what makes Zoe so unforgettable among the sea of other festival films. As of this review, Zoe had been acquired by Amazon Prime for a summer release.

Zoe is rated R for some sexual material and drug content. 104 minutes. Now streaming on Amazon. •

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

school kids for 41 years has kept me youngish looking. Maybe all of those cold ones have something to do with it.

100TH BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

The address to send birthday cards to Frances Stiglich to wish her well on her 100th birthday is: 12316 Dormouse Road, San Diego, CA 92129. Frances always loved Hawthorne and we all loved her "tell it like it is" style whenever she spoke at a city council meeting.

HOT, DRY AND SMOKY

I'm writing this from Bend, OR where it's hot, dry and smoky due to the wildfires that are burning in Southern and Central Oregon. There were reports of over 160 fires burning that were ignited by lightning strikes. We stopped to visit relatives in this popular vacation and outdoors mecca. Many Californians have moved here and work out of their homes using the internet. They have escaped the Bay Area or LA and enjoy skiing in the winter and warm summer temps and a lot of outdoor opportunities. My ol' lady loves to shop up here since there is no sales tax in Oregon. The lakes and streams are full of fish. The campgrounds are full. There are many golf courses to enjoy. You just have to enjoy the colder temps during six to eight months of the year. Some good snow storms usually come through. And finally, like most hip and happening places, they have plenty of microbreweries and wineries. Seems like where ever I go, most everyone enjoys their cold ones. Like always, try to stay cool, have a cold one.

KEEP ME INFORMED

Drop me an email and let me know of what is happening in Hawthorne or any special event coming up. I depend on my 17 readers to keep me in the loop.

THE FILING PERIOD IS STILL OPEN

There have been several people pull papers for each of the open seats for the upcoming Hawthorne city election to be held this November but there is still time to file to run. The filing period will end on August 10th for all positions except for City Clerk which will end on August 15th at 5 p.m. Here is a list of people who have pulled papers so far: For City Council: L. David Patterson, Olivia Valentine, Angie Reyes English, Jason Gromski, Alex Monteiro, and Timothy Hagerty. For City Treasurer: L. David Patterson and Ryan Richard. For City Clerk: Dr. Paul Jimenez and John L. Jefferson. It's not too late to get involved and run for a city office.

CRUISE NIGHT AND HIGH SCHOOL REUNION

I hear that the HHS Cougar Cruise Night was well attended and was great time. I was up in Shelton, WA last Saturday attending my 45 high school reunion. It was nice to see some old friends. I remembered most of the basketball and football players since I hung out with most of the jocks back then. I was saddened to see that 29 of my classmates are no longer with us and several of my teammates are in declining health and could not attend. Our star football player who later played with the Seattle Seahawks died recently from complications related to head trauma. The NFL was doing testing to see if his condition was due to his playing days. Football is a violent sport these days and parents have to now decide whether they want their sons taking the risk of head injury. I did get a few people commenting that I looked the same as I looked back in high school. I guess teaching high

Equipment Warranties 101: What You Should Know

(BPT) - From smartphones to mattresses, almost everything you buy comes with some kind of warranty. How can you ensure you get the most benefit from a warranty, especially for a major investment that's also critical to the comfort of your home, like a new furnace?

"Warranties are meant to assure a homeowner that the furnace they're purchasing will do what it's supposed to, is free of defects and meets applicable government regulations or standards," says Chip Wade, HGTV expert. "However, warranties are often very specific about the circumstances under which the manufacturer will repair or replace the furnace if it doesn't work properly.

Because written warranties are legally binding documents, you may come across unfamiliar terms as you're reading yours, including:

Product warranty - This is the guarantee that comes from the company that manufactures the furnace. Contractors and installers may offer extended warranties that apply to their work, including the labor required to install the furnace. YORK(R) is one of the only manufacturers that manages their own extended warranties.

Warranty term - The length of time the coverage is offered is called the warranty term. These can vary significantly; however, YORK(R) heating and cooling offers a lifetime heat exchanger warranty on its YORK(R) Affinity(TM) gas furnaces. In addition, YORK(R) offers the Complete Assurance(TM) Warranty Pledge with this furnace. If the heat exchanger fails within 10 years of installation, YORK(R) provides optional furnace replacement in lieu of heat primaries or fall general elections. The time to vote is short, polling places are out of the way, and people who either forget to register or have moved are locked out by the rules. That's about to change.

Starting in 2020, when and where people vote will be completely different. No longer will a resident be required to vote in his or her city. In fact, any resident of a South Bay city -- or Los Angeles County -- can cast a ballot or register over 11 days in any city they choose. This innovative voter project is expected to be in place for the Nov. 3, 2020 general election when a president and a new Congress are chosen.

Election officials are replacing one-day polling centers with Vote Centers, which will be close to transit lines and worksites where eligible county residents can walk in and cast a ballot, according to spokeswoman Brenda Duran with the Los Angeles County Registrars-County Clerk's office. A center might be located in a storefront along a busy boulevard like Sepulveda/Pacific Coast Highway or a traffic artery like Aviation used by residents of the beach cities.

A large employer, like Boeing or DirectTV, may qualify for a Vote Center if people from outside the business can vote there, too. "Both types of businesses may work if they can satisfy critical factors such as accessibility and are convenient to voters," Duran said.

Mail-in balloting won't be going away in 2020. Election officials say they are determined to remove some of the other obstacles that keep people from exercising a basic right of citizenship. Transportation and time to vote are among the highest hurdles that need to come down, which is why the Los Angeles County Registrar of Voters and County Clerk launched a voter-centered approach to voting, or VSAP. The effort started nearly a decade ago.

Innovation with the election process has its limits. A home would not qualify as a Vote

Center because it's not accessible to enough people, according to Duran. But the area's shopping malls might, if the property owners caught the vision and agreed.

There is a time commitment for those who do. Vote Centers must open 10 days before the 2020 election day.

There is a formula for how many Vote Centers South Bay cities will get. The math goes like this:

-- Ten days before Election Day, one voting center will be open for every 30,000 people registered. That means a minimum of one for El Segundo and Lawndale, and two for Inglewood and Hawthorne.

-- Three days before Election Day, a Vote Center will be in operation for every 7,500 eligible voters. This guarantees Inglewood eight voting places and four for Hawthorne. Lawndale and El Segundo, with 13,593 and 11,492 registered voters apiece, would have two.

Where those centers will be located is now being decided. The County's elections office is asking the public's help with placing the Vote Centers. Anyone can suggest a Vote Center location and view how the voting landscape is shaping up across the county ahead of 2020.

Go to <http://www.placeworkscivic.com/project/lacovcpp> to nominate a place and answer a few questions about why it would make a convenient location with good public access.

The questionnaire indicates the County wants sites near public transportation routes and that are handicapped accessible and offer plenty of parking. Poll workers also need reliable Wi-Fi service.

The longer 11-day window to cast a walk-up ballot means fewer polling places are needed, according to Duran. No worries -- it's a fair tradeoff because there is more flexibility and time to cast ballots, including Saturdays and Sundays. County election officials expect to have 800 to 1,000 Vote Centers up and running for the 2020 general election. •

School Board

The Board revealed an outline of the District's 5-year strategic plan and noted the full 94-page document can be viewed online. Director of Human Resources Nora Roque said an administrative retreat is planned for Aug. 1, and the plan will be rolled out to teachers at the start of the school year.

In public comments, Chris Graeber, a union rep for classified workers, took exception to agenda item 5, questioning administrative positions being hired. Graber said no classified workers are being hired, and noted that with the November general election there is likely to be a new state superintendent. "Our question is," said Graeber speaking for the union, "there's no money, but people get raises? [You] say the HR department is doing well, but we don't see it."

A teacher and union rep questioned hiring practices and executive salaries, saying employees are "severely underpaid. We are only here to make the District better. [You] have to make it transparent and not go back and forth."

A parent, Mario Sanchez, whose daughter attends Morningside High, addressed the Board to express disappointment with leadership. Sanchez asked the Board to look into a teacher who is failing whole classes at the high school.

A representative from Autumn Burke's office announced the annual Back to School and Wellness Fair. The assemblywoman sponsors the annual event, to be held at Crozier Middle School in Inglewood, Aug. 11 at 10:30 a.m.

The Inglewood School Board meets once monthly, unless otherwise noted. The next meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 8, at 5:30 p.m. at 401 S. Inglewood Ave., in the Dr. Ernest Shaw Board Room. •

Facilities and Maintenance staff is commended by the Inglewood School Board for a year of unprecedented improvements at schools throughout the district.

exchanger equipment.

Parts warranty - Most furnace warranties will cover replacement of specific parts if they malfunction within the warranty time frame and the problem is a result of a manufacturer's defect.

Non-transferable - When you have a new home comfort system installed, if the furnace warranty is non-transferable, the coverage will not transfer to the new owners if you sell the house before the end of the warranty term.

"No homeowner ever wants to hear their warranty has been voided by something they did or something they were supposed to do but didn't," Wade says. "That's why it's so important to read your detailed furnace warranty very carefully, so you know what the manufacturer and installer require in order to honor the warranty."

- Register the product purchase with the manufacturer. Most manufacturers require homeowners to register their furnace with the manufacturer within a specified window of time after the purchase and installation. A majority of YORK(R) contractors will register the warranty on behalf of the homeowner. For those that do not, homeowners are required to register within 90 days of installation. Visit www.york.com/warranty to learn more about the company's warranties.

- Work with a qualified YORK(R) contractor who can properly install the product. If a part doesn't work because it wasn't installed properly, the manufacturer will likely say the installer, and not the manufacturer, is liable for fixing the problem.

- Follow manufacturer's maintenance recommendations. In order for your furnace to operate as it should, it will need to be professionally serviced every year. Keep service records for reference, in case there is ever an issue that arises.

"A new furnace is a big investment, and it's one that's essential to preserve the comfort of your home," Wade says. "A good manufacturer's warranty can help you be sure you're getting a quality product that's backed by a company that will stand by its work." •

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Hwy., Redondo Beach 90277, from noon to 3: 30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability, you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one.

"Let me introduce myself. My name is Blanca and shortly before the 4th of July, I decided I needed to find a place to feel safe during the holiday. While I was scouting for comfy location, I got turned around and couldn't find my way home. That is how I ended up at an LA County shelter as a stray. I didn't have a collar, tags or microchip... so there was no way to contact my previous owner. Luckily, I had a potential adopter that was supposed to come for me. Sadly, they never did. The folks at MSFR just couldn't leave an adorable 5-year-old, female Miniature Schnauzer at the shelter, so they rescued me. They could tell that I have had numerous litters, so the first thing on the list was a little neutering procedure to put an end to that. Don't ask me how I managed to keep my figure and my weight -- a mere 12 pounds -- with all of those litters, but I have. I've also got a gorgeous light silver coat and huge, dark eyes. I'm very sweet and I enjoy socially interacting with other dogs, so I'd be the perfect addition to any family. Please visit me at our adoption fair and see what a special gal I am."

If you're interested in Blanca, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"If you are looking for a cute, little friendly guy with a comical personality, look no further. Just come to our adoption fair and ask for me -- Archie. On July 4., my brother and I were running for our lives. There were bombs bursting in air, things popping and whistling and crackling all around us. We were so scared that we just kept on running and running... until we got lost and ended up at an LA area shelter the next day. My brother got adopted almost immediately, but they couldn't care for two of us and they left me behind. When the MSFR folks saw my shelter picture with one ear up, one ear down looking scruffily adorable, they had to rescue me. I'm a purebred Miniature Schnauzer that is only 2 years old, so I still have a lot of time to provide adventures and comic relief to my forever family. Now that I've been sort of groomed, I'm looking pretty dapper and we discovered that I have big, beautiful bat ears that stand at attention. Who knew? I'm a pretty happy little 15-pound guy who gets along great with other dogs and would love to be part of your family."

If you're interested in Archie, please email info@msfr.org for more information. •

Happy Tails

Congratulations to Davis, Dobbs and their new family!

Congratulations to Davis, Dobbs and their new family. Talk about a "Cinderella" story. These two little guys were dumped by their previous owners, most likely due to a skin condition. Then because that condition was highly contagious, they were persona non grata at the shelter. Talk about rejection and despair! A lot of TLC and medicated baths transformed these two into the handsome adorable boys you see now. Is it any wonder that their new "parents" couldn't resist welcoming both of them into their hearts? Their new family previously had two Schnauzers that passed due to old age and disease, so adopting another pair just seemed the perfect thing to do. Davis, now named Bailey, and Dobbs, now named Miles, reside in Long Beach. Huge plus for this duo -- they have a 10-year-old human sister and a 12-year-old human brother to make their lives even better. Wishing all of them many years of laughter and happiness...

THE YELLOW DOG PROJECT.com

If you see a dog with a YELLOW RIBBON or something yellow on the leash, this is a dog who needs some space. Please do not approach this dog with your dog. Please maintain distance or give this dog and his/her person time to move out of your way.

There are many reasons why a dog may need space:

- HEALTH ISSUES
- IN TRAINING
- BEING REHABILITATED
- SCARED OR REACTIVE AROUND OTHER DOGS

THANK YOU!

Those of us who own these dogs appreciate your help and respect!
