The Moments That Mattered: 2015

By Adam Serrao

Sports, as we know them, are athletic events that we all watch to cheer on our favorite teams, our favorite people, or quite simply, our favorite organizations. Not all of sports is about just that, though. Sports is about the moments that last in our memories. The moments that make us cheer. The one’s that make us laugh, scream at the television, or even cry to ourselves at night. It’s incredible the toll that sports can take on us. A simple game can trigger emotions inside of us that will have our significant others looking at us like we’re crazy or that will scare the house pet right out of the room. Yes, without sports, this world would certainly be a different place. With that being said, let’s take a look back at the moments in sports this year that mattered to all of us the most.

Above all else, this year in sports was a year where women excelled in practically every arena; even on the worlds stage. There was no better testament to that than when the United States women’s national soccer team conquered the world and the World Cup in 2015. Everyone remembers the time when Brandi Chastain sunk in the winning goal as the U.S. won their last World Cup in 1999. Fast forward more than 15 years later and this time, it was Carli Lloyd as the hero. After surviving a punishing semifinal matchup with Germany, Lloyd came to the rescue against Japan in the finals and scored. Then she scored again. Then she scored again! It took the U.S. hero just three minutes to find her first goal en-route to what would be a 5-2 demolition of their opponents and a World Cup championship. Yes, the U.S. women had truly conquered the world.

Another female who conquered the world in 2015 was Serena Williams. For a while there, it seemed like the 33 year-old was simply unbeatable. Williams has proven herself to be one of the greatest women’s tennis players of all time and proved as much by winning the Australian Open, French Open, and subsequently Wimbledon putting her on the doorstep of capturing a “Grand Slam” title for the first time for a female tennis player since Steffi Graf did it in 1988. Unfortunately for Williams, Roberta Vinci came out of nowhere to take the title away in the semifinals of the US Open. Despite her loss, however, Williams not only went on to win the Sports Illustrated’s 2015 Sportsperson of the Year award, but also exemplified the greatness and the strength that female athletes contain not only in America, but also all across the world.

While Serena put up a good fight in her chase for a Grand Slam, there remained one fight that must have been in the making for years and years before it finally happened. Hopefully you didn’t pay to see it, though. Floyd Mayweather and Manny Pacquiao finally got together last May to fight, but instead, danced around the ring for 12-rounds to earn nearly $200 million and $120 million, respectively. Nothing of substance happened in a bout that looked like a money-grab from the start, but Mayweather won to remain undefeated and eventually re-proclaim himself as the greatest boxer of all time. Just don’t pay to see the inevitable rematch.

Ronda Rousey, who hasn’t been shy about letting her hatred for Mayweather become known, was involved in a few fights of her own this past year. Most notably was her recent bout with kick-boxing world champ, Holly Holm. Rousey dominated the sport of MMA and won her first 12 fights - most of them within literal seconds of the start of the match. In all, her first 12 matches averaged out to just one minute and 18 seconds of actual fight time apiece. That is, until she met Holm. Not only did Holm last the entire first round against Rousey, but she dominated it. So much so that in the second round she had Rousey right where she wanted her. One kick to Rousey’s face not only ended the fight, but also ended Rousey’s reign on top of the sport. There has already been a rematch discussed, but first Rousey needs to pick herself back up from off the mat, both literally and figuratively.

A trio of championships, including one that was extremely unexpected, round out the most memorable moments of 2015. The Golden State Warriors brought home an NBA championship to California by defeating LeBron James and his Cleveland Cavaliers. Steph Curry took the nation by storm and is now one of America’s favorite, most respected athletes. The Warriors finished with the most wins in the league last year (67) and are already off to the best start in the game this season. By beating the Lakers, the Warriors also set a record for most consecutive wins to start a season (16). Who could forget the Seahawks in the Super Bowl? All the talk of “Deflategate” was upstaged when Pete Carroll decided to take the ball out of Marshawn Lynch’s hands at the 1-yard line. Russell Wilson threw an interception to New England’s Malcolm Butler and in one of the strangest turn of events ever seen in a championship game, Tom Brady and the Patriots won Super Bowl XLIX by a final score of 28-24 and in dramatic fashion, to say the least. Speaking of dramatic, American Pharaoh did something that hadn’t been done in almost 37 years by capturing the Triple Crown. Affirmed was the last horse to win the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes all in the same year. That happened way back in 1978. 11 horses have had the opportunity to accomplish the feat before American Pharaoh by winning both the Derby and the Preakness, but all failed to take home the last leg of the Crown. Pharaoh put on his lucky horseshoes and made history by galloping past the finish line and right into the hearts of America with a historic victory. One that may not be seen again for another 38 years - or longer.

Jordan Spieth won the US Open, the Kansas City Royals won the World Series, Ohio State won college football’s first ever playoff to become champions, Wisconsin and Frank Kaminsky upset Kentucky in college basketball’s National Championship game, and Kobe Bryant finally said goodbye to the sport that he loves. Naturally, there are many, many more storylines from the year that has passed that were incredible, memorable and emotional, all the same. Unfortunately, not all can fit into just one article, but another great thing about sports is that we all experience the memories in our own unique way. What memory may stand out to you, may not stand out to another, but that’s what makes sports and the moments that they create so great. Here’s to another year of making memories and best of luck to all those that you scream, cheer, laugh, and cry for. Asixlion@earthlink.net •

The 10 Best Films of 2015

Morgan Rojas, Nelson Tracey for www.cinemacy.com

What we consider to be the best of this year represents a combination of the movies that had the greatest emotional impact on us, matched with movies that felt innovative or groundbreaking. Here are the films we consider to be this year's best:

10. Tangerine

This micro-indie surges energy and pulses with electricity at every turn and around every corner of its L.A. backdrop. It also happens to be shot entirely on the iPhone 5s. Like its off-beat shooting style, the flick of the summer, Tangerine, is all attitude, all brash, and all defiant in its film-making, which takes just one moment to learn after meeting our main characters: two Transgender prostitutes, Alexandra (Mya Taylor) and Sin-Dee (Kitana Kiki Rodriguez), who serve as a colorful cast of characters in this seedy, yellow and green colored L.A. circus world.

9. White God

From the opening shot of 300 dogs chasing a girl on a bike, it's clear this is going to be something unique. White God is essentially Oliver Twist with a protagonist who is a canine. The fact that this film manages to cross a foray of genres, incite an emotional response from non-human protagonists, and on top of that also be an allegory for the lower-class Hungarian experience makes it a complete work of art. The title, an obscure reference to the confusing dynamic between dog owners and their pets, seals this film as one of the most intricate and fascinating cinema experiences of the year.

8. Iris

As a 93-year-old fashion icon known worldwide, Iris Apfel exudes a naturalness that makes you feel as if you know her. Director Albert Maysles, whose previous films include Grey Gardens and Gimme Shelter, takes audiences into Apfel's life behind the scenes in the documentary Iris. From her private apartment in New York that she shares with her 100-year-old husband Carl, to her storage warehouse that doubles as a closet, we embark on an 80-minute journey that finds inspiration—and words of wisdom from Iris herself—at every turn.

7. Grandma

At a brisk 78 minutes, Grandma packs in some of the best movie material from the entire year. Hidden within the deceitfully simple premise is some of the most layered and fun storytelling I've seen and plenty of humor and sincere laughter. This is a movie that manages to cover the board in terms of being funny, endearing, and poignant. With that, it provides the largest wealth of dimensional female characters while mainstream movies notoriously sideline women's roles.

6. The Tribe

A standout at last year's Cannes Film Festival is the Ukrainian crime drama The Tribe, a film told through non-verbal acting and sign language with no voice overs or subtitles about a deaf teenager struggling to fit in at his new boarding school. It is a modern day silent movie with a vibrancy that will leave a lasting impression on those who are willing to experience this unique art film. The Tribe was made for an audience waiting for an authentically beautiful and powerful piece of cinematic art.

5. Ex Machina

Ex Machina is one of the most aesthetically beautiful and stylish films to come out this year. Writer/Director Alex Garland's "Sci-Fi meets Mystery" film tells the story of a young programmer, Caleb (Domhnall Gleeson), who is selected to participate in the opportunity to test an artificially intelligent robot, Ava, (Alicia Vikander) created by the tech-wiz recluse and quirk-capitalist Nathan (Oscar Isaac) and discover what qualities make it human enough to possibly pass as such. Suspenseful and intelligent, Ex Machina also stars some of the year's hottest actors—Vikander can be seen in The Danish Girl and Isaac stars in the highly anticipated Star Wars: The Force Awakens.

4. Room

Of the numerous movies circulating Oscars and other awards this year, my favorite is by far and away Room. Best viewed with as little information as possible (the trailer gives away far too much), it is an emotional experience not easily forgotten. Brie Larson delivers one of the strongest performances of her career as Ma, a victim of a kidnapping who has been forced to create a home out of a woodshed where she and her son Jack (Jacob Tremblay) are being held captive. This is a film that represents the pinnacle of dramatic filmmaking and thankfully is receiving the awards attention it deserves.

3. Mad Max: Fury Road

Normally, blockbusters are saturated, safe, and meant to be appealing to everyone, but nothing is easy to digest about Mad Max: Fury Road. It is a wild unrestrained ride of non-stop mayhem; in other words, it is an absolute blast. Jumpstarting a franchise that nobody thought needed another entry, and most people born after 1990 have never seen, George Miller reinvigorated his fable to new heights. If every franchise reboot felt as fresh as Fury Road, then I could get behind the industry's obsession with sequels and reimagining old intellectual properties. I can't remember the last time action sequences or chase scenes felt so fresh and alive, making this one of the finest action movies of the decade.

2. Victoria

Despite the fact that the biggest selling point on this movie is that the entire film is one uninterrupted shot, Victoria is more than just a movie all in a single take. For the first half of the film, director Sebastian Schipper borrows from the styles of Richard Linklater to introduce us to the film's protagonists, lonely partier Victoria and four men she encounters on her way out of a club. The fact that this film has both the most daring cinematography

WINTER WATERING TIPS FOR OUTDOOR LANDSCAPING

Golden State Water Company thanks you, our customers, for the steps you have taken to reduce water use during the drought, and is offering these tips to help you maximize your water-use efficiency this winter.

- ◆ Winter should bring rain and cooler temperatures, presenting an opportunity to scale back irrigation.
- ◆ Turn off lawn irrigation systems during rainy periods, and avoid watering during and 48 hours following measurable precipitation.
- ◆ Install water-efficient sprinkler heads, and check to make sure your sprinklers are positioned to irrigate the lawn and not your sidewalk, driveway or gutters.

- ◆ Survey your lawn irrigation system and fix any sprinklers, valves and lines that may be damaged or leaking water.
- ◆ While hand watering your lawn, focus on dry spots and pay close attention to avoid runoff.
- ◆ Avoid watering your lawn on windy days to limit overspray and evaporation.

What You Can do to Protect Yourself from Card Fraud in 2016

(BPT) - You may have already received your new credit or debit card equipped with a microchip. If you haven't received your new chip card, you most likely will by the time your card expires. The EMV chip technology is intended to help reduce debit and credit card fraud, and thanks to a collaboration between America's payment networks and card-issuers, you'll see many more merchants using EMV-equipped card readers over the coming months.

Chip-enabled cards store the same basic information that's already in the magnetic strip on the back of your card, such as the card number and expiration date. They add a layer of fraud protection by producing a single-use code to validate every transaction. While EMV technology is intended to reduce card fraud, it's still important to be aware of how fraud happens, what you can do to prevent it and what your card-issuer does to help protect you.

finances and keep your accounts safe. Most issuers will allow you to choose to be alerted to any unusual account activity via text, email or phone call.

- Review your statements every month to ensure all charges are accurate and authorized by you. If you spot a charge you don't recognize, contact the card issuer or bank immediately. With the shift to greater use of EMV technology, if fraud occurs on your account and you have a chip-enabled card, the merchant will be responsible for the costs in most situations. Also, banks like Chase offer zero liability protection - you won't be held responsible for unauthorized charges made with your card or account information.

- Monitor your credit reports. Although you're entitled to a free report from all three major credit bureaus once a year, checking your report more often can help catch signs of fraud earlier.

- Opt for secure paperless billing. Theft of paper documents, such as from your mailbox or trash, is still a top way fraudsters obtain information. By going paperless, you eliminate an opportunity for someone to steal your statement and get your account information.

- Switch to secure online or mobile payments to help protect your account information. Online payments add layers of security to your transaction and can help ensure you never miss a payment.

- * When using your card in a store, never allow the card out of your sight. If you have to enter a PIN number to use the card, be aware of who's standing around you and shield the keypad from view when you type in your PIN.

- Keep your contact information, including phone number and email address, up to date so the card issuer can contact you quickly if they detect signs of fraud on your account.

- Review your card agreement to be sure you understand what anti-fraud measures the issuer takes. For example, Chase uses specialized monitoring tools to keep an eye on your account 24/7.

- If your card company or bank offers it, sign up for account alerts to monitor your

of how fraud happens, what you can do to prevent it and what your card-issuer does to help protect you.

“Fraud prevention is a partnership between cardholders and the bank,” said Pam Codispoti, president of Chase Consumer Branded Cards. “By working together, we can help customers keep their accounts safer and more secure.”

Year Brings in Variety of Accomplishments for Local Athletes

By Joe Snyder

As the year 2015 comes to a close at midnight tonight, local athletic teams will look back at their success along with some struggles as well.

There were the big accomplishments and some of "What it could have been."

Some Lawndale High sports are an example. It starts with its experienced boys' basketball team that had won the Ocean League championship the previous year but, this past season, had to settle to tie for second place with Santa Monica, behind champion Beverly Hills that won the CIF-Southern Section Division IIIA crown.

In early March in the CIF-Southern Section Division IIAA championship game against Canyon High from Anaheim at the Honda Center in Anaheim, the Cardinals appeared to be headed for their first CIF-Southern Section title in basketball and the second for any team sport; the other being by their football team in 1966. Lawndale appeared to be well on its way with a 28-point (64-36) midway in the third quarter and was still ahead by 22 (69-47) after three periods. Throughout the season, the Cardinals had some fourth quarter problems but this was something. The Comanches rallied to tie the game at 82 at regulation. The contest went into two overtimes before Canyon came out on top 103-98. Lawndale also advanced to the final of the Southern California Regional Division II final before losing to eventual CIF-State Division II champion La Mirada 49-40 at the Long Beach State Pyramid. Current University of Southern California freshman 6-foot-10 center Chimeze Metu was the big spark for Lawndale.

Also in the winter, Lawndale shared the Ocean boys' soccer title with El Segundo, then went on to stun Pioneer League champion and second seed West Torrance in the second round of the CIF-Southern Section Division IV playoffs. The Cardinals fell in the quarterfinals to La Mirada.

Leuzinger captured the Pioneer League boys' basketball title. The Olympians, who were in their final season with head coach Ali Parvez who stepped down after the 2014-15 season, advanced to the quarterfinals of the Southern Section Division IIIA playoffs.

Inglewood finished second, behind Redondo, in the Bay League but owned a stunning 57-54 home win over the Sea Hawks, pinning them their first league loss in three seasons. The Sentinels lost in the second round of the Southern Section Division IAA playoffs to Eastvale Roosevelt.

Lawndale boys enjoyed a good track and field season behind Bryant Perkinson who won the Ocean League triple jump champion and advanced to the CIF-Southern Section Division III final. He leaped over 46 feet.

The Lennox 11-13-year-old Little League baseball team won the District 37 and Section 4, and Southern California titles only to fall short in the Western Regionals.

The fall certainly brought good success but "What it would have been" for the Lawndale High football team. The Cardinals were 10-2 on the field but an ineligible player who had a falsified address on his paper work after transferring to Lawndale from Los Angeles Fairfax, caused Lawndale to forfeit four of its victories dropping the Cards to 6-6. The Cardinals, who would have won their Ocean League crown since 1975, ended up tied for second place with El Segundo and Hawthorne. After Lawndale's 45-0 rout of the rival Cougars in their league finale, Lawndale made the playoffs and ended up routing host Ventura Buena 40-7 in the first round before running into top seed Calabasas at home on November 20. The injury ravaged Cardinals were unable to keep up with the Coyotes in a 33-7 loss. Calabasas would go on to roll over Bay League teams Redondo (41-17) in the semifinals and Palos Verdes (42-3) to win the Southern Section Western Division championship. The Coyotes fell to host Citrus Valley High in Perris in the Southern California Regional Bowl Game.

Quarterback Chris Murray and Perkinson keyed Lawndale.

Hawthorne had its best Ocean League showing since its 2004 title team with a 3-2 record but due to just 16 berths in the six-league Western Division, the Cougars, who were 3-7 overall, were left out of the playoffs. Leuzinger also had a third place finish in the Pioneer but its 4-6 overall record was not good enough.

So far, Lawndale's girls' basketball team is doing well after capturing the Redondo Battle at the Beach Tournament Gold Division by edging Torrance 37-34 on December 5. The Lady Cardinals are seeking their first Ocean League crown.

Leuzinger's boys are under first year head coach Arturo Jones, who worked with former Olympian, now at Redondo, head mentor Reggie Morris, Jr. for the past 10 seasons at Leuzinger, St. Bernard and Redondo. The Olympians are currently 5-7 overall.

Morningside Wins at San Pedro: Morningside High's boys' basketball team won the opening round of the San Pedro Pirate Shootout with a 78-59 victory over South Torrance last Saturday.

Brandon Anyanwu led the Monarchs with a game-high 19 points, followed by Charles Wright with 17 and Charles Akanno with 10.

Jordan Tang led the Spartans with 10 points.

Morningside resumed play in the classic that ended Wednesday.

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Wowser Schnauzers

Linus

We are looking for volunteers to help with our pet adoption fairs which are held every Saturday at the Petco located at 537 N. Pacific Coast Highway Redondo Beach 90277, from noon-3: 30 p.m. If you are interested in volunteering and can commit to at least one Saturday a month, please contact us at info@msfr.org. You can also visit all of our Miniature Schnauzers & Friends rescues at the adoption fair or check out our website, www.msfr.org. If you have any questions about a particular dog's availability you can email us at info@msfr.org. Schnauzers! Bet you can't adopt just one!

They call me Linus but I don't carry a blanket. I'm a one-year old, male, Miniature Schnauzer mix who got lost and ended up at a LA county shelter as a stray. I had some folks interested in me and even had a family that was scheduled to adopt me. Sadly, they must have changed their minds at the last minute because they never came to make it official. The MSFR folks literally came to my rescue and I am so very thankful to them. They always tell me that I super sweet and what a great little (only 14 pounds) guy I am. If you're looking for a real "people" dog, that's me. I would love to be your only dog but I can get along with smaller, female dogs but it will take some patience and a little work to help me adjust. I'm not exactly a non-shedder because I'm a mix but you could call me a low shedder because it's not very much. The best news is that when I get groomed I can get a Schnauzer cut or you can just let me go au naturel! If you are interested in Linus, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

Maddie

It's true that good things come in small packages and I'm here to prove it. My name is Maddie and I am a 1-year old, female, Miniature Schnauzer mix that is nothing but 13 pounds of petite sweetness. I was rescued from a LA county shelter just a couple of days before Halloween and that was certainly no treat. It was a very intimidating place and didn't suit my reserved personality. Since I'm not outgoing, actually I'm kind of shy, it's no surprise that no one was interested in adopting me. I get along great with other dogs, and I'm pretty quiet but I do love my people. Come to adoptions and see if you aren't just mad about Maddie. If you are interested in Maddie, please email info@msfr.org for more information.

My name is Venus and I'm a 60-pound, 2-year old, female Husky. My handsome mate, Mars, and I were found wandering the streets together on June 30th in San Bernardino. I had no ID or microchip so they considered me a stray. I spent 8 days in the shelter hoping that my owner would come to look for me but no such luck. It's obvious that my previous owners took very good care of me. I have a beautiful coat, I'm at my appropriate weight and am extremely sweet and gentle. Mars and I are truly a mated pair who clearly love one another, so we would love to be able to stay together. We compliment each other so well that even when we're together we are quiet, calm and easy to manage. We love to go for car rides and get along good with other dogs. Venus and Mars can be seen anytime at Yellow

You've already met my sweet Venus, so let me introduce myself, I'm Mars. I'm a 60-pound, 2-year old male Husky. As previously explained, Venus and I were found on June 30th, wandering the streets together in San Bernardino. I was considered a stray because I too, had no ID or microchip. I also spent 8 days in the shelter hoping that my owner would come to look for me but it was not to be. It's obvious by my stunning coat and the fact that I'm properly nourished that my previous owners took good care of me. I have a sweet and gentle temperament and get along well with other dogs. Venus and I are truly a mated pair who clearly love one another, so we would love to be able to stay together. Our manners are impeccable and even when we're together we are quiet, calm and easy to manage. We love to go for car rides and are affectionate. Mars and Venus can be seen anytime at Yellow Brick Road Doggie Playcare in El Segundo Call 310-606-5507 or email southbaydoggie@hotmail.com for an appointment or more information. •

Congratulations to our sweet Willie and his new family. Willie is our LA county shelter rescue with the awesome brows and too sweet face. Willie's new parents lost their 15-year old lab a couple of years ago and were considering adopting a Schnauzer for quite a while. Willie captured their hearts and is going to have a very Merry Christmas! Wishing you many more occasions to celebrate! •

THE YELLOW DOG PROJECT.com

If you see a dog with a YELLOW RIBBON or something yellow on the leash, this is a dog who needs some space. Please do not approach this dog with your dog. Please maintain distance or give this dog and his/her person time to move out of your way.

There are many reasons why a dog may need space:
HEALTH ISSUES
IN TRAINING
BEING REHABILITATED
SCARED OR REACTIVE AROUND OTHER DOGS

THANK YOU!

Those of us who own these dogs appreciate your help and respect!

Film Review

of the year on top of a compelling set of characters and memorable sequences makes it a film that has everything firing on all cylinders. Victoria is not the type of film that garners awards attention at the end of the year, but for me it is the cinematic experience that invigorated me more than any other movie I saw this year.

1. Anomalisa

He is the mind behind some of cinema's most creative films, such as 1999's Being John Malkovich, 2002's Adaptation, and 2004's Eternal Sunshine of the Spotless Mind

— now, screenwriter-turned-director Charlie Kaufman is back with the stop-motion film Anomalisa. In similar Kaufman fashion, the protagonist is a middle-aged cynic crippled by the mundanity of modern life, only to come to life when a stranger opens his eyes and ears to the beauty of human connection, if only for a moment. Anomalisa is a transfixing, thoughtful, and touching film that goes deep into the viewer's psyche and stirs up emotions of introspective thought. There is no doubt that Kaufman's latest masterpiece stands out as one of the year's best.

New Technologies Can Help Short Circuit Your Chronic Pain

(BPT) - More than 100 million people in this country have pain that won't go away. Many fail to get relief from pills, shots and surgery, while others trade the pain for side effects such as drowsiness or digestive problems. Unfortunately, too many become addicted to medications while trying to relieve their pain.

As part of a comprehensive treatment plan, a variety of technologies offer new hope to people living with chronic pain.

"Pain is one of the most challenging things to treat because its source can be elusive," says Richard Rosenquist, M.D., chair of the Committee on Pain Medicine and chairman of the department of pain management at the Anesthesiology Institute at the Cleveland Clinic. "That's why it's vital to see a physician specializing in pain medicine who can help identify the source of the pain and suggest which pain method might work best."

Physician anesthesiologists who specialize in pain management have extensive training and expertise in finding the cause of pain and partnering with patients to create a plan for managing pain and improving function, which may include one or more of the new techniques.

- Radio waves - Radiofrequency (RF) ablation involves heating a tiny area of nerve tissue, which short circuits pain signals. The pain medicine specialist inserts a needle into the nerve responsible for the pain and zaps it using an electric current created by radio waves.

- Blocking the pain - Pain medicine physicians inject numbing medication that blocks or dampens pain, and might even stop chronic pain from developing. Pain in the arm or face can be relieved by blocking nerves in the neck, while chronic abdominal pain can be relieved by an injection into nerves supplying the abdomen.

- Electric signals - Transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation (TENS) can provide short-term pain relief for certain types of muscle pain by sending low voltage electric signals from a small device to the painful area through pads attached to the skin.

- Spinal cord stimulation - When other methods fail, a pain medicine specialist might recommend spinal cord stimulation (SCS), which uses a pacemaker-like device that replaces the pain with a more tolerable sensation, typically tingling or a massage-like feeling. The physician implants the device in the lower back. When the patient feels pain, such as in the back or numbness in the legs (neuropathy), he or she can use a remote control device to send signals to the painful area.

- High frequency spinal cord stimulation - A recent study published in Anesthesiology, the medical journal of the ASA, showed that a special high-frequency form of SCS provides significantly greater long-term relief for both chronic back and leg pain, without tingling or other sensations.

- Pumping the pain away - Special implanted pumps allow the patient to push a button and deliver local anesthetics, narcotics and other pain medications to the spinal cord, bringing relief without the side effects that occur when taking these medications by mouth.

- On the horizon: using our cells to fight pain - Promising research involves harvesting stem cells from a patient's bone marrow and injecting them into an area, such as the lower back, that has become painful because tissue has deteriorated. The hope is that the stem cells will build new, healthy tissue and relieve pain for good.

Chris Power developed complex regional pain syndrome when he fell on his arm. Doctors told him there wasn't much hope, but his life was changed when he saw a physician anesthesiologist who recommended SCS. Watch Chris tell his story.

While technology can do wonders for chronic pain, patients can play a big role in managing their pain with some low-tech strategies, including stopping smoking, maintaining a healthy weight to avoid putting stress on hips and knees, and eating healthy foods. •

Baked Sweet Potatoes with Cranberry Gorgonzola Gremolata

Makes 6 servings

Ingredients

- 6 medium sweet potatoes
- 1/4 c. melted butter
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/4 c. pure maple syrup
- 1/4 c. minced fresh parsley
- 1 lemon zested
- 1 clove garlic, minced finely
- 3 tablespoons minced pecans
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped dried cranberries
- 1 scallion minced
- 2 ounces Stella gorgonzola, crumbled

Preparation

1. Preheat oven to 450 F. Place sweet potatoes on cookie sheet and bake for 30 minutes. Flip over and return to oven to bake until tender, about 20 minutes. Remove from oven and set aside.
2. When cool enough to do so safely, peel sweet potatoes. Place in a medium skillet over low heat with butter, salt and maple syrup for 5 minutes, basting the potatoes with the butter mixture occasionally. Lightly smash the potatoes until there is an even consistency. Hold over low heat.
3. In a small bowl, toss together parsley, lemon zest, garlic, pecans, cranberries and scallion. Gently fold in the gorgonzola. Move sweet potatoes to a serving dish and sprinkle with the cranberry blue cheese gremolata. Serve hot. •
