FRIDAY BUSINESS NETWORKING GROUP

Are you a current or up and coming business owner looking to prosper by way of efficient mediums? Business networking with the right people can be a milestone in itself! Dr. Ivan Misner, once called the "Father of Modern Networking" by CNN, is an entrepreneur and founder of BNI, the world's largest business networking organization, who defines Business Networking as "the process of developing and activating your relationships to increase your business, enhance your knowledge, and expand your sphere of influence". If you are looking to solidify these skills as a business owner, consider attending the Friday Business Networking Group meeting this 28th of February from 7:45am to 9:15am taking place at the Vintage Lounge at the DoubleTree Hotel! (DoubleTree By Hilton Torrance-South Bay, 21333 Hawthorne Blvd, Torrance, California 90503, Torrance, United States). Their purpose is to educate, share, and create business leads for attendees. Both this event as well as parking are absolutely free of cost! All the hotel asks is that attendees purchase something from their coffee kiosk located across from the Vintage Lounge (located straight back beyond the lobby). As Dr. Misner once said, "Successful networking of any kind starts with the genuine desire to build relationships for the purpose of giving and receiving business," in other words networking is essential and this is your opportunity! Among the variety of delicious products awaiting you are fruit, oatmeal, breakfast pastries, pre-packed lunch items, as well as hot and cold drinks of your choosing. No RSVP required! The main role of business organizing is to educate others concerning your business and, ideally, transform them into clients. Don't miss out on this prosperous opportunity!

JOSH'S THOUGHTS MAKE EVERY MOMENT COUNT

Lately, I've been thinking a lot about time. Yes, we've all heard that cliché "time flies" and there's little to no arguing against that theory. The idea I've been thinking about is the manner in which time is spent. Let me explain. When I was a child, I didn't yet grasp the concept of how quickly time passes by and I just took those moments for granted, as we all do at a young age. It's understandable. I couldn't have known of a different perspective; and, frankly, that's the way it should be. What I am noticing is what I did with my time is either what made my memories the best that it could be as well as having the opposite effect.

When I was five years old, I learned how to ride a bike. This was only after falling to the concrete floor and having tears roll down my face. When I was seven, I learned how to fly a kite only after that same kite flew straight into my right eye and gave me a bruise. When I was nine, I learned how to properly perform a dive into a swimming pool only after hitting my head on the pool ledge during my first attempt. You see, I was the type of kid that, when something happened that would discourage me, I'd try to find a way to "get back on the horse" as my grandfather would say.

Time went by and I got older. Late teens. I was, what you would say, irresponsible with

Wendy, a Gorgeous Ode to Never Growing Up

By Ryan Rojas

Following his feature film debut, 2012's Beasts of the Southern Wild, audiences have eagerly awaited Benh Zietlin's return to the big screen. And now, eight not-so-short-years later, it's finally here, with Benh (pronounced Ben) returning to adapt the beloved story of Peter Pan and make it his own in Wendy (in select theaters starting Friday).

Setting the film in a place of real-world fantasy (very much like Beasts), Benh's version sees similarly spirited, untamable children who yearn for adventure beyond the world they live in, and yet are brought down by grown-ups; here being depicted as lifeless, joyless, existing in body but far gone from their childhood selves.

It's with this devotion to celebrating childhood that Zeitlin centers his story of Peter Pan – and around his main character, Wendy (Devin France). Wendy is a spirited, tough, yet warm-hearted child, who along with her two brothers Douglas and James (Gage and Gavin Naquin), are one night lured out their bedroom window by a curious figure atop a bustling freight train. As impulse leads Wendy and her brothers out the window and after a short boat ride later, they find themselves a world away, on an island of magnificent wonder where they're free from their previous life's confinements. Finding similarly stowed away kids, these "lost boys" are unbound in daily adventure. Yet Wendy and her brothers remain transfixed by the one who led them out the window, the wise-as-he-is-playful Peter (Yashua Mack), whose orders to never grow up come more as a dire warning than simple words.

Wendy continues to unpack the rest of the mythology of Peter Pan, giving unexpected and insightful reason behind the known elements that make up the rest of the story: those who have grown old and desperate on the island who threaten the lost boys, a pirate ship in the form of a large fishing boat, and yes – the rise of Peter's infamous foe, Captain Hook.

And of course, magical realism does abound in the film. Fantastical elements do dance with reality, where playfully eruptive volcanoes and the island's protecting oceanic-dweller, "Mother," expand the world even more. It's in these moments where audiences will either ask themselves, "is this all real?" And that question is answered by, if you choose to see life through the eyes of a child, it is.

It's for these reasons combined that Wendy is not only one of the most welcomed entries into the Peter Pan filmography, but one of the most accomplished films about childhood in recent times. Benh Zeitlin is an artist who, with his singular immaculate vision, celebrates the world of seeing life with wonder, awe, fearlessness, curiosity, zest and untamed spirit. And that's what I found most movies about Peter Pan miss, and makes the classic story what it is: a story of embracing life that will never age for as long as its audiences don't either. 112 minutes. 'Wendy' is rated PG-13 for brief violent/bloody images. •

Ann Patchett's latest novel, The Dutch House, is about a brother and sister, Danny and Maeve, who grow up in an iconic house on the outskirts of Philadelphia, but are exiled by their stepmother, and how they come to terms with that event and the effect it takes on the rest of their lives. The house itself almost becomes a character that Danny and I enjoyed the book's descriptions of flawed characters that struggle with fulfilling obligations to the people they love versus pursuing their true passions, no matter the cost. I also liked seeing how the house represents different things to different characters, for some its success and security, to others its oppression and a life few could obtain, and yet to others, it is the ultimate goal to be acquired. The story is rich, heartbreaking and utterly unforgettable.

Huber's Hiccups

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy Named Norb Huber

ENJOY THE MOMENT

Just got back from Hawthorne. Me and Linda, aka OL, "my old lady", drove the 2002 Toyota Tundra down to SoCal in order to clean out the remainder of her late mother's stuff from her family's home on 134th Street. We are trying to get it ready to sell in the near future. It's hard to sort through things, donating some stuff to Goodwill, and keeping some things just for sentimental reasons. We ended up needing to rent a U-Haul trailer to transport "stuff" back up here to Orangevale. During our two day stay we visited with several of our friends, some who claim to be loyal readers. It's always great to reconnect with those we used to see almost every day when we were living in Hawthorne. We shared some stories, talked about people, and had a few laughs. When it was time to say good bye, I was thinking in the back of my mind when would be the next time we would see each other again. Have you ever said good bye to someone knowing full well that it may be the last time you ever see them again at least on this side of heaven? Distance separates friends and family. We can only be in one place. We treasure the memories of good times that we shared. It's good that we remember the good and forget about those bad or boring moments. I tell my daughter and son-in-law to enjoy their kids while they are still young because they grow up so fast. We can't turn back the clock. We only can enjoy the memories and make the most of the present. We value our friendships, we treasure our families, everything else pales in comparison to those whom we love. Live each day with joy making happy memories with those who are close to you. After that, it's time to relax and have a cold one. I remember and celebrate my 19 loyal readers and the memories we have shared.

DRIVING THE GOLDEN STATE

So, we left Hawthorne around 11:30 a.m. thinking that the morning rush would be over and the traffic getting out of SoCal wouldn't be so bad. We cruised down Rosecranes to the 405 North onramp. As usual, we hit stop and go traffic around Howard Hughes Parkway, cars were weaving in and out of lanes though the Sepulveda Pass, we wind our way through the SF Valley up to Sylmar and out to Magic Mountain. We stop at McDonalds for our one dollar drinks at Lake Hughes Road by Castaic Lake. We stay in the middle lane all the way up the Grapevine. I finally relax when we get down to level ground going out in the Central Valley. Then I set the cruise control to 67 mph and steer it straight for 300 miles. Cars and trucks are speeding right past us going 80 or 90 mph. The almond trees along Interstate 5 were beautiful with their colorful buds in full bloom. After a stop for gas and to eat dinner we are safely back home in NorCal. Not too bad of a drive, just a lot of trucks and traffic along the way. I'm always thankful for safe travel. It's nice to be back home.

LOYAL READERS

One of my loyal readers up in Colorado claims to be loyal reader #19, so I will go with that. We might have some fussy math going on here. I see people and they tell me they enjoy reading my column. I'm thinking, are they just saying that to make me feel good? I ask them if they enjoy reading about cold ones and God and they just say sure. I have a feeling that I have some "fake readers" out there, they claim to read

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

this stuff but not really. They don't have the heart to tell me to shut up. They don't want to hurt my feelings. I really don't care if you are a "fake loyal reader". I've been faking it for a long time. The old motto is: "fake it to make it". If you don't know how to do something, just fake it, just act like you know what you are doing and people will believe you. Believe me, I'm as real as I can be, unless I'm faking it. Go ponder that one. Have a great week, may the peace of the Lord be with you all!

MEMORIES OR PHOTOS?

Walt is a friend mine. He read my blurb about having to clean out my mother-in-law's house last week. He asked, why do we hang on to so much junk? We are addicted to material things. We save things to pass on to our children, but most of the time they don't want them. We have collections of baseball cards, or dishes, or stamps, or match boxes, but when we are gone, no one really cares to store them. What should we save? Our memories, memories of the love we shared. Memories of the good times we had together. Walt recently traveled with his wife to Hawaii. He said they came back with exactly one photo on his cell phone. My friend said that the memories and pictures in his head will last until he dies. Don't we all have thousands of photos saved on our cell phones or computers of which we barely look at? We all listened this week to Kobe's widow talk not so much about his accomplishments but more about what kind of husband and father he was to his family. A real hero in life is someone who loves those that God has given them to love. When all of our earthly possessions are gone, what remains is the love God gives us to share with others. We learn from tragedies the things that really are most valuable. Keep taking those photos, both with your cell phone and your mental camera. Treasure those memories, love your loved ones just as God loves you. May God continue to bless you and your family and may the peace of God be with you always.

COMING CLEAN

Okay, now I have some Johnny-come-lately readers who asked if they could be my #20 and #21 loyal readers. They claim that they DO read my weekly dribble. These people are coming out from the shadows or the closet, they have been flying under the radar, maybe they're transitioning from being afraid to admit their readership to now espousing their loyalty. It's like 2016 and no one wanted to be identified as a Trump voter but 63 million people did end up voting for the guy. It's okay to admit that you enjoy reading about cold ones and the fact that you are loved by God, and that there is absolutely nothing you can do to prevent yourself from growing old and dying. Come clean. You will feel better if you just admit it. Tell your old lady that you sneak a peak at this trash heap of old worn out cliques' once a week. Take a step of faith and trust that that you will still be accepted by those who supposedly love you. Standing up and admitting your addiction is the first step that leads to recovery. Life is better when you come clean. You can look yourself in the mirror knowing you have nothing to hide. We all have dirty underwear in our life long suitcases. Just throw out that burdensome baggage and live. If reading my drabble makes you feel good, then pop open a cold one and you will really feel good. Celebrate your cleanliness!

my time. I acted in ways I'm not proud of. I had the wrong ideas of 'role models' and followed the wrong people. But by far, the worst thing I did was throw away what I had ingrained in me at an early age. That being, I stopped having the curiosity to learn new skills and experience new things.

I'm nearly twenty-five years old and these past few years have been a sobering experience. I became a highly involved college student, learned ways in how to support my peers, learned new methods in how to be respectful and thoughtful of others, and I've gained tons of new skills that I never knew I was missing out on. When I say those moments are the most positively challenging and most exciting times I had as a student, I mean it. I even had the honor to have had the opportunity of leading a club on campus and I am very grateful for that experience, but that's a topic for another time.

For now, I want you to think about this: when you finish reading this article, what are you going to do? Are you heading out to work? Are you going to do some grocery shopping? Are you needing to find some important documents you may have misplaced somewhere inside your home? Before you go and do your daily tasks, I would ask that you take a step back for a moment, think about something small you can improve on (maybe something you never felt needed improving), and try new techniques you never thought of trying. See how it makes you feel. It could be anything from your method of wiping rain spots off of your car window to how you greet your neighbor. Regardless of the outcome, you can always find positive take-aways in making those few seconds of breaking away from normal routine extra meaningful. That's only one of the many ways you can find for valuing your time. •

Ingredients

- 8 tablespoons butter
- 1 medium onion, diced
- 8 oz button mushrooms, sliced
- 5 large Eggland's Best eggs
- 1 1/4 cup whole milk
- 1 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
- 1 cup grated aged Gouda cheese
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh thyme
- 2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage

Directions

- Step 1: Preheat oven to 425°F.
- Step 2: In a large sauté pan, melt 2 tablespoons of butter over medium heat and cook for 2-3 minutes until melted and foamy.
- Step 3: Add onions and cook, stirring for 2-3 minutes until they begin to soften.
- Step 4: Add the herbs, then stir in the mushrooms and cook for another 3-5 minutes until they are browned and softened as well. Remove from heat.
- Step 5: Put the Eggland's Best eggs, milk, flour, salt and pepper into a blender and blend at high speed for about a minute.
- Step 6: Stop, scrape down the sides with a rubber spatula, and blend for another 30 seconds.
- Step 7: Place the remaining 6 tablespoons of butter into a 12-inch cast iron skillet and put the pan into the oven.
- Step 8: Wait until the butter is completely melted and bubbling, then carefully take the pan out and swirl the butter around to make sure the pan is coated.
- Step 9: Spread the onions and mushrooms on the bottom of the cast iron skillet. Pour the egg and flour mixture on top.
- Step 10: Finally, sprinkle cheese all over and put back into the oven for 20 minutes, until browned on top. The pancake will puff up as it bakes.
- Step 11: When finished, take the Dutch baby out of the oven.
- Step 12: You can scatter more sage and thyme across the top, if you desire.
- Step 13: For a more decadent touch, melt a tablespoon of herb butter on top of the pancake as soon as it leaves the oven.

Bubba
“A cat has absolute emotional honesty. Human beings, for one reason or another, may hide their feelings, but a cat does not,”... Ernest Hemmingway.

When Bubba was rescued in November, he weighed in at a whopping 26.5 pounds! He signed up for our Biggest Loser Club and we're proud to report that he is now down to 19.5 pounds. Although his weight loss journey is going well, he's still looking for his fur-ever home. As the weight has come off, his wonderful personality has come out. This lovable boy is very friendly, playful and sociable to his human friends. However, Bubba has made it clear that he needs to be the king of his castle and doesn't want to share his human(s) with other animals. With his stunning looks, his friendly personality and his paws-itive approach to life, he is quite the catch. You're sure to fall in love with Bubba as much as we have.

Blue is a darling Siamese who is super friendly and outgoing. He wins the hearts of everyone and every cat. He is such the charmer and flits about like a butterfly. On the other hand, his brother - the fluffy Little Bear, is shy and slow to bond, but will sit endless on your lap. Once Little Bear bonds with you, he will be your cuddle bunny for life. Blue will adore you as well and look to you with loving eyes. These boys cannot be split up and must be adopted together. You get two gorgeous brothers who are so different and unique in their own ways. Come meet them at the Kitten Rescue Adoption Center.

Scarola is a sweet, curious girl who just wants a little love and attention from her people and animal friends once she gets comfortable in a new space. While she loves to bond with people and other cats and as quite a few kitty friends, Scarola would do best in a quieter setting so she doesn't get lost in the shuffle. She has a velvety-soft coat of a million tiny orange sparkles. She tends to bond more with people when on her own but would love to be adopted with a buddy or into a home with a playful companion.

Julianne is always on the go and looking for some cuddle sessions. She loves to climb on top of cat trees and running around with her siblings. She is such a fun and energetic little girl. Julianne is always looking for the next exciting toy to play with or thinking of ways to make a new game out of the old toys to amuse herself and her siblings. She also loves to get cuddled and will even climb up to your arms to make sure she gets some cuddle sessions with you. In her foster home, Julianne loves to play with her mommy's dog and is great with older cats. She is still very young and needs to be adopted with one of her siblings – James, Jasper or Jolene.

Julianne's brother, Jasper, is simply amazing! He loves to cuddle, give kisses and snuggle with his human. His is a master of making biscuits and purring. This darling boy might give you a cavity because he is so sweet! His favorite pass time is to get chin/cheek scratches and being cradled. He is such a sweet little thing, but don't let that fool you he loves to play as well. His favorites are wand feather toys and little mice toys.

Redd is a gorgeous and wonderful Maine Coon guy. Weighing in at 24 pounds, he needs quite a bit of space and a very sturdy and strong cat tree. This handsome boy will require a special home to accommodate his special needs. He needs special food served in small amounts three to four times a day as he will overeat to the point of vomiting. Redd also had a terrible reaction to a vaccine when he was young, so no more vaccines of any kind for him ever.

Redd
Redd will also need to be the only animal in the house with no children. The ideal home for Redd would be a quiet environment with only one or maybe two patient adults who are home quite a bit so that they can cater to his culinary needs and keep him in the lifestyle to which he is accustomed.

These kitties are available for adoption through Kitten Rescue, one of the largest cat rescue groups in Southern California. All our kitties are spayed/neutered, microchipped, tested for FeLV and FIV, dewormed and current on their vaccinations. For additional information and to see these or our other kittens and cats, please check our website www.kittenrescue.org or email us at mail@kittenrescue.org.

Your tax-deductible donations for the rescue and care of our cats and kittens can be made through our website or by sending a check payable to Kitten Rescue, 914 Westwood Blvd. #583, Los Angeles, CA 90024.

On Saturdays, we have adoptions from noon to 3:30 p.m. in Westchester at 8655 Lincoln Blvd. just south of Manchester Ave. and also in Mar Vista at 3860 Centinela Ave. just south of Venice Boulevard. Our website lists additional adoption sites and directions to each location.

Adopting one animal may not change the world, but it will forever change the world for that animal. •

Congratulations to Gatsby and his new human!

Just last month Gatsby found himself at West Valley Shelter after being hit by a car. When we rescued him, Gatsby was visually impaired from the head trauma. We are happy to report that Gatsby has fully regained his vision and went to his fur-ever home last week.

When you adopt a “pet without a partner”, you will forever make a difference in their life and they are sure to make a difference in yours. •

Gatsby is going home!
