LESD Students Participate in South Bay Hackathon

The Hackathon was created with the goal to connect students to local professionals and to engage students in applied STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics) activities, help the students build the necessary skillset needed to succeed in competitive college and career engineering pathways, and inspire young people to choose STEM careers. Eighty students from four area schools were challenged to figure out how an astronaut stranded on a remote planet could send an emergency message to colleagues. DMV Computer Upgrades Were Never Completed

By Rob McCarthy

The Department of Motor Vehicles computer system that crashed last month and interrupted license and registration services for over a week wasn't hacked. It just showed its age.

The recordkeeping system that stores vehicle and personal information on millions of Californians underwent a multi-million dollar upgrade three years ago to existing hardware. The state's technology agency shutdown the project early, and fired the contractor in early 2013.

The California Technology Agency said at the time that the modernization project, which ran for seven years, would be re-evaluated. The first phase of the project on the DMV licensing system was nearly completed when the agency pulled the plug on the $200 million IT project.

The agency's early termination left older hardware running the DMV vehicle-registration system.

It's unclear how the unfinished project affected the massive outage that began on Oct. 24 and affected 122 DMV locations, including Hawthorne and Inglewood. The Technology Agency did not return a phone call asking about the status of the suspended DMV modernization project.

The DMV said that a "catastrophic failure" of equipment on Oct. 24 caused the outage. Hard disks failed in both the front-end and backup systems. A department spokesman ruled out a cyber attack as the cause, insisting it was equipment-related and not an act of sabotage.

"Absolutely not," spokesman Artemio Armenta told The Herald when asked if the DMV's recordkeeping system with millions of California drivers' personal information was hacked. "There's no evidence of that."

It wasn't a matter of replacing broken equipment to restore computer service to the affected offices, Armenta told The Herald. The disks linked each of the 122 offices hardware to the DMV main system, and all of them that failed needed to be rebuilt. It took DMV employees working around-the-clock nearly a full week to restore the disks, according to its spokesman.

Three offices, including Inglewood, were still disconnected as of last week.

The South Bay offices in Hawthorne, Torrance, Inglewood, Culver City and San Pedro remained open during the outage with limited services. DMV examiners gave drivers license tests and clerks assisted walk-in customers with paperwork and questions. Online license renewals and vehicle registration were not affected by the equipment failure, according to the department.

Inglewood was the last of the 122 locations to have service restored. The DMV posted a notice at 2 p.m. Nov. 2 saying that nearly all of its offices were at full service again except for Inglewood. By the next morning, an update said that each DMV location was back in service.

The outage extended beyond the DMV field offices. The Automobile Club of Southern California, which serves as an agent of the motor-vehicle department, said a number of offices were unable to process vehicle registrations from Oct. 24 into November. The Manhattan Beach office was among the first locations to have DMV service restored, according to a AAA spokesman.

Nearly two weeks after the computer-system crashed, the Rancho Palos Verdes AAA office had limited DMV service to customers. The office as of Nov. 3 wasn't able to process commercial license plates, handicapped stickers and off-road vehicle stickers.

"Their outage is pretty massive," AAA spokesman Jeffrey Spring said last week. The Automobile Club's IT staff worked directly with the DMV to get branches back online.

Thirty AAA offices in Southern California were waiting for service to be restored on Nov. 3.

Spring didn't have a date when all of the club's locations would be back online with the DMV.

The DMV conducted a planned security update on the Friday before Halloween, which prolonged the service problems at some offices. The IT staff worked with its contractor over the first weekend to get the busier DMV offices back to normal. When staff returned to work on Monday, Nov. 1, computer service was still not available at the high-volume offices.

The DMV described the events of Oct. 24 as a "perfect storm" of simultaneous hard-drive failures that overwhelmed the system. It simply was not designed to handle massive failures in such a short period of time, the media were told. The department had never experienced a technological chain of events like it, spokesman Jaime Garza told reporters in Sacramento.

The California DMV wasn't using industry best practices to avoid losing both the front-end and backup systems simultaneously, according to published reports. The primary and the recovery systems should be kept apart and on separate power supplies, technology experts say.

The department reportedly kept both the main and backup systems in the same hardware cabinet. Again, it's uncertain whether the halted modernization project would have addressed the issue or made a difference. The DMV pledged to conduct a full

The DMV IT modernization program began in 2006 after an earlier project called Info/California was called a "hopeless failure" after $44 million were spent.

What was supposed to be a five-year, $28 million effort lasted for seven years. The size of the project grew until the projected costs were $170 million over the original budget. State officials criticized the DMV brass for poor management of the project and for lacking computer-technology experience. The embarrassing episode led to a full investigation by lawmakers.

The DMV is offering to waive late fees for vehicle registrations that could not be processed during the outage. Vehicle owners must file a waiver form or write a letter to the department asking for penalty forgiveness for missing the due date to renew a vehicle registration. The DMV charges a 10 percent penalty for being up to 10 days late and 20 percent for up to four weeks past due.

DMV offices will be closed Friday, Nov. 11 in observance of Veteran's Day. •

Freedom Is Not Free: Remembering Our Soldiers' Sacrifices This Veterans Day

(BPT) - When U.S. Navy Lt. John McGrath took off on his 178th mission over North Vietnam at the age of 27, he had no idea it would end his life as a free man for more than six years. His plane was struck by anti-aircraft fire, tearing the wing and forcing him to eject from the aircraft. With a fractured back and dislocated knee, Lt. McGrath was captured and taken to "New Guy Village," a war camp in Hanoi, Vietnam, where he became a Prisoner of War (POW).

Lt. McGrath was handcuffed behind bars, isolated, tortured and interrogated for more than a half decade. Back in the United States during the Vietnam War, when a soldier went missing, an American could buy a bracelet with their name on it to show solidarity and support. Nearly 5 million Americans wore POW/MIA bracelets to support Lt. McGrath, and the 600 other imprisoned soldiers as they anxiously waited for the war to end.

The veteran's journey is one that few civilians understand, despite the nearly 22 million Americans who share it. Veterans Day, Nov. 11, is a time to remember and recognize veterans who have served throughout our nation's history. It's also a time to do our part to understand their sacrifice.

Historically, Veterans Day began as Armistice Day to commemorate the end of the First World War. Now, since November 1919, we celebrate each year to honor all veterans who have protected our freedom. We can begin to repay their sacrifice by advocating for military personnel who gave some, or all, to defend our country and our rights as citizens.

The American Legion Auxiliary (ALA) is one of the nation's most prominent supporters of veterans. The nonpartisan organization, founded in 1919, is committed to advocating for veterans' issues, mentoring America's youth and promoting patriotism. It was founded to advance the mission of The American Legion, incorporated by Congress in 1919 as a patriotic veterans service organization.

The ALA believes it is each citizen's civic responsibility to support the veteran community. In 2015, ALA members donated 5 million hours of community service to the nation's veterans. Members support those who served in the Armed Forces in many ways including education scholarships, aiding shelters for homeless veterans and working with local VA hospitals to support service members.

On Veterans Day, the ALA encourages Americans to take the time to thank individuals in the Armed Forces, engage with the military and veteran community in a meaningful way to recognize their sacrifices throughout history, and take a moment to understand the experiences of soldiers like Lt. McGrath.

Recalling his homecoming in March 1973, Lt. McGrath said, "I returned to San Diego where I was greeted by my wife and two sons. The years of waiting for this moment were suddenly forgotten, and I realized how great it was to be alive, to be wanted and loved and, most of all, to be American."

For more than six years prior to his coming home, Doreen Long, then a teenager, had worn a POW/MIA bracelet bearing Lt. McGrath's name. When she rediscovered the bracelet in a jewelry box decades later, she set out to determine the fate of the honorable soldier. Long got in touch with the ALA and expressed her desire to meet Lt. McGrath and thank him for his service.

Long's dream became a reality at the ALA National Convention in 2014 when Lt. McGrath surprised her on stage. For Long, it was the opportunity to meet a true American Hero. For Lt. McGrath, it was an affirmation of the nation's gratitude for his service.

News for the City of Good Neighbors from City Clerk Huber

'locked'/secured as a requirement. One of the reasons crime is up in certain areas is because bad habits are now being exploited by our growing criminal population. Bad habits, meaning never locking house doors, cars, house windows, etc. It doesn't matter if the car is on the street or driveway. However, if the car is in an enclosed garage, then there's a chance you can add a 'burglary' charge by the fact of the criminal entering/breaking into that structure as well...Summary: lock/hide/secure any valuables - period. Best crime prevention is neighbors looking out for each other." Don't make it easy for the bad guys or gals, LOCK your doors.

NEXTDOOR

It's been a couple of years now since Nextdoor came into our community. Nextdoor is the neighborhood Facebook. People from your neighborhood post comments for their neighbors to read. Sometimes the posts are informative, like alerting everyone to a suspicious person at a certain location. Sometimes the post ask for help finding a reliable gardener or painter. Lost dog postings are common. It's just any easy way to stay informed as to what your neighbors are up to in a non-threatening way. If you have not joined Nextdoor yet, then simply go to nextdoor.com and follow the steps to register. It will only take you a few minutes. There are over 300 neighbors registered in the Ramona Tract alone.

VETERANS' DAY EVENT

The Hawthorne Veterans Commission is sponsoring their second annual Veterans' Day Event this Friday, November 11th starting at 10:15 a.m. at the Memorial Center. Last year's event was well attended. Plan to honor our vets with your attendance. For all of the freedoms that we take for granted, we owe so much to our men and women who have put their lives on the line to protect us and preserve this great country, the greatest country in the world, the USA.

ELECTION RESULTS

Are you happy or upset with the results from Tuesday's election? We will soon have a new president. We shall see if he can break up the logjam to bring about real legislation taking place on Capital Hill. There are still going to be a lot of people who are in shock with the results. They can not believe we have elected someone with no political experience and a less than sparkling moral past. I hope and pray that we can come together even if we have diverse political thoughts and views and be united.

ROBBERY, BURGLARY, THEFT OR NOT?

A neighbor in the Ramona Tract posted recently on Nextdoor that his neighbor had left his car unlocked one evening and he had lost his laptop and his backpack. I had heard that if your car was not locked then the crime for taking items out of the car is minor. I asked our HPD to clarify what the real story was. Here is HPD's response: "A robbery is when you take something from someone using force or fear - so the correct term is burglary. If the car is unlocked, then it's 'theft' from the car. An auto burglary (the more serious crime) needs to have the car

Changes In Your Household? Tips For Updating Your Insurance

(BPT) - The American household is changing. The typical single-family home has evolved in the 21st century.

Today, it's not uncommon for older parents to move in with their grown children, and with the combined rise in housing costs and debt from college loans, more college graduates are moving home with their parents. In fact, 47 percent of adults in their 40s and 50s either have a parent aged 65 or older living with them and are raising a child or financially supporting an adult child, according to the Pew Research Center.

Along with larger family meals and more loads of laundry, there are important insurance considerations that today's households need to consider. Making sure you are covered will go a long way to ensure the safety and financial well-being of your loved ones.

When Your Parents Move In

You probably remember having a few "tough talks" with your parents when you were growing up. If your parent or an elderly relative is moving in with you, it's time to have another one of these talks.

One of the biggest points to discuss is finances, which includes insurance. You want to be sure your parents are up-to-date with their auto and life insurance premiums. And if your relative is bringing valuable possessions into your home, you may need to update your homeowners policy.

Also important is discussing potential long-term healthcare needs and discussing end-of-life wishes.

These conversations can be hard, and it's important to make your loved ones feel cared about, not cared for.

When Adult Children Move Home

It's not often someone in their mid-20s is excited about moving back in with their parents. But almost one-third of adults between the ages of 18 and 34 are living with their parents.

This transition can be expensive. Experts say hosting an adult child can cost between $8,000 and $18,000 per year. Therefore, from the beginning, you should set clear expectations. How long do they plan on staying? What is their work schedule? Will they help pay bills and insurance?

As long as your child lives in the same household as you, there is no age limit to how long they can be listed on your auto insurance. However, 26 is now the maximum age that your child can be covered on your health insurance plan.

Another insurance consideration is whether to include any of their expensive electronics or other personal belongings on your homeowners insurance policy. If so, will they help pay if the cost of the policy goes up?

To help avoid misunderstandings, the National Association of Insurance Commissioners created a Welcome Home contract for hosting your adult children.

To download the contract, and find other helpful resources, including tips and information to help all of you make the right insurance decisions, visit www.InsureUonline.org.

Trojans, Bruins Headed in Opposite Directions

By Adam Serrao

Both the USC Trojans and the UCLA Bruins headed into this year's regular season highly regarded. The Bruins, more specifically, were even projected to win the Pac-12 South outright. Now that a few games have been played, the rightful standings of the teams are beginning to shake themselves out. The Trojans may have started the year off slowly, but they are quickly putting all of their talent together to help score victories. The Bruins, on the other hand, have taken preseason projections and greatly disappointed, heading in the complete seen UCLA slip into fifth place in Pac-12 South standings, above only Arizona. A season that began with such high hopes has now taken a turn for the worse as the Bruins will look to finish the season off on a positive note against Oregon State, USC and Cal.

The Bruins latest loss was last Thursday night against Colorado. It was an extremely sloppy game mired with penalties and turnovers and at the end of things, there was a UCLA loss. Thirteen penalties for a total of 96 yards and a total of just 210 yards on offense for the night capped off the disappointing loss for opposite direction of the Trojans.

"The Trojans will look to continue doing special things but will truly be tested coming up."

With last week's victory over the Oregon Ducks, the USC Trojans brought their winning streak to five games in a row, clearly hitting the highest gear that they have been at all season on offense. Over their last five games, the Trojans, behind starting quarterback Sam Darnold, have averaged 40 points per game while completely annihilating opponents in the process. The way that the team looks now is in stark contrast to how they started off the year. USC lost three of its first four games, bringing grim feelings to all those who root for the Cardinal and Gold in Southern California.

Darnold had 309 yards passing and two touchdowns against Oregon, leading his team to victory. As good as the quarterback has been playing recently though, he may not even be the MVP on the team. After rushing for a career-high 223 yards against Cal two weeks ago, USC running back Ronald Jones broke loose with four rushing touchdowns against Oregon. The mark tied a school single-game record.

"I hold my breath every time he touches it because I know there is a chance he can go all the way," Trojans head coach Clay Helton said. "Between himself and a very effecting offensive line, they are doing some special things right now."

The Trojans will look to continue doing special things but will truly be tested coming up. A matchup against No. 5 in the nation, Washington, looms this week before they finish the year off with rivalry matchups against UCLA and Notre Dame, respectively.

UCLA has had the exact opposite season that USC has had. After beginning the year winning two of their first three games and three of their first five, the Bruins have run into a wall. Four straight losses while giving up an average of 30.5 points per game has the Bruins. To add insult to injury, it was announced before the game that UCLA starting quarterback Josh Rosen would miss the rest of the season due to a shoulder injury. With their recently slumping record and a four game losing streak, the 3-6 Bruins will have to win out in their final three games of the season to even qualify for a bowl game.

While the Trojans certainly still have much to play for, the Bruins may be best served to focus their attention on their Week 11 rivalry matchup with the Trojans. In a season that has been lost and filled with discontent, a win against your biggest rival can certainly do a lot to sooth some pains. Naturally, without Rosen, the task of taking out the Trojans may be even more difficult than originally planned. Dating back to last season, the Trojans still lead in the all-time series between the two teams with a 45-31-7 record. While the Trojans hold the advantage, though, the Bruins have won three of the last four matchups. USC won last year by a final score of 40-21.

Two teams that began the season with such high expectations have clearly failed to live up to what everyone thought they would be. While USC began the season on the wrong foot and fell victim to a hard schedule, the Bruins came out of the gates looking good. Recently, things have turned themselves completely upside down.

Neither the Trojans nor the Bruins have any hopes of a National Championship, but with all of the momentum that USC has been gaining lately, they may just find themselves in a big bowl game at the end of the year. UCLA, on the other hand, has only one big game remaining on their schedule and that's against the Trojans next week. While neither team may be taking home a trophy this year, there will still be much intrigue surrounding the coming three weeks. •

NASA Missions Harvest a Passel of 'Pumpkin' Stars

This artist's concept illustrates how the most extreme "pumpkin star" found by Kepler and Swift compares with the sun. Both stars are shown to scale. KSw 71 is larger, cooler and redder than the sun and rotates four times faster. Photo courtesy of NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center/Francis Reddy

By Bob Eklund

Astronomers using observations from NASA's Kepler and Swift missions have discovered a batch of rapidly spinning stars that produce X-rays at more than 100 times the peak levels ever seen from the Sun. The stars, which spin so fast they've been squashed into pumpkin-like shapes, are thought to be the result of close binary systems where two Sun-like stars merge.

"These 18 stars rotate in just a few days on average, while the Sun takes nearly a month," said Steve Howell, a senior research scientist at NASA's Ames Research Center in Moffett Field, California, and leader of the team. "The rapid rotation amplifies the same kind of activity we see on the Sun, such as sunspots and solar flares, and essentially sends it into overdrive."

The most extreme member of the group, a K-type orange giant dubbed KSw 71, is more than 10 times larger than the Sun, rotates in just 5.5 days, and produces X-ray emission 4,000 times greater than the Sun does at solar maximum.

These rare stars were found as part of an X-ray survey of the original Kepler field of view, a patch of the sky comprising parts of the constellations Cygnus and Lyra. From May 2009 to May 2013, Kepler measured the brightness of more than 150,000 stars in this region to detect the regular dimming from planets passing in front of their host stars. The mission was immensely successful, netting more than 2,300 confirmed exoplanets and nearly 5,000 candidates to date. An ongoing extended mission, called K2, continues this work in areas of the sky located along the ecliptic, the plane of Earth's orbit around the Sun.

"A side benefit of the Kepler mission is that its initial field of view is now one of the best-studied parts of the sky," said team member Padi Boyd, a researcher at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Maryland, who designed the Swift survey. For example, the entire area was observed in infrared light by NASA's Wide-field Infrared Survey Explorer, and NASA's Galaxy Evolution Explorer observed many parts of it in the ultraviolet. "Our group was looking for variable X-ray sources with optical counterparts seen by Kepler, especially active galaxies, where a central black hole drives the emissions," she explained.

Using the X-ray and ultraviolet/optical telescopes aboard Swift, the researchers conducted the Kepler-Swift Active Galaxies and Stars Survey (KSwAGS), imaging about six square degrees, or 12 times the apparent size of a full Moon, in the Kepler field.

"With KSwAGS we found 93 new X-ray sources, about evenly split between active galaxies and various types of X-ray stars," said team member Krista Lynne Smith, a graduate student at the University of Maryland, College Park, who led the analysis of Swift data. "Many of these sources have never been observed before in X-rays or ultraviolet light."

For the brightest sources, the team obtained spectra using the 200-inch telescope at Palomar Observatory in California. These spectra provide detailed chemical portraits of the stars and show clear evidence of enhanced stellar activity, particularly strong diagnostic lines of calcium and hydrogen.

The researchers used Kepler measurements to determine the rotation periods and sizes for 10 of the stars, which range from 2.9 to 10.5 times larger than the Sun. Their surface temperatures range from somewhat hotter to slightly cooler than the Sun. •

Enter "Arrival," This Year's Smartest Sci-Fi Flick

By Ryan Rojas for Cinemacy.com

Inevitably, alien invasion movies must ask themselves – and their audience – the same critical question: What are they doing here? And yet, before this question can even be posited to alien life forms, the small hurdle of needing to teach word-based human language to an alien species of entirely symbol-based communication for which to even understand what a "question" is, must be developed. Good thing the world would have time for such a laborious undertaking and wouldn't likely be on the brink of planet-wide war.

This is the premise of "Arrival," a multi-layered sci-fi movie that hinges its dramatics on a linguist's attempt to find a way to communicate with aliens amidst a ticking-time-bomb that is a Cold War standoff between international nations and extraterrestrials. Add to this a circular, non-linear time-space narrative that marries the unlocking of alien language to alternate realities, and "Arrival" stands as the smartest sci-fi offering of the year.

When twelve unidentified flying objects land – or more so, ominously hover – over the world, linguistics professor Dr. Louise Banks (Amy Adams) is called upon by Colonel Weber (Forest Whitaker) to aid the U.S. military in figuring out how to communicate with Earth's newest visitors and uprooted from her rudimentary undergraduate teaching career. Seen to not be leaving any family behind, Louise gets choppered to the Montana landing site, where she meets another civilian-turned-top-security-cleared-specialist in physicist Ian Donnelly (Jeremy Renner). Yet as quickly as she is absorbed into this new world and its high-stakes stresses, so too do lapses of grief flare up, tied to memories of both her lost child and failed marriage, which the movie opens with in somber flashback, seeing the fleeting glimpses of a child's birth, through childhood, through ultimately being taken by disease at her side – leaving a now alone Louise to shuffle blindly into a new reality before cutting to present-day invasion.

Downloaded on their missions, Louise and Ian are shuttled up into the alien pod's entry-doors when they open every eighteen hours, floating through the gravity-less pod to get to the chamber to communicate with the life forms inside. After a few unsuccessful trials, initial anxieties and fears subside and Louise is drawn closer to the aliens, eventually stripping away her oxygen suit to convey who her "self" is, leading to more breakthroughs in communication. Yet the closer she comes into proximity and contact with the aliens, more vivid do the fragmented memories of her daughter become, bringing Ian closer to support Louise and her lengthy teaching process which, let's not forget, runs counter to the timelines of both Colonel Weber and the world. Without giving much else away, Louise and Ian's relationship develops into what leads to the movie's largest idea of non-linear realities.

With such searingly-laced dramas as 2013's "Prisoners" and in last year's more-blistering still cartel-drama "Sicario," director Denis Villeneuve once again proves he is second to none in being able to craft an affecting human drama set in a consumingly dangerous world – and proves it here on his largest scale to date. In "Arrival," Villeneuve deafens the galactic-absurdity of alien life (yet still taps into fantastic imagery of the design of the aliens and their symbol based communication system) to ultimately show the resounding human drama underneath. Whether it be the intimate devastation of a mother who must manage the memory of a deceased child on one end to the conflict of worldwide human civilization needing to work together amidst a fractured modern landscape of language and politics before world war ensues, Villeneuve handles an entire range of drama to polished success.

"Arrival," like Villeneuve's filmography, is pristinely photographed and operates in chillingly measured pace, and it's great fun to see the director maintain his human-drama talents while dipping his toes into the world of sci-fi – which, in its final act, ups the entire ante by unveiling the full stakes of the quantum time-leaping canvas: that unlocking the alien's language may lead to the discovery of alternate timelines that only Louise may be capable of unlocking to save humanity. If at that point, this reality-bending closer feels a bit rushed in having to wrap up all of the movie's loose ends, and where MacGuffins start to come sailing in like meteor showers, "Arrival" is still an expertly crafted film that lifts the sci-fi genre to even greater, more thoroughly constructed heights.

116 minutes. "Arrival" is rated PG-13 for brief strong language. In theaters this Friday. •

Real Sweet: More than 80 Crave-Worthy Treats Made with Natural Sugars

By Shauna Sever

El Segundo Library Staff Book Reviews and Recommendations

Halloween has come and gone, which means the holidays are right around the corner. Making scrumptious treats during the holidays is a tradition for many, so for this review, I'm discussing a new-found favorite baking guide, Real Sweet: More than 80 Crave-Worthy Treats Made with Natural Sugars by Shauna Sever.

This modern baking book includes dozens of delicious recipes for cookies, candy, cakes and more but with a twist – only natural, unrefined, readily available alternative sweeteners such as honey or maple sugar are used instead of the more traditional white sugar, corn syrup, etc. While lots of bakers may be looking to cut out processed ingredients for health reasons, I like that this book focuses instead on how each alternative sweetener lends a unique depth of flavor and/or texture to the finished treat compared to a less flavorful processed component. For instance, muscovado sugar lends a rich, smoky richness to blondie brownies while turbinado sugar amplifies the caramelized flavor while adding a subtle crunch and lovely sparkle to cookies and quick breads.

A baking expert, blogger and television host, Sever's modern writing style is fresh and charmingly funny, interspersed with personal anecdotes and fanciful descriptions such as "Maple: The Gentle Giant." Included in the book are useful tables that help bakers determine how much sugar to swap out for alternative counterparts and if any additional recipe tweaks are needed. Helpful descriptions of each type of sweetener, including how it's made, flavor characteristics and best uses are also included.

Personally, my favorite recipe is the Little Plum, Walnut and Maple Cakes. They are light, flavorful, easy to make, and freeze beautifully to reheat on busy mornings.

Palmer

These kitties are looking for special people who will love them forever in their new home. Ready for a new feline friend?

Palmer is a sociable and playful kitten who is not afraid of dogs. One of seven rescued littermates from neighborhood cat, he is the largest of his litter from a sweet neighborhood cat. Outgoing, playful and happy, Palmer loves to lead his siblings in games of tag and wrestle mania. He also enjoys people and loves attention. Palmer would be a special addition to any family.

Sugar is a happy-go-lucky kitten who loves to explore and wrestle with her brothers and sisters. While playing is great fun, Sugar also enjoys lounging and loves climbing into your lap to have you scratch behind her ears. She is a little glamour girl. Sugar loves her humans as much as other kittens and cats.

Good with other cats and with gentle children, Sasha is a rag-doll kitty. He's an affectionate kitten who will cuddle up close during his quiet moments, but still has lots of kinetic boy energy. So charming with his big green eyes, you will fall in love with Sasha.

Chinook, Hailey, Typhoon and Gale were rescued along with their mom from a wet muddy bush in the San Fernando Valley. Not even a day old, if they hadn't been found, the likelihood of survival would have been close to zero. Chinook is adorable, playful, sweet and simply gorgeous. Hailey is an adorable and playful Main Coon mix who is super soft and fluffy (she is especially bonded with her brother Typhoon). Typhoon is their handsome, playful Silver Tabby brother. Gale has the appearance of a Russian Blue with his beautiful silver sheen on his dark gray coat and gorgeous green/amber eyes. He was the first of his siblings to become a lap kitten and has a great temperament. They each would love being adopted with one of their siblings or their mom who is barely a year old herself.

Bonnie is a gorgeous, very curious and very playful Tabby cat that loves to be on camera. She is very loyal and cuddly. She is great with children and will follow you everywhere. Bonnie also loves to wrestle and pounce on her brother, Clyde and meows when he is out of her sight. She has super soft coat and a sweet temperament. Bonnie and her brother Clyde will make a wonderful addition to any loving home.

Clyde is a super playful, super loving, snuggly boy who is a joy to have around. He loves people and his sister Bonnie and wants lots of love and attention.

Clyde and his sister often tumble around together and fall playfully off the furniture. He is always ready for the next game or adventure. Clyde also loves to be picked up and turned upside down, so he can reach his beautiful white paws out for whatever is going by.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations.
