Uniting in Action to Support and Enrich Our South Bay Community

She Has a Calling for Public Service

By Ron Sokol

Guam is quite a long way from Los Angeles. Jasmine Leon Guerrero spent much of her childhood there. In fact, her parents live in Guam, and she holds a Master's Degree in Public Administration from the University of Guam. Also, Jasmine married her husband in Guam, and he is considered a "Chamorro," a member of the indigenous people of Guam.

"We moved to Los Angeles in 2017, so my husband could obtain his graduate degree from the University of Southern California. Los Angeles just felt more my speed. I love the energy in people who want to make a change to improve things. It feels good to be a part of such a progressive state as California. I worked as an investment analyst at a bank back home, and when I arrived in LA, my interest and work shifted to fashion, particularly ethical, sustainable fashion. The innovation, being creative, and making goods is worthwhile, but then one day, after the death of George Floyd, I just thought more and more about what I could be doing instead that may be more helpful to the community and how I could affect the most change."

Jasmine Leon Guerrero has a notable passion for public service. After graduating from college, she spent time in the Philippines to help in the relief work due to a devastating typhoon in 2013. Years later, she worked with Teach for the Philippines as an event coordinator for income. She had worked in the government before, in Honolulu's Department of Emergency Services, as well as Guam's Office of Civil Defense. She hopes her passion and dedication to public service are a reminder that working for the government is not just about getting a paycheck, but "Also about the mission of equity and making a difference."

So it is that in 2021, Jasmine was hired as a District Representative for State Senator Steven Bradford, who represents the constituents of California's 35th Senate District. Senate District 35 includes many communities, with over one million residents, from Carson to Inglewood, Hawthorne to San Pedro, Gardena and Watts to Wilmington.

A typical day for Jasmine (not that any are typical) starts early. She attends numerous community events, often being part of the planning or coordinating the events. The rest of the day is spent with non-profit organizations and, at any point, avidly trying to assist constituents with navigating or resolving issues, many of which involve government agencies. Constituents range from young to old, from healthy to disabled.

"A community member may call in who has a problem with the Department of Motor Vehicles, a disabled person needs assistance with a project to complete it, or a Veteran has concerns about benefits. Some we can handle through the State or locally. For those issues we can't help with, we connect them to resources or refer them to the appropriate office. For

Two El Segundo Residents Tackle the Cause of the El Segundo Blue Butterfly

By Liz Spear

Two El Segundo residents are on a quest to see the El Segundo Blue Butterfly flourish. And they're off to a good start, with a key donation from the Chevron El Segundo Refinery creating the opportunity for Monica Davis and Barbara Boland (who call themselves the El Segundo Blue Butterfly Conservancy) to be able to finance the purchase of the only plant the El Segundo Blue uses for its entire lifecycle—Seacliff Buckwheat (Eriogonum parvifolium). Sustaining and growing the ES Blue population is a passion for the duo, who are keenly aware that the ES Blue has been on the Federal government's endangered species list since 1976.

For Davis and Boland, whose ES Blue

vision would position Seacliff Buckwheat growing alongside other key California native plants wherever possible in El Segundo, the donation comes at the beginning of what they hope will be a significant community undertaking to create and plant the native coastal habitat the ES Blue needs. Fortunately for the ES Blue, Davis and Boland are willing to take small steps to educate and bring awareness to its plight.

And they're extremely grateful for the assistance and community support they've received so far, including the connections they've made with Ann Dalkey, a retired marine biologist, and former science director at the Palos Verdes Peninsula

The Lioness of Boston by Emily Franklin

By Roz Templin, Library Assistant

I was reading a book about artist John Singer Sargent and I learned that Isabella Stewart Gardner was his patron as well as his portrait subject. In fact, she had her own art museum in Boston! I remember looking up the museum online and being fascinated ... I really want to visit that place someday!

In The Lioness of Boston, author Emily Franklin uses the historical fiction genre to inhabit Isabella's mind and heart and give readers an understanding of what the mid-1800s must have been like for an intelligent console her from the slights she suffered: she was always trying to fit in, especially with the ladies of the sewing circle (she was never invited to join.) "Mrs. Jack," as she came to be known, had friendships with many people from all walks of life. In this accounting, she had friendships with a gardener and a fountain caster at the Public Gardens (in Boston), and even a zookeeper. There's a lively scene that describes Mrs. Gardener leading a pair of leashed lions down a busy city street! Did that really happen? Isabella herself is quoted as saying, "Don't spoil a good story by telling the truth."

Isabella Stewart Gardner knew sorrow (her only son died while a toddler and her brother and sister-in-law left three young boys, which she and her husband raised) and the frustration of not being taken seriously as a person. Her relationships with artistic and literary celebrities of the time formed a foundation of self-education which extended to a passion to support artists and collect their works. Always searching for her true self she declares, "I know I've a greater use in this life. And I'll be damned if I let go until I find it." Even if this isn't a true biography, it seems like Ms. Franklin has captured the spirit of a fascinating and indomitable woman - one who succeeds wildly beyond her own hopes.

Read this and other new books on a visit to the library. Save the date during August: the library will be celebrating its 75th anniversary and there will be special programs throughout the month, winding up with our Diamond Jubilee Day on Saturday, August 26th. young woman. Even for a woman of some standing and means, it was no bed of roses. Isabella is newly married to John "Jack" Lowell Gardner, Jr., brother of her best friend Julia as the book begins. Jack was a partner in his father's East Indies trading business and his family was quite wealthy. Isabella had been raised in a distinctive household in New York City, attending private schools for girls, eventually sent to an exclusive academy in Paris.

After the wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner moved to 152 Beacon Street in Boston. "Belle" chafed against society's guidelines for women. It seems that being ornaments to husbands, bearing and rearing children, running households, giving parties and always being mindful of one's "place" ... were not things to which she ascribed. Belle had a sharp intellect, a quick wit and delighted in nature, literature and art. Her husband indulged her and would

20 Days in Mariupol Offers a Look at the War in Ukraine From the Front Lines

By Morgan Rojas for Cinemacy

A good documentary brings the viewer into a previously unknown world, introducing them to the subjects and situations from an unbiased point of view. At times, this intimate experience can prove to be a challenging watch, especially when human lives, including the filmmaker's, are at stake. 20 Days in Mariupol is a brutal and sobering time capsule of the early days of Russia's invasion of Mariupol, Ukraine's Eastern port city.

Bringing this story to the world is Pulitzer Prize-winning AP journalist and Ukrainian filmmaker Mstyslav Chernov, who is credited as the documentary's director, writer, and cinematographer. Immediately, we are transported to a ramshackle apartment building, with Russian tanks etched with the letter "Z" (signaling war) slowly encroaching into this previously quiet neighborhood. What follows is devastation of the highest degree: civilians are shot, the local hospital is under siege, and the harrowing realization that safety is fleeting.

Wearing a press badge as if it was a bulletproof vest, AP reporter Mstyslav Chernov uses a handheld camera to capture all of the events that unfold in Mariupol over the three weeks he is there. The footage he gets from being on the ground is directly sent to news outlets around the world, that is, when Russia doesn't revoke internet access and make communication with the outside world impossible. The footage from Mariupol you saw on CNN,

Ways to Save on Celebrations & Gatherings This Summer

(BPT) - The arrival of summer brings excitement and anticipation for the many milestone celebrations that will take place. From graduations to weddings and seasonal gatherings such as barbecues, reunions, summer pool parties, attending a concert, visiting a new destination or heading out for a celebratory night on the town; curating a memorable experience for family and friends also means making an investment in what kind of celebration best suits you and your guests. For AARP members, a wide range of benefits and discounts can help make planning a celebration easy while also staying affordable.

Here are some tips and tricks on ways to save for this season of celebrations.

Witnessing life's biggest milestones in person sometimes requires getting there by plane, car or rail. Luckily, planning a celebratory family vacation or a solo trip to a destination wedding or college graduation is a breeze with AARP Travel Center Powered by Expedia, a one-stop shop where you can book flights, hotels, rental cars and more. AARP members can also earn a $50 gift card of their choice when they book any flight vacation package, which can be redeemed at popular retailers like Amazon, Starbucks and others.

"Recent research from AARP's Travel Trends studies shows that multigenerational trips are almost at pre-pandemic levels, and folks are booking a range of different types of travel from weekend beach trips to big international adventures," said AARP Director of Travel Matthew Phillips. "Tapping into membership benefits can help you save when looking to book for a larger group."

For road trips, rental cars are a great option when you want to save mileage on your personal car, or just need a bigger vehicle to fit the whole family. AARP members can take advantage of up to 30% off base rates with Avis and Budget and a 3% credit to use on other rentals within 12 months. Plus, you get an upgrade on compact through full-size car class bookings (based on availability), and an additional driver at no cost and more. Driving one-way from the Southeast to Northeast? For a limited time, you can also enjoy great deals on daily and weekly rates with Budget!

Finding appropriate accommodations that suit your needs is just as important as choosing the destination and booking transportation. AARP members can save 10% or more off their stay by booking accommodations from one of the many IHG Hotels & Resorts, including Holiday Inn and Holiday Inn Express locations worldwide. Reservations can be booked online or by phone through IHG Hotels & Resorts.

A foolproof way to make someone feel appreciated on their special day is dining out. When looking to take guests out to celebrate example, if it involves a Federal issue, we connect them to their respective congressperson's office. Our help may also be just googling something for a senior citizen. We are here to help. One of the reasons I genuinely like this job is because Senator Bradford himself is so committed to being an equitable and helpful representative for the people. As you probably know, his term ends after 2024, but I don't think he is done doing his good work by any means. And to be clear, we support and listen to constituents in the District office.

In the Sacramento office, the focus is on legislation with the goal of enhancing the lives of those same constituents. I know firsthand from working with him Senator Bradford is very dedicated to serving the residents of the 35th Senate District."

Recently the District Office expanded from three to six people, which will provide an even greater opportunity for Jasmine to assist the community and allow her to focus more on organizing events and resource fairs that benefit the public. One such event is coming up – the Back-to-School Resource Fair.

"It is exciting! On Saturday, August 5, from 11 am to 3 pm, on the North Lawn at Cal State Dominguez Hills, Senator Bradford is hosting his second Back-to-School Backpack Giveaway and Resource Fair. There will be health screening, immunizations, free haircuts and braids for kids, the Natural History Mobile Museum, fun crafts, a Los Angeles County Library book giveaway, snacks, and an ice cream cart. We look forward to a big turnout. I encourage your readers to call our office at 310) 412-6120 to register."

It is refreshing to talk with someone like Jasmine, who has confidence in government. She believes government can be part of making people's lives better. This comes at a time when there is a great deal of cynicism and calls to reduce government. Jasmine sees the benefits, a glass half full. She thinks being critical of the government is not a bad thing, not at all. "People should expect a high-quality government that works for them and works well."

Senator Bradford's term ends after 2024. As such, I did inquire about what Jasmine may do thereafter. She does not rule out running for political office some day, but wants to get to know the South Bay community even better. "If I run for office, I think the voters want to know that I really have a good understanding of the neighborhoods and the issues impacting us. Government relations continue to be of great interest to me. Working for Senator Bradford is the best job I have had. For now, I am fully focused on this work."

Let's check back on Jasmine, maybe in just a few years. With more staff at the District Office, she is going to be doing more event coordinating. If you attend one of the Senator's events, chances are you will meet her. Perhaps you are not so confident about the good that government can accomplish. In that event, my thought is that you spend a little time with Jasmine Leon Guerrero. It is reassuring to know that outstanding work is being done right here in our community and that there are enthusiastic people with their shoulders firmly to the wheel. •

BBC, ABC, FOX, and more was captured by Chernov.

Throughout all of the chaos, Ukrainians are glad to have Chernov on site to show international news outlets the horrific nature of the war and Russia's consistent killing of civilians. Chernov's presence is invaluable, as he captures doctors frantically performing CPR on a four-year-old child who's clearly dying, a father weeping over his sixteen-year-old son's bloody body, his face so close that there's a transfer of blood on his forehead, and devastated doctors crying underneath their N95 masks. "This is painful to watch, but it must be painful to watch," says one Ukrainian police officer. This is the reality of life in Mariupol.

The filmmaking team could only withstand 20 days in the war-torn city before making a desperate decision to escape. It's horrifying to discover that the war continued for another 60+ days after the AP reporters' departure. What more destruction could Russian troops have possibly inflicted on this already depleted working-class town? One statistic displayed at the end of the film paints a stark picture of the community's fate - a confirmed 25,000 people perished, with the actual number believed to be much higher.

20 Days in Mariupol also signifies the resilience of the community. The doctors, first responders, military, reporters, and citizens who open up their homes to strangers, all work together to keep any semblance of optimism alive. Mstyslav Chernov and all involved in helping tell this story should be lauded for their heroism and dedication to revealing one of the most important events in history.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: FREDERICK G. SIEGEL CASE NO. 23STPB06624

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the WILL or estate, or both of FREDERICK G. SIEGEL.

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by ELVIA SARAVIA in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that ELVIA SARAVIA be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held in this court as follows: 08/10/23 at 8:30AM in Dept. 11 located at 111 N. HILL ST., LOS ANGELES, CA 90012

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

AANCILLARY PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Michael J. Seibert in the Superior Court of California, County of Los Angeles.

THE ANCILLARY PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Michael J. Seibert be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE ANCILLARY PETITION requests the decedent's NON-DOMICILIARY WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The NON-DOMICILIARY will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE ANCILLARY PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act with full authority. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.)

The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on 07/28/2023 at 08:30AM in Dept. 29 located at 111 N. HILL ST. LOS ANGELES CA 90012 STANLEY MOSK COURTHOUSE.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. Notice To Potential Bidders: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. Notice To Property Owner: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (877) 440-4460 or visit this Internet Web site www.mkonsultantsinc.com, using the file number assigned to this case 230405119. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Notice To Tenant: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (877) 440-4460, or visit this internet website www.tssales.info, using the file number assigned to this case 230405119 to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. Blue Butterfly

Land Conservancy, which has and is working on creating habitat for both the ES Blue and Palos Verdes Blue Butterfly to thrive in, as well as El Segundo Mayor Drew Boyles and El Segundo Environmental Committee member Tracey Miller-Zarneke, who accepted the duo's offer to separately tour the Seacliff Buckwheat habitat adjacent the Dockweiler Youth Center and its bluff-top parking lot at Dockweiler State Park/Beach to see the ES Blue flitting about on Seacliff Buckwheat.

More recently and just this month, Davis and Boland have given three tours to locals interested in seeing these tiny miracles during their short-lived adult butterfly stage of about four days in the hopes people will understand how unique the ES Blue is and will want to join the efforts to bring more of its population to El Segundo. (Several longtime El Segundo residents who took the tour had never seen the ES Blue and were thrilled to see it and learn more about it.)

Notably, just last week at the El Segundo Middle School's ribbon cutting ceremony for its new gym on July 11, Davis was happy to see all of the newly planted small Seacliff Buckwheat plants adjacent a paved pathway near the basketball courts and homes in about a 20-foot by 100-yard-long area and thanks the school district for this contribution toward saving the ES Blue. Davis notes that Seacliff Buckwheat takes some three years to get established—she says it's dubbed "sleep, creep, leap" because it "sleeps" in year one, of rain and sun the plants have received. A few days after the eggs have been laid, caterpillars emerge from the eggs as "little flower-eating machines," according to Blue Butterfly Conservancy literature. From there, it takes five molts before the caterpillars crawl to the bottom of the plant and molt into the chrysalis stage, where they remain through the fall, winter, and spring before their emergence as an adult during the proper summer conditions. The ES Blue produces just one brood per year.

Indeed, one might thank that the ES Blue requires very little for its life. Just Seacliff

Peninsula Land Conservancy, which grows its own native plants. Throw in the six months it takes to grow the plants, and you get a good idea of the factors involved in the ES Blue's survival. Planning, availability of raising their twins here), the fact that the ES Blue has little Seacliff Buckwheat for it other than the small patch of shrubs at Dockweiler, the fenced-in preserve that sits on dunes (once a residential community called Surfride that was removed to make way for Los Angeles International Airport and is now maintained by Los Angeles World Airports) just west of LAX and east of Vista Del Mar, a small preserve on Chevron property that isn't accessible to the public, and small patches of land along The Esplanade in Redondo Beach and Vista Mar Park above Torrance Beach that PVPLC has been at work on, seems too little space for the tiny butterfly that once thrived all along the sand dunes from Vista del Mar to PCH until development destroyed their habitat.

Davis has long-term and short-term goals for the ES Blue and a vision that includes native habitat lining Imperial Highway on both sides and the median where possible, along with implementing habitat into the city's Downtown Specific Plan, park areas, and any little space where even a small amount of native habitat can be planted. She's creatively surveyed spots in the city where she thinks habitat could be planted and has been met with a receptive ear from the city's Parks and Recreation Department. She also would love for residents to plant native habitat gardens.

Mostly, though, she and Boland, who joined Davis' 2018 cause in September of 2020s, aim to instill excitement at the miracle these

"creeps" in year two, and "leaps" in year three and that year four is when observers can begin to expect to see the ES Blue using this host plant for its multi-stage life cycle of egg, larva (caterpillar), pupa (chrysalis) to butterfly. In fact, just this year, in the native habitat she planted in her front yard four years ago, Boland has seen her first ES Blues.

The life of an ES Blue consists of a short several days' adult butterfly life in which the blue males search for the brown-colored females to mate. Once they mate, the female lays her eggs on the flower heads of the Seacliff Buckwheat, which booms roughly from June-August, depending on the amount

Buckwheat, right? But that's not all it needs. And growing, buying, and planting the ES Blue's required host plant Seacliff Buckwheat takes a grower who grows the plant, money for its purchase, and proper soil and space for planting the Seacliff Buckwheat, which is not to be confused with Coast or Coastal Buckwheat, which is not the same plant. As a rule, it's best to use the botanical name for plants since common names can apply to more than one plant, while the botanical name does not.

To maximize its donation from Chevron, Boland and Davis have been able to purchase discounted plants from the Palos Verdes Bladderpod—Peritoma arborea, and Purple Sage—Salvia leucophylla) to create a native habitat for the Seacliff Buckwheat are all key. Native plants, though drought tolerant, will require watering in their formative years, but once established, require less water and will attract a diversity of native insects, birds, and lizards. Seacliff Buckwheat is a nectar source for many beneficial insects which then serve as a food source for birds and lizards. And, Seacliff Buckwheat is a pollinator for other plants as bees and other nectar-seeking insects and birds will spread the pollen to other plants.

For Davis, who has lived in El Segundo with her husband since 2004 (the couple is diminutive creatures are. Not only has the ES Blue survived the days when sand dunes were upended by houses and buildings as the city of El Segundo grew, but they've also survived years of neglect and a lack of understanding and awareness that could have supplied their needs and probably their population.

Now, Davis and Boland hope to turn another corner for the ES Blue and bring it back to El Segundo city limits in a manner where it thrives and where it can sustain itself by virtue of countless patches and areas filled with Seacliff Buckwheat and the other California native plants that will offer it an opportunity to thrive, just as it once did on the coastal dunes of El Segundo. • around the clock, moms with litters, cats that need socialization, and sick or injured animals. When they are finally ready for their forever home, we will help match you with the purr-fect one. When you adopt, you save a life... and in turn enrich your own.

Sherpa and Greyheart and their sisters Rocky Raccoon and Tiny Dot were found abandoned in a box on the street. Sherpa and Greyheart are the alpha girls of the bunch. They have the same energy level and keep each other entertained all day. They make a perfect team. They are very social with new people and would probably do well with other pets too. Are you looking for cuddles? This is the pair for you!

Sherpa is a classic beauty and has the brains to match. Miss smarty pants figures things out before everybody else. She loves to explore and climb, perch on your shoulder and purr in your ear. She is very protective of her smaller siblings and her favorite things. When she hunts down a new toy, she likes to carry it proudly into her secret lair and Percy is the cutest adventurer you will meet. When he is not laying on your lap asking for cuddles and belly rubs, you will find him exploring every nook and cranny of your home, playing with any toy he finds, or wrestling with his brothers and sisters. He will love following you around the house and come greet you at the door as soon as you step inside. Percy is just an adorable purr machine who will charm you with his super social, friendly and curious personality. Adopt Percy and you will never be bored. Percy needs to be adopted with another kitten and would be very happy to go to his forever home with one of his siblings (Paxton, Parker or Peyton).
