Ian Gittins Makes His 2020 Living Selling and Servicing Old-School Machines

By Duane Plank

Ian Gittins, the owner of Tanner's Sewing and Vacuum Center located in Westchester, started his career as a vacuum mechanic 40 years ago. Today, he and his wife of 27 years, Teri, make their living providing their clients old-fashioned customer service and top-quality, state of the art equipment, equipment that was blueprinted and invented more than a century ago.

Massachusetts' Elias Howe has been credited by some with securing the first patent for a "practical" sewing machine in 1846, although the folks at the Singer Corporation posit that their founder, Isaac Merritt Singer, is the actual father of the sewing machine (1851). And in 1901 London, inventor Hubert Cecil Booth began peddling his behemoth vacuum cleaner, which looked about half the size of an ice-smoothing Zamboni and removed dust and particles and whatever else (think small rodents), that was dirtying the estates of wealthy Londoners residences. James Murray Spangler of Canton, Ohio, has been credited with inventing the first upright vacuum in 1908. So, there is today's truncated history lesson.

Fast-forward to 2020, with the Gittins', El Segundo residents, making their living Monday through Saturday, selling and servicing the latest, greatest generation of sewing machines and vacuums, with all of the add-on products necessary for a 21st-century seamstress or seamster, like needles and other accessories, as well as vacuum hoses, bags, and belts.

Asked about when the coupling of a sewing sale and service business with the sale of vacuums occurred, Gittins hypothesized that in an earlier era, women tended to stay home and take care of the homestead, and two of the items on their daily "to-do" list would have been firing-up the sewing machine and dragging around the vacuum cleaner.

In a nod to old-fashioned customer service, the Tanner website notes that "you can buy our classes on this website, however not our products," and invites customer's to visit their spacious "brick and mortar" facility located at 6230 West 87th Street.

Tanner's does not just sell products and service them, but typically also offers an array of sewing and software classes and workshops for adults and kids, as well as free owners classes for those who have purchased their machine or software from Tanner's. Like all businesses, the advent of the COVID-19 pandemic and social-distancing guidelines has affected Tanner's currently offered services. Still, even in these tumultuous times, the goal is the same: be committed to quality first, providing top-shelf products for the home that will function effectively for many, many years and not need replacing the minute the warranty expires.

Gittins said that his sewing machine business had added customers during the lockdown. He said initially there was an upsurge in people looking to make facemasks, injecting "new sewers into the world of sewing," and that after

Long Time MLB Umpire, Derryl Cousins, Remembered

By Gregg McMullin

When news that life-long El Segundo resident and former Major League umpire Derryl Cousins had passed away, it was one of ESPN's lead stories. Cousins was a highly respected umpire who worked some of Major League Baseball's most iconic games. This year's World Series umpires wore a commemorative DC patch on their sleeves to honor their former colleague. The news came to a shocked community and to the baseball world. Derryl's resting stone will read 8/17/46-10/19/2020, but it's the dash between those dates he should be remembered by.

Cousins' dash through life was filled with success, envied by others, and lonely as a Major League umpire being separated from his family. Through it all, he made the most of his experiences and not once second-guessed his decision to become one of MLB's most prominent umpires.

Derryl Cousins was a gifted athlete in high school. He was a two-sport star playing football, but his passion was baseball. He led his team to a 22-7 record and the Eagles' third league title under legendary coach John Stevenson. He was an all-league catcher who was named co-South Bay Player of the Year. He eventually signed a minor league contract with the Detroit Tigers. He played six seasons playing in the Western Carolina League,

Meet the Man Who Inspired the Musical "Hamilton" in Siempre, Luis

By Ashley DeFrancesco
for cinemacy.com

Luis Miranda's name may not be as well known as his son's, multiple Tony award-winner Lin-Manuel Miranda, but it is his name that you will remember by the end of Siempre, Luis. Director John James does an extraordinary job of creating a compelling portrait of an unbreakable man who is passionate about his family, his work, and his home of Puerto Rico.

Luis was known by his siblings as "the brain" and his parents had high expectations.

with him, James creates the portrait of an unbreakable man whose family and country come first, always. The source of Lin-Manuel's inspiration for his character Alexander Hamilton in his revolutionary musical Hamilton is clear, Luis is non-stop. Even after his heart attack in 2016, Luis would help Lin-Manuel open Hamilton at the University of Puerto Rico as a way to help rebuild after Hurricane Maria hit in 2017.

Siempre, Luis tells the beautiful story of a unique, proud immigrant who found a way

Siempre Luis, courtesy HBO.

He reminisced about the pressure to perform well in school, saying that if he brought home a mark of 95, his mother's first question was, "Did anyone get 100?" His gut told him that he was meant for more, outside of Puerto Rico. In 1970, he moved to New York to attend NYU and quickly became a leader and liaison for the Latinx community. Luis helped his community organize their needs and voice into active voting. He demonstrated to the candidates how vital Latinx voters are by creating strategic campaigning for Latinx communities that hadn't been done before. He worked on the campaign for Mayor Ed Koch as the Director of Hispanic Affairs, as well as Hillary Clinton's campaign for the Senate, both of which won. His work on these campaigns and countless others created the space for Latinx politics and culture to be heard, listened to, and represented.

With impactful and touching interviews from Miranda, his family, and those who worked to live his American dream and keep Puerto Rico closest to his heart. Miranda is passion and devotion personified.

Distributed by HBO, Siempre, Luis is now playing on HBO and HBO Max.

Hawthorne Hotspot

By Samantha Schmidt

Hello Hawthorne! As individuals, we can sometimes underestimate the morals and values of community outreach. Becoming actively involved with local community programs, such as donating to a toy drive for Christmas, can present a significant opportunity to develop leadership, discipline, and engagement within your community. In addition, taking part in community services simply helps you boost your self-esteem and give you a sense of pride and identity. Because of these positive attributes, it provides a natural sense of accomplishment. Whether you decide to launch a program or participate in an established group, the experience is a great opportunity to take you out of your comfort zone and hopefully others as well.

DANIEL MARQUEZ AND HER COMMUNITY GARDENING

For today's article, I interviewed Daniel Marquez who happens to be a 33-year-old Hawthorne resident of Mexican and Japanese descent! She is an Urban Farmer and Garden Manager for Community Healing Gardens, an LA based non-profit. In addition to outreach and education, Community Healing Gardens grows and gives food to the local residents in need. She is currently the Commissioner for the Hawthorne Parks and Fine Arts Department. Other than being a community helper, she is a mommy of 4!

INTERVIEWING DANIELLE MARQUEZ

Q: Your name and the community work you do?

A: My name is Danielle Marquez. I am passionate about the environment and building community. I am an urban farmer and lead a garden-based nutrition education program.

Q: Explain/describe the process of starting your community outreach

A: A few years ago, Hawthorne School District was working on strengthening their health index under the leadership of Anna Apojan, Director of Nutrition Services at the time. I started leading parent nutrition workshops at the elementary schools. We then started incorporating gardening and Harvest of the Month during the day with some classes and after-school programming.

Q: What made you want to start this?

A: When leading the workshops I learned many families were incorporating fruits and vegetables and walked to school together. Wonderful healthy habits! However, parents were mainly concerned that their children weren't eating enough vegetables. That was reflected in the trash cans after each lunch period. There was a lot of fresh healthy food in the trash that was uneaten. At the 2017 Childhood Obesity Conference, I learned that Latinx and African American children were 50% more likely to develop diabetes in their lifetime. But diabetes is preventable and reversible, which inspired me to share health information in interactive ways to not only provide an outdoor learning space and resources but to also motivate our community to eat healthier as well, especially our youngest members.

Q: Have you created any bonds during your years of community outreach?

A: I have met so many beautiful and inspiring people since starting this work. From community members, parents, students, and my UC Master Gardening community who help to provide educational resources, plants, and experience in the vast range of urban gardening. They are literally the wind beneath our wings because without them some hurdles might be too large, but we are stronger together. Water-keepers at our schools have kept a few of the school gardens alive and I know many more will support replanting others.

Q: Most favorite part of doing all of this or explain a favorite memory

A: One of my favorite things is that each season brings its lessons, challenges, and harvests. It has been magical to see the gardens growing, and those who approach them light up with delight as they try to identify what's growing. Watching students learn to love their gardens, and those who said they didn't like veggies are often the ones eager to taste what they've grown. I am grateful for the lessons we have learned that are unplanned and organic. In the garden, nature is a beautiful equalizer and we all get to grow.

Q: What advice would you give to those who would want to start something like this?

A: Find a local school or community garden that can use a hand. As in many things, but especially gardening, many hands make light work. Gardens often have long task lists that are added to daily and volunteers are a blessing. You can also contact your local UC Master Garden program for potential volunteer opportunities and information http://celosangeles.ucanr.edu/UC_Master_Gardener_Program/Gardening_Questions/

MY THOUGHTS

After getting to know Danielle, I can tell she has a huge heart for children's health initiatives. It shows in her character that she truly loves and is passionate about educating others about their general health and also connecting children and parents about the benefits of eating healthy foods and gardening! I very much admire the fact that she gets to interact with kids and teach them the basics of gardening. It reminds me of my time in elementary school on Thursdays when my teacher take us outside to plant fruits and vegetables. Those experiences provided me hands-on opportunities at a young age and also connected me to nature! Consequently, as a result, I sometimes help my grandpa plant his vegetables from his mini garden. He teaches me the importance and value of Mother Nature while providing us an opportunity to bond as a family. I want to thank Danielle for being a positive leader in our Hawthorne community. •

Huber's Hiccups

News for the City of Good Neighbors from an Old Guy named Norb Huber

BE A LIGHT

All I hear is disagreement, arguments, accusations, anger and hate. Contrast that with what the Bible says the fruit of the Spirit is: "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control; against such things there is no law". Those verses are found in Galatians 5:22-23. Martin Luther taught that there are two kingdoms, a spiritual kingdom and a temporal or worldly kingdom. When we put our trust or faith in worldly or secular things then many times we are disappointed. But, if we believe that there is a God who is all-powerful and all knowing, we can put our trust in Him who never fails us. God's Word is the truth and it saves us. We read in Matthew 6: 19-21: "Do not lay up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy and where thieves break in and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust destroys and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also." So, are we to totally shut ourselves off from the world? No, we are to be in the world but not of the world. We are called to go out there and be the lights of the world. We are to bring the love and joy that is ours in Christ to others. People need us now more than ever. People are depressed, upset, in a daze, despondent, frustrated, mad as hell, and really don't know what to expect next. We can be that listener. We can be that friend. We can be that steady influence when they are ready to go off the deep end. If our feet are planted steady on a strong foundation, storms and viruses and elections can beat us down but we can stay upright. Writing this ramble of run together rudimentary rants is therapy for me. I hope that by reading this junk you might find your footing even if you feel foolish reading my want-to-be silly stuff. How can you use your God given talents and abilities to help someone today? Do you know a person who could use a cold one? Do you need a cold one? I always need a cold one. I need to remind myself who I am. I need to tell myself that I'm loved not because I deserve it, but because of what my Savior has done for me. If you are not feeling it today, if things are really getting you down, get up, remind yourself you're loved, you are special and be that light, lend an ear, lift someone else up, relax, have a cold one and enjoy living on solid ground. Just don't have too many, you might fall and hurt yourself. Loyal readers, thanks for lifting me up, I need you all, all 32 of you.

WE LOVE OUR VETERANS

How can we not be thankful for our veterans this Veterans Day week? If we did not have a military in the past then we wouldn't be a nation today. We need a strong defense against our enemies. Shall we "defund" our military and our police? Shall we trust that worldly dictators and communist leaders wouldn't want to take control of this most powerful nation? The men and women who have given of themselves to serve us and defend our freedoms need our respect and our love. The blood that has been shed to preserve our nation should not be shoved aside. Everyone who enjoys living here in peace should forever be indebted to our veterans. To all you vets out there, Have a Cold One for all of us!

Derryl Cousins

the Canadian League, and finished playing with the Reno Silver Sox, an affiliate of the Cleveland Indians organization, of the California League.

After his release, Cousins embarked on a new career, umpiring. He was considered one of the top umpires at each level. Starting in the Midwest League in 1973, Cousins worked his way through the low minors. He and his umpiring partner, future American League umpire Vic Voltaggio, were considered the best among Midwest League umpires. They repeated that honor with the Carolina League in 1974. Cousins made his way to the Pacific Coast League in 1976 and worked three seasons at the Triple-A level.

Cousins never regretted his decision to get into umpiring, but he knew it was an uphill battle to get to the major leagues. "There is only one out of every 200 who attend umpiring school who get a job. There are only 150 jobs in all of minor-league ball," he once said. In the late 1970s, he said, "In the majors, there will only be eight jobs open in the next eight years as a few umpires reach retirement age."

He got an unexpected chance to umpire at the Major League level ahead of schedule. At the start of the 1979 season, 50 of the 52 American and National League umpires started the season on strike. Major League Baseball was forced to find minor-league and amateur umpires to fill out the ranks. Because he was considered one of the top umpires in the minor leagues, Cousins was one of those minor-leaguer umpires who found himself a crew chief for the amateur umpires.

Cousins worked his first of 4496 Major League games on April 6, 1979. "I was on the plate for a game at Oakland-Alameda County Stadium. I don't remember being intimidated or anything going wrong; I just remembered thinking, I made it."

The umpires' strike was eventually settled, and Cousins was one of the few minor league umpires who were given jobs at the Major League level. It did come with a small price when the striking umpires turned their backs on Cousins and the other few umpires. "They wouldn't talk to me off the field but were supportive between the lines, and really that's all that mattered," Cousins once told me.

Cousins was one of the most consistent ball/strike umpires over his 34-year career. He was known as a pitcher's umpire, probably because of his experience as a catcher. His brother Craig said, "If you were a hitter, you'd better be ready to swing it when Derryl was behind the plate."

Cousins had a unique way to bark out a strike. It was a deep 'steeeeeerike' that fans heard from the second deck of the stadium. There was no mistaking his call, and it wasn't to be noticed but rather to show a strike call empathically. It was rumored that Leslie Nielsen's character in the movie, 'Naked Gun', where Nielsen plays an umpire, during one scene, used Cousins as his motivation.

Craig shared a story his brother Derryl told him. "In one of Derryl's first games, a veteran star player commented on a pitch that was called a strike. He said that as long as he'd been playing, that pitch was never a strike. Derryl turned to him and said it was his first day, and that pitch was going to be a strike from now on, so get used to it."

Derryl never was intimidated by some of baseball's most prominent umpire-hating managers or team owners. He got into a brief war of words with New York Yankee team owner George Steinbrenner. Atlanta Braves manager Bobby Cox made it easy to eject with his brash comments that even included bumping Cousins on one occasion. He thought that New York Yankee manager Billy Martin went out of his way to be mean, and Baltimore Orioles manager Earl Weaver would go nuts for little or no reason to test the young umpire. Derryl said that when he finally got to call a game at Dodger Stadium, with Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda in charge, it was entertaining with Lasorda's colorful language.

Derryl Cousins umpired in nearly 5000 Major League Baseball games. He also was involved in some historical games including being the crew chief for an exhibition game at the Coliseum that drew a record 115,300 fans.

Craig said his brother was definitely a pitcher's umpire but did get teased about giving future Hall of Fame third baseman George Brett the close pitches. "I'm pretty sure George didn't need the help," Craig said.

Cousins was being noticed and began to be chosen for plum postseason assignments. Starting in 1985, he worked the American League Championship Series between the Royals and Blue Jays. Cousins worked a total of five Division Series (1997, 1999, 2002, 2005, 2007), seven League Championship Series (1985, 1989, 1995, 2003 and '2006, three World Series (1988, 1999, 2005) and three All-Star Games (1987, 1998 and 2008).

Some of the notable games Cousins called included being home plate umpire for Tom Seaver's 300th win at Yankee Stadium. He was the third-base umpire for game one of the 1988 World Series when Kirk Gibson hit his epic pinch-hit home run for the Dodgers. He was the home plate umpire for the game between the San Francisco Giants and the San Diego Padres on August 4, 2007. In the top of the second inning at San Diego, Barry Bonds of the Giants hit his 755th career home run off Clay Hensley, tying Hank Aaron for first all-time. He was the crew chief for an exhibition game at the Los Angeles Coliseum on March 29, 2008, where 115,300 people saw the Dodgers and Boston Red Sox played a game celebrating the Dodgers 50th Anniversary in Los Angeles. He served as the second base umpire in the final game at the old Yankee Stadium on September 21, 2008, and worked the Opening Day game at the new Yankee Stadium on April 16, 2009. Cousins was the first base umpire when Oakland Athletics pitcher Dallas Braden threw the 19th perfect game in MLB history on May 9, 2010. He worked as the third base umpire when Derek Jeter, of the New York Yankees, attained his 3000th career hit against the Tampa Bay Rays. In the 2009 World Baseball Classic, he was the crew chief for the semi-finals and finals held at Dodger Stadium. In all Derryl Cousins umpired 4496 MLB games placing him ninth all-time.

One of Derryl's sons, Cas, has started his umpiring career following in his father's footsteps. He was an All-South Bay catcher, All-Pioneer League selection, and led the Eagles to a first-place finish, all as his dad did. He started his professional umpiring career a season ago officiating in the Arizona League.

Derryl Cousins was inducted into the El Camino Hall of Fame in 2004 and into the El Segundo High School Hall of Fame in 2011. He is survived by his brothers Wayne and Craig, wife Shawna, and five children, including Cas, Cole, Erica, Jane, and Daryl-Lynn.

A memorial service is planned for next spring. •

they mastered the mask-making task, they were looking for other ways to utilize their sewing talents, with many of his customers delving into the field of embroidery.

"The sewing industry has really taken off," he said while noting that he is currently enjoying his work more than he has in years.

One customer who is loyal to Tanner's is Aileen Tanimoto. Here is what she emailed about her experiences: "I am a recently retired (June 12th) Home Economics teacher after teaching 43 years. Fabric/Sewing machine stores are my passion. Living in Palos Verdes and teaching secondary education at Paramount High School, there are many stores that I can visit between my work and home. I would rather drive the extra miles to Tanner's because of the excellent service and family atmosphere. They know you well enough to call you by your first name when you walk in. After a long day at work, I fight the 405 traffic to sit with the Tuesday afternoon sewing group. Wednesday is computer software day. If you purchase the software or sewing machine, you are given free classes for life. I have a sewing machine store 1.5 miles from my house but would much rather drive the 45 minutes to one-hour to Tanner's for the personalized service that I receive."

Manhattan Beach resident Lori Christian also raves about her experiences with the folks at Tanner's, which have encompassed more than 20 years: "Really good service, in a very helpful environment, whether you are a beginner, or more advanced," she emailed, noting the personalized service she receives. Christian said she had purchased both sewing machines and vacuums from Tanner's, mentioning that she has nabbed four sewing machines from Tanner's.

"They are the best. Everyone who works there knows what the machine does and how to use them. It is like an old-time business, with modern equipment."

Gus Kazemi, who owns the Coffee Company, located nearby to Tanner's, and has known Ian for 27 years, said Gittins drop by regularly for coffee and that they have become "friends, and colleagues." "He is always helpful in any repair question that I have," Kazemi said. "He taught me a lot about the equipment," Kazemi added, noting how Gittins also gives him advice on purchasing any needed store equipment.

Lisa Alexakis, who has worked for Tanner's for more than a decade, really enjoys her job. "I have worked for Tanner's Sewing and Vacuum Center for almost 12 years, and Love It here," she emailed. "It's great to work some-honest and genuine people I know."

Rick Martinez, a certified sewing machine mechanic, has thirty-five years of experience in the industry, the last nine with Tanners. He said that "the crew here is simply great. Ian is really cool. Ian is the boss, but he is a friend." Martinez said that the positive work vibe at Tanner's comes stems from the fact that "all of the employees here treat people the way we want to be treated. All of the employees treat it like it is their business."

Originally from Wales, Ian, his parents, and brother one day just picked-up their belongings and relocated, not just "across the pond," but to Glendale, California, near the end of the 1960's. While working as a delivery man for the Arrowhead Water company, Ian called on one of his accounts in Burbank, which just happened to be a sewing machine and vacuum selling establishment. The proprietor, knowing that Ian had a mechanical bent, suggested Gittins might have a future in that industry.

Gittins ended-up getting hurt on the job with Arrowhead and started working part-time at the Burbank sewing-vacuum shop. He liked the work and thought that "this is a fun business. I could possibly own one of these." He heard that the "one-man-show" at Tanner's was looking for help. So, he showed up, sold a couple of sewing machines upon his arrival, and was hired-on. Gittins became a 50% owner of Tanner's, which has been around since 1964, in the early 80's, and sole owner in the late 80's.

When not tending to his business interests, the mechanically-oriented Gittins likes to build remote control airplanes, including gliders. He also occasionally tools around the area in his 1967 Corvette, sometimes in search of that perfect cup of coffee. He tries to stay physically active, participating in occasional events dubbed "tough mudders," five-ten mile runs over and through a course that is dotted with challenging obstacles.

A resident of El Segundo for nearly 30 years, Gittins, like many transplanted residents, cites the "neighborhood feel" of living in town, likening living in El Segundo to being transported back to the 1960's.

Asked about any retirement plans, Gittins, 63, said he has not really contemplated making that move. "I am just really blessed for having some loyal, great customers who have recommended (Tanner's)." As for his business philosophy, Gittins said that "I just try to do the best job that I can possibly do." It seems to have worked out very well for him and his loyal customers for more than three decades. •

PETSPETS Pets PETSPETS

Featured Pets of the Week

Provided by Hannah Collett, spcaLA

Just like my name Handsome, I am one good-looking dog! I am an eight-year-old Shepherd male mix. I'm social and enjoy the training I am receiving while I wait for a new home. I've been practicing sit, find it, place. I can't wait to show you what I've learned! <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00588>

I'm Lily a beautiful and sweet five-month female domestic short hair kitty with just the right amount of sass. I can't wait to settle down next to you and hear all about your day. You pour the tea. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00695>

My favorite place to sit and nap is in anybody's warm lap. I'm Claire, a 2-month-old female domestic short hair. I'm very social with my brothers and play with all types of toys. I prefer not to be left out, so a home with another kitten or cat would be ideal. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00846>

I am Blue, a 1 year old male Pit Bull mix in need of guidance from an experienced owner and a loving family. I am learning that humans are good and will pet me and give me hotdogs. I am working on my leash walking and obedience skills while at the shelter. <https://spcala.com/adoptable/pet/?ss=21-00695>

When Cloud was adopted from spcaLA South Bay by the Britt family, she was four years old and had been in the shelter for almost two months. They adopted her in 2017, and since then, she has lived with her forever family in California, moved to Washington D.C., and now she's living in Anchorage, Alaska! Cloud has proven to be an excellent traveler, and blessings to her family for taking her with them to each new city. Happy Holidays from Cloud. •
