ECHS Lawndale Hosts Career Day Features Former USC/NFL Linebacker

On November 10, Lawndale's Environmental Charter High School (ECHS) hosted its 10th Annual Career Day, "Connect for Success," presented by ReGreen. Ninth and 10th graders were treated to keynote speaker Thomas Williams, a former USC and NFL linebacker, author and motivational speaker. Even before he transitioned from game-changer to life-changer, Williams faced challenges at a young age that helped mold his work ethic and attitude and helped contribute to his accomplishments. Honors Abound as City of Lawndale Celebrates Its Most Devoted Citizens

By Haleemon Anderson

Lawndale Civic Center was awash in red, white and blue over the Veterans Day weekend as 100 flags flew in reverence to men and women of service. Community reaction to the installation was "overwhelmingly positive," according to Councilman and veteran Dan Reid. "Our local veterans and residents have been very appreciative and excited over our providing this tribute. I personally am proud to be a part of making this event happen to honor my fellow veterans," said Reid.

"A good number of people came through," said Mayor Robert Pullen-Miles, who visited the site on Veterans Day. "It was touching to a lot of people." Pullen-Miles said the Lawndale City Council is always looking for ways to value and show regard to Lawndale citizens.

City Manager Steve Mandoki brought the idea forward over a year ago when the City Council was looking for a way to honor its veterans, according to Pullen-Miles. The Council, which includes two veterans in Councilman Pat Kearney and Reid, adopted the idea and moved forward. An array of local businesses joined the City of Lawndale to mount the installation and at least 50 individuals dedicated flags to individual servicepersons.

Sponsors were able to affix a beloved veteran's name to their flag. At the close of the event Sunday, they were invited to take their flags home or donate them to the City for next year. The Field of Honor is intended to become a local tradition, said Pullen-Miles.

Wall of Distinction Induction Ceremony

Just weeks prior to the Field of Honor, Lawndale inaugurated the Wall of Distinction—a posthumous award honoring residents of exemplary character and influence in the community. The Wall of Distinction Induction Ceremony took place on October 22 at Lawndale Civic Center in the Harold E. Hoffman Community Center. Honorees included Robert Cerny, Lawndale businessman and Chair of the Lawndale Incorporation Committee; Andrew Christian Meyer, civic leader, Lawndale real estate developer and World War II veteran; Axel Niska, civic leader and President of the Optimists Club; and August Reiss, civic leader, Director of West Basin Municipal Water District and President of the Lawndale Chamber of Commerce.

Community Services Manager Mike Estes coordinated the six-month nominating process, which was handled by members from Lawndale's Senior Advisory and Historical Society. The committee submitted four names to the City Council, which affirmed induction of the entire inaugural group. Mayor Pullen-Miles introduced the honor into Council after a similar event held by the City of Carson. The Wall of Distinction is intended to honor residents who impacted the city greatly, but "didn't hold office," he noted.

Update – Hawthorne/Manhattan Beach Boulevard

Council took no action at last week's meeting to extend the exclusive negotiating agreement with developer Arroyo Seco. This inaction effectively allowed the contract to expire on November 11, casting development of the property at Hawthorne and Manhattan Beach boulevards into indeterminate waters. Pullen-Miles nevertheless expressed optimism, "The City can now move forward, allowing developers a clean canvas," he said. The project had been plagued with problems including its configuration, making it a "non-starter" for most sit-down restaurants, added Pullen-Miles.

Other factors contributed to new and renewed visions for the 20-years vacant parcel. In the 10 years since the city council decided on a sit-down restaurant, trendy, fast-casual dining has seen an upsurge. The mayor also pointed to surrounding development projects that must be considered in context. He mentioned the NFL stadium in nearby Inglewood, the impending Metro Rail expansion through Lawndale and renovation and re-design at the South Bay Galleria.

The council will now invite development agencies to respond to a "request for qualification" proposal, seeking a company that can secure a dining option, while also presenting the "highest and best" combined use for the parcel.

Schedule Change

At last week's city council meeting, the council approved an amended schedule, which will effectively cancel regular meetings on November 21, 2016 and January 3, 2017, due to proximity with national holidays.

The Lawndale City Council will hold its next regular council meeting on December 5th, at 6:30 p.m., in the Lawndale City Hall Council Chambers. •

Shared Experiences And Support Can Help People Manage Type 2 Diabetes

(BPT) - Nearly 30 million Americans have diabetes, and most (90-95 percent) have type 2 diabetes. Diabetes management isn't always easy - some people may have difficulty visiting their doctor regularly, eating healthy foods and reaching their A1C goal. That's why America's Diabetes Challenge, a program from Merck and the American Diabetes Association, is encouraging people to share their stories about the challenges and successes they've faced managing type 2 diabetes or supporting a loved one with the disease.

The program also encourages people with type 2 diabetes to work with their doctor to set and reach their A1C goal (average blood glucose level over the past 2 to 3 months), as well as learn if they're at risk for low blood glucose, known as hypoglycemia, and how to help reduce that risk.

In 2015, artist Tim McGraw, actress S. Epatha Merkerson and chef Leticia Moreinos Schwartz each shared their personal connection to type 2 diabetes, and now they're calling on people around the country to share their stories too. "Even if you don't have type 2 diabetes, chances are you know someone who does," McGraw says. "People can help each other by talking about the steps they're taking to get to their A1C goal, including challenges or successes they experience."

Hoping to inspire others with type 2 diabetes, Merkerson has shared her own personal struggles and accomplishments after living with the disease for nearly 14 years. "After my diagnosis, I got serious about my health

An attendee at an American Diabetes Association EXPO visits the America's Diabetes Challenge (ADC) booth; ADC is a program from Merck and the Association that travels the country to urge people with type 2 diabetes to work with their doctor to set and reach their A1C goal, and to share the challenges and successes they face managing the disease. November is Diabetes Awareness Month.

and worked with my doctor to develop a personalized diabetes management plan," Merkerson says. "I'm sharing my story as part of America's Diabetes Challenge and challenge you to do the same. We need to stick together, so share your story with us today and help us to inspire others to make healthy choices."

America's Diabetes Challenge plans to identify the most common challenges patients submit and will offer tips to help address them.

As people work with their doctor to create an individualized treatment plan that's right for them, there are some important tips to keep in mind:

- Both blood glucose self-tests and A1C tests are needed to help a patient and their doctor understand how well blood glucose is being controlled, because these tests measure blood glucose in different ways. The American Diabetes Association recommends that people with diabetes have an individualized A1C goal; the A1C goal for many adults with diabetes is less than 7 percent. A higher or lower goal may be appropriate for some people.

- Many people with diabetes are aware of the importance of controlling high blood glucose by diet, exercise and taking medicine (if prescribed), but they may not know that blood glucose can also go too low. People should learn to recognize the signs and symptoms of both high and low blood glucose, and talk to their doctor if they're experiencing problems. Some people may be aware that low blood glucose can be caused by skipping meals or exercising excessively, but what they may not know is that certain diabetes medicines could also cause it to go too low.

- Diet and exercise are an important part of any diabetes management program. Tips for making healthier food choices include choosing lean proteins, opting for whole grains and reducing sodium intake.

SENIORS CHRISTMAS LUNCHEON

The annual Seniors Christmas Luncheon will be held on Friday, December 2 at noon at the Memorial Center. All seniors are invited to enjoy a great lunch and a lot of good social time during this special time of the year.

THE WORLD WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE

Have you tried Pho yet? Pho, pronounced "fu", is a Vietnamese noodle soup consisting of broth, rice noodles called bánh phở, a few herbs, and meat, primarily made with either beef or chicken. Pho is a popular street food in Vietnam and the specialty of a number of restaurant chains around the world. Pho is now served daily at a new Vietnamese restaurant at the corner of 142nd and Inglewood Avenue right here in Hawthorne. With this new eating establishment my family can now walk from our house and try a great variety of ethnic food from Roscrans to El Segundo Blvd. on Inglewood Avenue. Starting on the south end just north of Roscrans we have a choice of eating at La Sirena Gorda, which means "the fat mermaid" for us gringos. They serve seafood and mariscos. It's located in the same strip mall with Pho. Then we move up to 138th Street and we choose between Zacatecas Mexican on the west side of the street or a longtime Hawthorne favorite Raul's Mexican on the east side. After stopping by for a cold one at either The Greatest or Coach's Bar, we can proceed up to 136th Street and eat at the Al Watan Halal Tandoori which specializes in food from Pakistan and India. If we jaywalk across the street, we can duck into the French bakery named Le Pain Du Jour. Believe me there is no pain in eating their delicious sweets and sipping on their great coffee. Say hi to Sam the owner and his wife if you choose to sit out on one of their outside dining tables. Then we walk a few steps and come to an American classic coffee shop, Mandy's. Hollywood liked the interior of the restaurant enough to shoot a movie scene inside recently. Right at the corner of 132nd Street is Dino's which serves up a variety of great, home-made tasting burgers and sandwiches, they must be good, the place is always busy. If you are a Moose or a Lion, you can stop for another cold one at the Moose Lodge. As we walk north, we pass by Trinity Lutheran Church. That's where I was got lucky and met my old lady. We tied the knot there 37 years ago. If you look up to the second story of the school building you will see my first classroom that I started my teaching career in 39 and one half years ago. Holy Cow!, I've lived in Hawthorne for close to 40 years. Now you know why I need a cold one once in a while. Finally, we come to three great places to eat just south of El Segundo Blvd. Chubby Rice has made my column before and is attracting folks from all over the area to eat their excellent food. Mi Zacatecas is affordable, and has great salsa. Not to be left out, Cougar Burger is a popular stop for some of our local law enforcement people. Being on call, I have seen them have to eat and literally run when a call comes in. Who says Hawthorne has no good places to eat? Just take a walk down Inglewood Avenue and enjoy the world. Who needs to travel? The world has come to us.

MEASURE M AND MEASURE A AND MEASURE LP

All of our voter approved bond measures passed last week. With the passage of Measure M we will be paying a 1/2 percent more on our sales tax in LA County. The funds generated from Measure M allow our City to fix some of our streets in Hawthorne. We will also have money for park improvements with the passage of Measure A. And finally, Centinela Valley Union High School District will complete the redo of our three local public high schools. $110 million in additional improvements were approved by 80% of the voters who voted to pass Measure LP.

GIVE THANKS TO WHOM?

Thanksgiving is next Thursday. It's a time to reflect on how we have been blessed. I can't imagine a world without God. Knowing that I was created, redeemed through my baptism, and loved by the Almighty One, makes everything right. He gives me direction, He gives me purpose. The old saying goes: "You have to love yourself before you can love others." For me, I would change it to say: "the more I realize how much God loves me, the more I can love others". So, when the nation pauses for Thanksgiving next week, who are we to thank? Most Americans know it as a National Day of Thanksgiving, but many people don't know whom they are thanking. I'm thankful to the God who created the universe, the stars, the moon and every living creature. I'm thankful to the God who knows me better than anyone, but still loves me. Every day is a mini-thanksgiving for me. Every day I wake up thankful that I'm a child of God who is loved and forgiven. Because of this, I can celebrate life with a cold one. I can thank God for my readers, my friends, my neighbors and even my enemies. So, thank God next week. Thank the God who loves you and gives you all that you need. Have a Blessed Thanksgiving with your family and friends. •

A Windy City Wish Come True

By Adam Serrao

When the Cleveland Indians took a 3-1 series lead in the World Series over the Chicago Cubs, most people thought, "Ah, that's just the Cubs, squandering another chance at a title." What happened after that, however, was a series of events for the record books. When all was said and done, the Cubs that everyone loved to give up on came back in the series, rattled off three straight wins and took a championship back home from Cleveland to Chicago. Most people thought that they would never see the day when the Cubs won the World Series. But 108 years later, it was written in the Major League Baseball history books.

No Billy Goat, Bartman, or black cat could stop the history that this year's Chicago Cubs were destined to write after a season in which the team won 103 regular season games--good enough for best in all of the MLB. The next best team in the entire league won eight less games than the Cubs, so you might even say that Chicago deserved its recently acquired championship ring. After 39,466 days of waiting, who wouldn't deserve it? Of course, when you beat the likes of the San Francisco Giants and Madison Bumgarner, the Los Angeles Dodgers and Clayton Kershaw, and the Cleveland Indians and Corey Kluber, there is certainly something to be said for a team that can now comfortably call itself the best in the world.

"Nothing's been easy, nothing's been given to us," Cubs ace Jon Lester explained of his team's heroics in this year's postseason. "Every series has been a battle and been a grind for us. We played three really good opponents to get here, and here we stand. It's an unbelievable feeling to be a part of this. You wouldn't expect it any other way." One might expect Lester to be the team's playoff MVP. The Cubs constantly leaned on him, even out of the bullpen, to pick them up on defense and get the team pointed back in the right direction. On offense, it happened to be a rather unlikely hero in Ben Zobrist.

Zobrist hit the go-ahead double in the 10th inning of Game 7 to break the tie and ultimately give his team the 8-7 victory over Cleveland in the deciding game. "I know he threw a pretty hard cutter," explained the player who was later named World Series MVP. "I just barely hung in there, and fortunately he put one just close enough to the plate where I could slap it down the line."

With that slap down the line, the curse of the Cubs was officially broken. Even though the team tried to add a bit more drama by giving a run back to the Indians in the bottom of the 10th, it was too little too late for Cleveland. The superior team battled back time and time again, and beyond simply the offense--or even simply the defense--it was the Cubs' team as a whole that won the World Series. For that reason, Chicago President of Baseball Operations Theo Epstein should be viewed as the real catalyst and most valuable person in the entire organization.

Epstein arrived in Chicago in 2011 after a 71-win season. He had just assisted in replenishing the Boston Red Sox's 86-year World Series drought. The Red Sox hadn't won the championship since 1918. With the help of Epstein, the team won in 2004 and 2007. Theo then brought his magical mind to Chicago to try to erase the league's longest-standing curse. After trading for Anthony Rizzo from the San Diego Padres and acquiring Kyle Hendricks from the Texas Rangers in 2012, Epstein traded with the Baltimore Orioles for Jake Arrieta and drafted Kris Bryant in 2013. He then acquired Addison Russell from the Oakland A's, hired Joe Madden as the manager and signed Jon Lester all in 2014, before acquiring Dexter Fowler and signing John Lackey, Zobrist and Jason Heyward in 2015. Finally, closer Aroldis Chapman was acquired from the New York Yankees in 2016. The result? A 2016 MLB championship.

With their victory, the Cubs became the first team to come back from a 3-1 deficit in the World Series to win Games 6 and 7 on the road since the 1979 Pirates. For once, there will be no more talk of the 1945 team that lost the World Series to the Tigers. There won't be any more talk of the '84 team that lost in the NLCS to the Padres, or even the 2003 team that tragically lost it all in the NLCS to the Florida Marlins because of the infamous "Bartman game" (okay, people may still talk about that one). Now, the Cubs and their fans can talk about what they did do. "There's no curses -- there never was a curse," said Cubs General Manager Jed Hoyer. "It's about having the best team and playing well over seven games in a World Series, and we did that. Enjoy it. The Cubs are no different than any other team. When we're the best team, we can win, and we were the best team."

There certainly is something to be said about a team that had gone over a century without a championship. Almost everyone you know who enjoys and loves the game of baseball has a story about someone or maybe even knows someone who has been waiting their entire lifetime for a Cubs championship victory. Maybe that someone is even you. The team has been mocked, displayed in television shows and movies...and despite not winning, the Chicago Cubs have been one of the most popular and recognizable teams in the nation. Well, they are not the loveable losers any longer. The Chicago Cubs are the 2016 champions of Major League Baseball and with such a young group of core players, don't expect them to go anywhere any time soon. •

Cubbie

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway Redondo Beach 90277, from noon-3:30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability, you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one!

"Hello, my name is Cubbie and I like the Chicago Cubs, I'm definitely a world-class winner. I was rescued from an LA County shelter after being brought in as a stray. I'm not sure what a stray is, but I'm pretty certain that I'm a one-year old female Miniature Schnauzer with a docked tail, a bit of a longer body and a weight of 14 pounds. Our vet took one look at my adorable puppy face and, after examining me, determined that I am probably closer to nine months old than I am to a year. I absolutely love to play with my stuffed toys and am having so much fun learning to walk on a leash. I get along great with other dogs, enjoy a good game of fetch and would make a great team member."

If you are interested in Cubbie, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"They call me Rizzo and just like the first baseman of the World Series-winning Chicago Cubs, I like to play ball! I'm a four-year old, male purebred Miniature Schnauzer who was rescued from an Inland Empire shelter. I was there for almost three weeks and no one was interested in adopting me. Maybe it's because I'm a big guy weighing in at about 25 pounds, but that's the perfect size to play ball. I can catch, run and you don't have to worry about me getting underfoot! I'm super friendly and get along great with other dogs. I'm a good-looking guy and since I've had my dental done, my smile sparkles like a World Series Trophy!"

If you're interested in Rizzo, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

Rizzo

"It's absolutely amazing what a makeover can do for a guy's confidence. I'm a 1.5-year old, male purebred Miniature Schnauzer rescued from an LA city shelter. My name is Holmes (as in Sherlock Holmes) and I guess they named me that because my 'pedigree' was a mystery. I was such a neglected, dirty, matted mess that I was hardly recognizable as a Schnauzer – it was just a guess. The shelter volunteers were so nice and took pity on me. They spent quite a bit of time grooming me so that I would be presentable. Ta-da! Underneath that mess the real me -- a loving, energetic guy who like other dogs and loves to play -- finally emerged. At 18 pounds, I'm still a lap dog who would make a great companion for your family."

If you are interested in Holmes, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

"If you're looking for an adorable, five-month old male Miniature Schnauzer mix, I'm definitely your guy! I was rescued from an LA County shelter where they called me a stray, but I prefer to think of myself as adventurous. They named me Sherlock – maybe it's because we're still sleuthing to see what my 'mix' is – and I'm not certain exactly how big I'll get. My approximate date of birth is May 2016. When I was four months old, I weighed 12 pounds. Based on that, the best guesstimate I can give you is that I could be 30 pounds when fully grown. I think it's just the right size for an energetic, happy guy who likes other dogs and loves to play. In addition to a handsome face, I have a wonderful, sweet personality and am very submissive when I encounter other dogs and new people."

Sherlock can be seen by appointment at Yellow Brick Road Doggy Playcare in El Segundo Call 310-606-5507 or email southbaydoggie@hotmail.com for an appointment or more information. •

Happy Tails

Randy is living the good life in West LA!

Congratulations to Randy, our mid-June rescue who had been dumped by his owner and his new family. This 3.5-month old pup had some real behavioral issues that included little socialization skills and being pretty dominant. With the help of the folks at Yellow Brick Road Doggie Daycare and a lot of patience, he has blossomed. We're happy to say that now he's a loving, well-mannered, socialized pup who adores everyone! Randy is living the good life in West LA with his mom, dad and an 11-year-old human brother. Who knows – maybe our other MSFR peeps who live in the area will run into him on their walks! Wishing them a long and happy life full of fun walks and adventures. •
